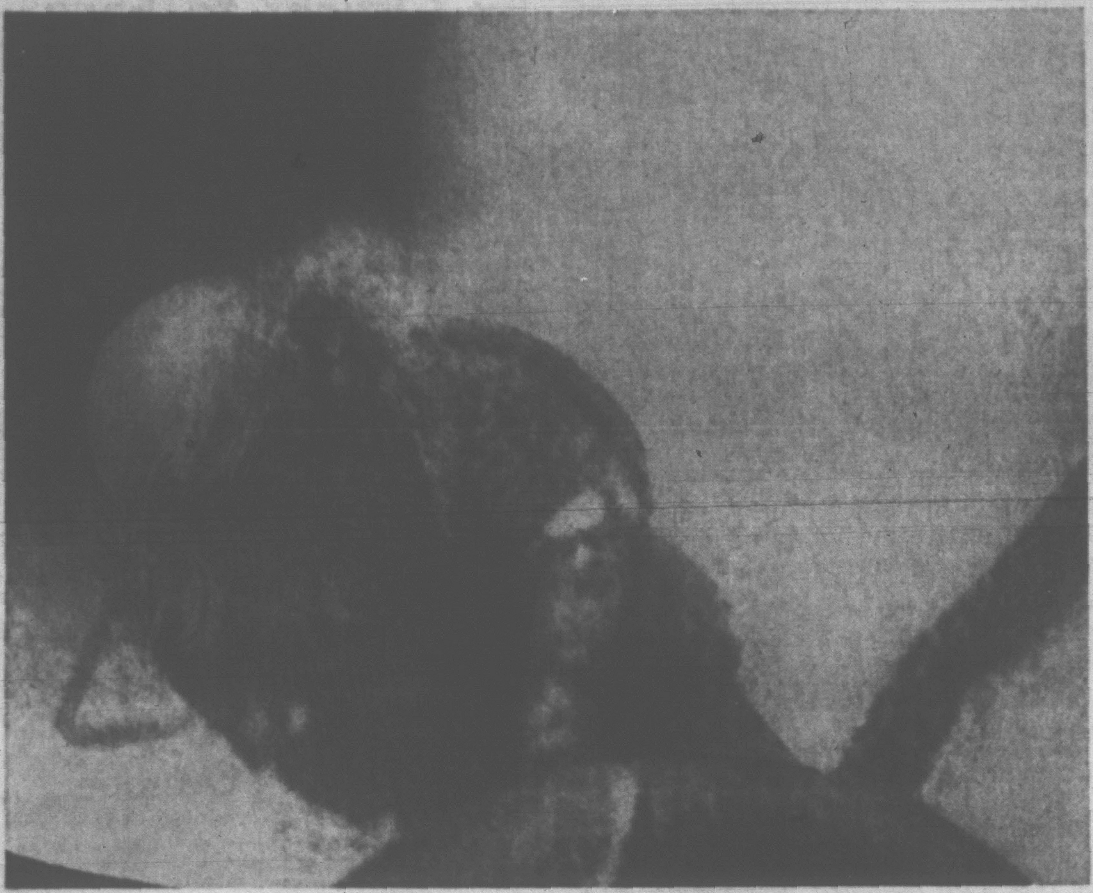
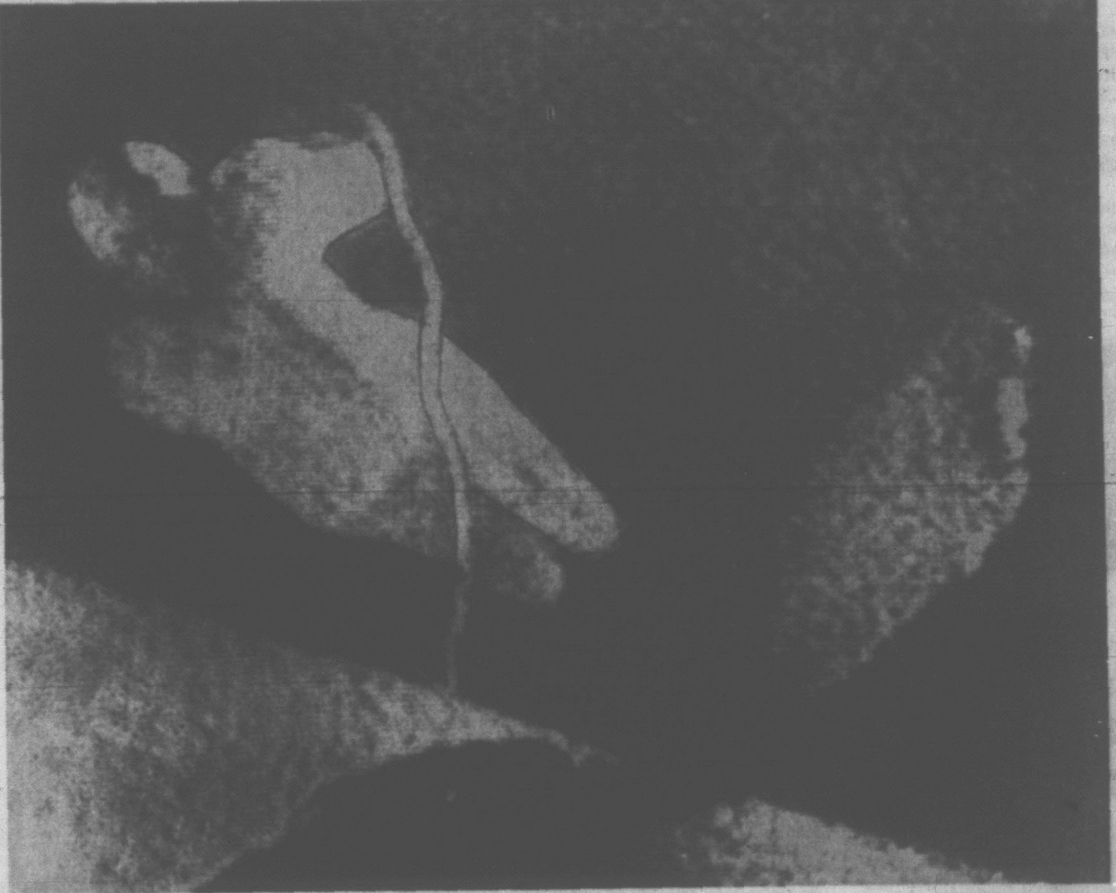
First Man Floats in Space





Daring Young Man Flies With the Greatest of Ease

Moscow television viewers saw these pictures on their screen today of Cosmonaut Alexei Leonov becoming first man to step out of orbiting capsule in outer space. At left he is shown preparing to push off from capsule after emerging from hatch. At right he is floating freely at end of rope. Leonov ventured about 16 feet from the capsule and stayed out about 20 minutes before re-entering the hatch. Leonov and Pavel Belyayev continued to orbit the earth today in their two-man ship and it was not known when they would land. (AP Wirephotos.)

Camera Records Event As Ship's Door Opens

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow television today showed Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov step outside his space ship—the first time this has been accomplished in outer space.

Moscow radio, in an English-language broadcast, said: "Here in our studio in Radio Moscow we are at this moment watching the Soviet astronaut, Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov, outside his space ship for the first time in history.

"The picture of Alexei Leonov as he left the space ship, as he conducted his observations in outer space and as he returned safely to his space ship was recorded on tape here on the ground and has just been shown on Moscow television by means of the intervision hookup. It was also seen in the countries of western Europe."

Moscow television also showed pictures of the commander of the space ship, Lt. Col. Pavel Belyayev.

45 Children Die as Planes Bomb Village

DA NANG (Reuters)—Forty-eight persons, including 45 children, were killed Wednesday when South Vietnamese air force planes bombed a village near here, military sources said today.

The sources said the village was flying the flag of the Viet Cong.

A group of villagers marched on Da Nang after the raid carrying several coffins but South Vietnamese troops turned them back before they reached the top-security Da Nang air base.

The sources said the Skyraider planes destroyed the village school and other buildings after an observation plane was shot at as it flew over. Thirty-seven children were in the school at the time of the raid.

A Viet Cong flag flew over the village of Pan Quang, about 375 miles northeast of Saigon and five from Da Nang. It was regarded as Communist-controlled despite its nearness to the U.S. base.

Heavy civilian casualties have resulted frequently from air strikes on hamlets where Viet Cong are believed to be operating.

The village raid came after U.S. B-57 jet bombers again pounded Viet Cong positions in Binh Duoung province south of Saigon Wednesday.

South Vietnamese forces today claimed 64 Viet Cong guerrillas were killed and 16 cap-

He Double-Checked Lifeline During 'Swim' Outside Ship

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — The first man to gambol in space resembled a little boy exuberantly playing a new game.

Moscow television showed Lt.-Col. Alexei Leonov making man's first sally from the protective shelter of his spaceship shortly after the launching of the Voskhod-II spaceship.

The six-minute TV sequence showed Leonov rising from a hatch, on what appeared to be the upper surface of the spacecraft, and raise himself until his trunk was outside the hatch where he remained for about three minutes, standing hesitantly on the doorstep to space.

He gripped the rim of the hatch with his right hand and made a few sweeping motions with his left—all the time facing the camera.

The Soviet news agency Tass later explained he was waiting for spaceship commander, Col. Pavel Belyayev's command to kick free.

Leonov was wearing a white helmet. Hoses and other attachments stretched over his shoulder from the helmet to a pack on his back.

Then, the coils of Leonov's safety line were suddenly ejected from the hatch, as though someone had thrown them. The cosmonaut himself reached back into the hatch to draw out the rest of the slack.

Bracing himself with both hands on the rim of the hatch, Leonov arched his back and his feet floated up and out of the hatch.

His movements were surprisingly agile — resembling a swimmer moving underwater.

Throughout the filmed sequence, the white outline of the earth's curvature could be seen in the background, alternating with the blackness of outer space.

Leonov held on to the hatch for a few brief moments, as though reluctant to leave the safety of his space vehicle.

After he finally pushed himself off from the shiny surface of the spaceship, he slowly floated back, away from the camera.

He turned on his back and for a few seconds hung motionless, floating on his back in a prone position.

His body continued to float away from the camera and his lifeline could be seen stretching taut. Leonov reached over and touched the line—as though to adjust it and reassure himself it was there.

Despite the cumbersome-looking space suit with its "autonomous life - support system," Leonov began slowly and gracefully turning somersaults in the air.

He turned head over heels with increasing abandon while his body drifted in and out of the camera's range.

The TV sequence ended after showing about six minutes. Moscow viewers did not see him swim back to the ship.

Tass later said Leonov had been outside the cabin's atmosphere for 20 minutes, including 10 minutes outside the ship.

Wilson Talks To Gromyko

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson held a conference with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko late today amid mounting indications of Russian pressure for Britain to take a more "independent" line on the fighting in Viet Nam.

A Russian foreign office document released in Moscow Wednesday night asked Britain to join with the Soviet Union in condemning United States action against North Viet Nam as a "gross violation" of international agreements.

Indonesians Demonstrate

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesians demonstrated in two areas of south Sumatra today for seizure of American Stanvac Oil Company installations that are estimated to be worth $80,000,000.

The official Antara news agency said Communist-led United Action Oil Workers took over the Stanvac refinery at Sungaigerung, near Palembang, in protest against American support of Malaysia.

But informed sources said later both the refinery and installations in the nearby oilfield of Pendopo, another target, remained in American hands.

The workers were reported to have returned to their jobs.

Soviet Feat Seen on TV

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia thrilled the world with a new space triumph today, the first nation to let a spaceman step into outer space for a "weightless swim" before returning to a high-flying manned satellite.

A 30-year-old miner's son, Lt.-Col. Alexei Leonov, became the world's first astronaut to separate from a spaceship in orbit—and to survive.

Moscow television transmitted a live program directly from aboard the spaceship.

Moscow radio said Leonov, father of a four-year-old girl, "felt good" as he clambered back through the hatch of Russia's latest spacecraft, Voskhod (Sunrise) II, after his mid-space adventure of about 20 minutes.

The Voskhod had completed its fifth 91-minute orbit at 5 p.m. (6 p.m. PST) and Leonov and fellow cosmonaut were "in good condition and felt well," the Soviet news agency Tass said. It listed their pulse rates as between 70 and 72 per minute and said they "ate with a good appetite."

While his colleague made astro-navigational observations and measurements, "Leonov rested in accordance with the program."

His breathtaking space swim was seen by millions on television in Russia and throughout the world, as Moscow released a graphic video-tape two hours afterwards.

Scientific observers said the feat appeared to put Russia far ahead in its space race with the United States, which plans to launch its two-man Gemini project Tuesday.

Well-Prepared for 'Intricate Tasks'

Leonov, said to be well prepared for "intricate tasks in flight," left the spaceship at 11:30 a.m. (12:30 a.m. PST), 90 minutes after he and Col. Pavel Belyayev, 39, were blasted-off on Russia's eighth manned space shot. He moved five metres (16.4 feet) into the void away from the space ship.

Moscow television showed a film of Leonov floating next to the spacecraft, apparently attached to it by a line to prevent his floating away.

He was wearing a bulky suit and heavy helmet. What looked like cylinders of oxygen were on his back.

The cosmonaut did somersaults in space and floated in a loose, relaxed-appearing manner of weightlessness.

The curve of the earth and the blackness of deep space could be seen in the background of the televised program from the spaceship. It was broadcast almost two hours after the venture into space was made at the end of the first orbit.

During the live TV hookup, Belyayev and Leonov both spoke over the radio telephone with Cuban Defence Minister Raul Castro, now staying in Moscow.

Castro asked them whether they had seen Cuba and the two men said they had seen all the continents and conveyed warm greetings to the Cuban people.

After hearing the cosmonauts' report on the fulfilment of their task, Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev addressed them on behalf of the party, the presidium and the Soviet government and people.

In a speech broadcast by Moscow radio he said:

"This is an exciting moment for mankind. For the first time in the world man has boldly and literally opened the door on the cosmos."

The latest Russian spectacular, beside being the first human jaunt outside a space vehicle, also beat the United States two-man Gemini launching scheduled for Tuesday.

The two-man spaceship was launched this morning from a secret base, probably in Soviet central Asia.

Pair May Stay Up More Than Week

It was thought the space shot might last between one and two weeks. There also was speculation that the two-man flight might be followed by another for a spectacular attempt at a history-making link-up in space.

Today's launch was Russia's first space shot since last Oct. 12 when three cosomauts—a pilot, a scientist and a doctor—made 16 orbits in 24 hours aboard Voskhod I.

According to preliminary data, the spaceship orbited the earth once every 90.9 minutes.

Its minimum distance from the earth perigee was about 110

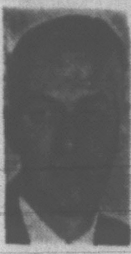
In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

Time has suddenly become precious to a Legislative Assembly which has been at work since January 21, and is expected to break the Bennett government for longevity in session.

"If this doesn't end within three days," declared Highways Minister Phil Gagliardi plaintively, as the third night session of the week lengthened, "they'll carry me out of here in a coffin!"



Mr. Gagliardi's sentiments are general, and eyes are turned longingly toward March 24, the date on which the wise-money now predicts that Her Majesty's British Columbia representative will be conducted past the shiny brass bar to approve legislation and dismiss the House.

Meanwhile, on Wednesday afternoon debate was drastically shortened on three private members' bills by a legitimate but arbitrary chop.

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane fell victim to this parliamentary gimmick when he sought support for an amendment which "in plain, ordinary clear language would put out of doubt for all time the status of members of the purchasing commission."

While Mr. Macfarlane's challenge still hung in air, up rose Attorney-General Bonner with St. Patrick's Day green in his lapel to move adjournment of the debate.

Alex Macdonald, NDP for Vancouver East, next tried his luck with 'An Act Respecting Privacy' which would put an end to unsanctioned "bugging" of private conversations.

Mr. Macdonald offered a chilling word-picture of the "Bumper Beeper" with which snoopers can pick up a whisper in a speeding automobile, then touched on the "Big Beam", a device that permits a private eye to tune in on a street corner chat two blocks distant.

He had barely completed a warning that such instruments threaten peoples' "marvellous eccentricity, individuality and courage in expressing themselves" when the axe again descended in the shape of a government-side adjournment move.

For Grand Forks-Greenwood NDP Mrs. Lois Haggen, same deal.

Before discussion could begin on her annual fireworks-squelching amendment or her well-argued attempt to obtain equal pay for women, government voices moved to adjourn the debate right out from under her.

* * *

Summary treatment, this; and I suspect those bills will get short shrift on their next appearance. But the move did clear the way for Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Williston's estimates.

Into these, at the evening sitting, NDP David Barrett for Dewdney dropped a bombshell in the shape of a park not on Mr. Williston's list, but so designated in 1944 by John Hart as Coalition premier.

"A public scandal," Mr. Barrett termed approaches to government by Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources Ltd.—a firm which includes among its directors Fred Dietrich, provisional director of the shadow-bank of British Columbia.

The park is 9,000-acre Cyprus Bowl in West Vancouver.

* * *

Earlier, Gordon Gibson, second Liberal for North Vancouver, presented to the legislature a list of 19 forest management questions which he asserted he had tried in vain to lay before the House forestry committee.

In total, these queries put forward Mr. Gibson's already-expressed opinion that, over the last 10 years, "the peoples' timber" has been sold at least $500 million too cheaply.

Mr. Williston's answer, in part:

"In the final analysis, in this democratic process, somebody has to make the decisions and stand the criticism.

"It would be a very easy task to simply report recommendations to the legislature, but I have to say, 'We will do this', and take the consequences of what must be done.

"I've never shirked from making decisions . . . If I don't, some other human has to!"

miles and its maximum apogee about 310 miles. The orbit angle was about 65 degrees.

Two-way radio communications were constantly maintained with the space ship.

It was the first venture into space for Belyayev and Leonov. They were taking part in Russia's eighth manned space probe since Major Juri Gagarin became the world's first cosmonaut April 12, 1961.

A report by Belyayev and telemetric data showed that the crew withstood satisfactorily the orbiting and the transition to weightlessness.

All the equipment on board the spaceship was functioning normally.

The launching was announced here 48 minutes after the blast-off at 10 a.m. (11 p.m. PST).

The blast-off was preceded by the launching of 10 Cosmos research satellites in the last three weeks. The Cosmos probes are usually sent up to test conditions for a manned flight.

Higher Than Earlier Manned Ships

Voskhod II was ranging higher above the earth than any previous manned spaceship launched by Russia. Its maximum altitude of 310 miles was nearly 55 miles higher than that reached by Voskhod I and about 120 miles higher than Maj. Gagarin's flight.

Three Cosmos satellites launched Monday went up about 1,150 miles.

Voskhod I came down after 24 hours, but there were unconfirmed reports that its flight was cut short because it coincided with the dismissal of former premier Khrushchev.

In Voskhod I, the crew members lay side by side, facing an instrument panel.

Instead of the heavy spacesuits and pressurized helmets of previous shots they wore only light woollen suits, sports shirts and comfortable light shoes.

Over their suits they had blue jackets to protect them from the cold and wore light white helmets with earphones.

Voskhod I was the first space ship to come back to earth with the crew inside, making ejector seats unnecessary.

It was fitted with a newly-designed braking system that was reported to have brought it down unscathed, by parachute.

Voskhod I landed in the north Kazakstan region in Soviet central Asia.

In 1962, Russia orbited Maj. Andrian Nikolayev aboard Vostok III. The next day Lt.-Col. Pavel Popovich joined him in space aboard Vostok IV. The two ships flew side by side for three days and landed within six minutes of each other.

In 1963, Lt.-Col. Valery Bykovsky went up aboard Vostok V. Two days later, the world's first woman cosmonaut, Valentina Tereshkova, went into orbit aboard Vostok VI, and the two ships stayed up together for three days.

As far as is known, no attempt at a space rendezvous was made during these dual flights.

Col. Bykovsky is the Soviet cosmonaut who has stayed longest in space—119 hours. He made 81 orbits in his five-day flight.

Climbers To Challenge Mt. Kennedy

SEATTLE (AP) — Everest Whittaker will fly to Yukon Territory in a "few days" to join in an ascent of the 13,900-foot Canadian peak named for the late president John F. Kennedy.

Seattle newspapers said there were reports that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, (D-N.Y.), brother of the slain president, might also take part in the cimb.

Kennedy, reported to be in New York, could not be reached for comment.

The climb is sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the Boston museum of science.

Whittaker, who in 1963 became the first American to climb Mt. Everest, said at his home in nearby Redmond there was no assurance the ascent would be successful.

"This is an unclimbed summit," he said. "The weather can stop any party that makes the attempt."

Mme. Chiang Praises Firm Stand by LBJ

By ROBERT EUNSON

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—"I am really glad that (U.S.) President Johnson has taken such a firm stand in Viet Nam," the lovely Chinese woman said in English.

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek continued:

"People in Asia have been watching very closely America's attitude toward not only her enemies but her friends. The people of Asia often feel that America will do nothing to uphold her often - proclaimed principles of helping people hold onto the freedom they have. That is why people sometimes ask, 'why shouldn't we be like the neutralists and not offend the Communists?' "

Mme. Chiang, 64 next Wednesday, appears to be in her early 40s. Her exquisite figure was cased in a black silk dress, and she wore her usual pearl ornaments.

She said in her opinion the problem in Southeast Asia is strictly a confrontation between an imperialistic Red China and the free world. Married to Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-shek for more than 37 years, she has been close to her people's fight for freedom most of her life.

"Russia has everything to lose should she take part in a war in Asia, while the Chinese Communists feel they have much to gain."

She said the mainland Chinese are suffering from lack of food and clothing, necessities which the Russian people enjoy while the Chinese Communists "have wasted substance through folly and building of a nuclear pile."

She had this to say about China's nuclear progress:

"Whatever little device they have does not mean much should the Chinese Communists exacerbate the situation since the device is not sufficiently sophisticated as such."

WAR CRIMES PROSECUTION LIMIT ERASED

VIENNA (Reuters) — The Austrian government has approved an emendment to the penal code to enable Austrian courts to prosecute war crimes indefinitely. The new bill provides no limitation for capital crimes. Austria has no death penalty.

The two coalition parties, the conservative People's Party and the socialist party, which together hold 156 of the 165 parliamentary seats, unanimously welcomed the amendment.

tured in three actions in the northernmost 1st Army Corps area. The government said 16 of its men were wounded and none killed.

Meanwhile, the North Viet Nam News Agency reported that Communist forces in the south had annihilated four government companies and caused heavy casualties in the first 10 days of this month. It said they killed 700 "United States puppets."

On the political front, the South Vietnamese government announced it will "deport" three leaders of a peace movement across the border to the north Friday.

Previously Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi said he planned to drop them by parachute into North Viet Nam but was overruled by the government.

The three men—a veterinarian, a history teacher and a journalist—were arrested last month after collecting 358 signatures for a petition demanding an immediate ceasefire in the war.

Labor Group Raps Gov't Over Ferries

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver and Disrtict Labor Council Tuesday night accused the provincial government of denying labor legislation to ferry authority employees.

Council delegates voted to go on record as opposing a government ruling that fair wages and conditions of employment regulations do not apply to ferry workers.

Secretary Paddy Neale said the ferry authority has called tenders for janitorial service now performed by a unionized company.

Under the government ruling, he said a non-union company would likely win the conrtact.

New Voting Charge In Douglas Riding

OTTAWA (CP)—Government House Leader George McIlraith told the Commons Tuesday that a letter has been received alleging that irregularities took place in the 1963 federal election in Burnaby-Coquitlam, represented by New Democratic Leader Douglas.

The minister said the letter was received by the Commons elections committee and referred to a Vancouver judge who will conduct a judicial inquiry into allegations that six unidentified unions conspired to rig votes for NDP candidates in some British Columbia ridings in 1963.

The inquiry was set up a month ago by the federal government at the request of Mr. Douglas, who said any persons found guilty of election irregularities should be prosecuted and punished to the full extent of the law.

Mr. McIlraith was replying to Robert Beaule (Creditiste—Quebec East), who said the latest allegations came from "one Mr. Brown, a resident of British Columbia."

Mr. Beaule asked that a copy of Mr. Brown's letter be tabled in the Commons and the minister said he had no objection.

VANCOUVER (CP) — An inquiry into alleged election irregularities here convened briefly Tuesday and was adjourned to March 23 to allow commission counsel to consider evidence.

300 QUESTIONED

Murder of Widow Remains Mystery

CLOVERDALE, B.C. (CP)—A year ago a 68-year-old widow was tied to a kitchen chair, tortured and beaten and finally stabbed to death.

Who killed Mary Rhoda Oliver and why are questions still baffling police in this tiny Fraser Valley farming community 20 miles southeast of Vancouver.

Mrs. Oliver lived like a recluse. She admitted to acquaintances she thought she would die an unnatural death. But she never said why.

More than 300 persons in British Columbia, Eastern Canada and parts of the United States were questioned by police. No suspects have been found.

The body of Mrs. Oliver was discovered in her house Feb. 3, 1964. A paring knife was embedded in her back. A towel was carefully draped over her face. She had been slain three days before.

A bent bread knife was found in the kitchen sink. Her glasses were on the kitchen table. A magnifying glass was on the floor near her body.

Police said Mrs. Oliver was tied to a chair and tortured. She suffered a dislocated jaw, a broken nose, bruised eyes and cuts. The killer then stabbed her with three different knives.

A small amount of money in her purse was not touched. Neither was a gold watch of considerable value. She kept little money in the house. She was not sexually attacked. Nothing besides the knives, the chair, the magnifying glass and the towel were out of place in the house.

Mrs. Oliver had no known enemies. After exhausting other avenues of investigation, police questioned patients released from mental hospitals but found no more clues.

Constable Bill Kerr, now heading the investigation, said he had studied the case so long "it is almost as though I had lived in the same house with her."

"She was a woman of clockwork habits, but for some reason which I can't determine she broke them the day she was killed."

She usually left her home only on Thursdays to shop. The day she was killed, a Saturday, she was seen in a store in town, about one mile from her house.

A car was seen by a neighbor in Mrs. Oliver's driveway shortly afterwards, but police have not been able to trace the vehicle.

Detectives even mingled at her funeral, checking on those who attended and looking for the mystery car.

Nothing was turned up.

A $500 reward was posted by the municipal council in March, 1964. It has never been claimed.

NEGRO, WHITE PUPILS STAGE VICIOUS BRAWL

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—Street fighting between Negro and white students today closed one of this city's largest high schools.

Dozens of fist fights broke out before more than a hundred policemen, some of them on horseback, broke up the demonstration which stemmed from a weekend of racial incidents on the east side.

Police said apparently nobody was hurt seriously although two boys were taken to a hospital for x-rays.

The situation was tense at noon, hours after the fighting had been broken up. People milled around in the streets, booing the white-helmeted policemen.

Ex Officer to Face Trial on 'Benefits'

OTTAWA (CP)—Retired Brig. John Baxter Allan will be formally committed April 15 for trial on charges of conspiring to accept and of accepting a benefit of more than $8,000 between 1957 and 1963, senior magistrate Glenn Strike ruled Tuesday at the end of Allan's two-day preliminary hearing.

Bail of $4,000 was continued for the dapper, 50-year-old Allan who was the Canadian Army's vice - quartermaster-general until his compulsory retirement last August.

The benefit Allan allegedly accepted comprised merchandise—payment of hotel bills and transfer of shares from four Toronto brothers who were directors or agents of a company or companies doing business with the federal government.

SHAREHOLDERS

The brothers are Ben, Morris, Mark and Edward Levy, the major shareholders in Levy Industries Limited of Toronto.

Morris Levy testified Tuesday under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, meaning that his testimony could not be used against him in other court proceedings except on a charge of perjury.

Crown Attorney John Cassels suddenly cut short his case with seven Crown witnesses still waiting to testify and moved for Allan's formal committal for trial.

Magistrate Strike agreed. Mr. Cassels said the trial will be held this fall.

SMOKED TURKEY

Mr. Cassels read letters purportedly written by Allan to Ben Levy Dec. 30, 1957, and Dec. 29, 1959, thanking the latter for "holiday season gifts" of smoked turkey and ham.

Morris Levy, vice - president and secretary of Levy Industries Limited, identified as from his company a file marked "Brig. J. B. Allan."

He said the Levy interests tendered on Canadian defence contracts and bought material through Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, a Crown company.

WHEAT SALES LOSSES COST $100 MILLION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may be losing $100,000,000 of business a year because of a requirement that half of any wheat sold to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries must be carried in U.S. ships, a government official testified Tuesday.

"This year, Russia again is important rather substantial quantities of wheat from Canada and Australia—but not from the United States," Agriculture Undersecretary Charles Murphy told a Senate banking subcommittee hearing.

Quebec Revolt 'Overdue'

The revolt in French Canada over equal rights was long overdue, it was suggested here Wednesday by a prominent political scientist.

"The wonder is that it has taken the better part of a century for the aggravations in this uneven partnership to erupt into the agonized and understandably extremist complaints that are now a matter of close scrutiny," Dr. J. E. Hodgetts, head of the political studies department at Queen's University, told a group of political scientists attending a convention here.

"In my view, what is really at stake is the broad issue of how to create a genuinely representative national public service. Unfortunately the issue is likely to become too [illegible] construed as a problem [illegible] how to placate French Canada alone."

Dr. Hodgetts said it is important to remind ourselves that during the pre-confederation period, political and administrative concession made to the concept of equal partnership were evident in Canada.

"Here was a system topped by a hyphenated premiership, often organized in double-barreled ministries, staffed in dual divisions, and to cap it all, a system of rotating capitals.

"All this came to an abrupt end in 1867 and Quebec, like the American south, found itself outvoted politically and forced to accept as a nucleus for the new central civil service, a staff drawn largely from Ontario, housed in a permanent capital in Ottawa and conducting all official business in English."

C.A.R.S Plans Therapist Student Aid

The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, B.C. division, is again offering financial aid to British Columbia students qualifying for training as physical and occupational therapists.

Bursary loans of up to $500 are available to students who have completed Grade 13 or first-year university. The required subjects are English 100; chemistry 101 or 102; mathematics 101 (revised) or 120; zoology 105 (or biology 100 senior matriculation) and one other credit course.

"Training can be taken at the school of rehabilitation, University of British Columbia," says Mrs. Ray Talbot, information officer.

"Job opportunities in this vital field of rehabilitation are unlimited."

The society is also offering a first prize of $100 for the best essay on physical or occupational therapy by a high school student.

Entries will be judged by members of the Canadian Physiotherapy Association, the Canadian Occupational Therapy Association and members of the press.

Entries should be sent directly to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, 645 West Broadway, Vancouver 9, not later than May 31.

U.K. Doctors Back Down

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's 23,000 family doctors backed down Wednesday night from their "more pay or we quit" ultimatum. They left the way clear for a negotiated peace with the government on the embattled National Health Service.

The doctors put their "strike" deadline back to July 1 when the British Medical Association, speaking for the doctors, offered Health Minister Kenneth Robinson three months to work out new pay rates and employment conditions.

More than 500 students are expected to attend classes in the Greater Victoria School Board's summer session which will begin July 5 in Oak Bay High School. The session is intended to give students an opportunity to increase their junior high school marks.

God's Eye View Earth Study Urged to Locate Resources

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Scientists today proposed use of orbiting spacecraft to get a "God's eye view" of earth and its minerals and plant resources.

They said such craft, equipped with radar and other sensors, could do a better job than can be done on the ground of revealing large geological features in undeveloped countries and mapping remote desert and polar regions.

The "exciting new possibilities" opened by spacecraft for scientific and practical study of the earth were discussed at a two-day symposium of the American Astronautical Society which opened here today.

A host of chores for orbiting radars was suggested in a research report by Willard J. Pierson Jr., of New York University, Bernard B. Scheps of the Army Geodesy, Intelligence, and Mapping Research and Development Agency, and David S. Simonett of the University of Kansas.

GENERAL SHAPE

Spacecraft with special kinds of radar, they said, could perform all-weather, day-or-night investigations of the Arctic and Antarctic icecaps, undulations known to exist in the earth's general shape, storm, tide, and sea ice conditions, floods and even earthquakes, and the whole world's vegetation cover and geological structure.

They reported that radar images are less cluttered with distracting details than photographs and so would be particularly useful in surveying large geological features. Such mapping would be especially useful in undeveloped countries whose mineral resources have not been determined.

These scientists suggested that radar spacecraft also could make "vegetation maps" of remote, hard to get at, and cloud-covered rainforest or mountain regions. They also would "give a view from space of massive earthquakes" which could not easily be investigated by scientists on the ground.

Other papers proposed the use of orbiting sensors to monitor farm and forest crops, spot fires and floods, and even to study on a panoramic scale the spread of cities and the growth of transportation networks.

The world's $173 billion agricultural industry must become even larger to support growing populations. This calls for planning which in turn hinges on global information about cultivated lands in all regions and seasons.

Remote sensing equipment and cameras as well as radars aboard spacecraft would provide fine tools, scientists said, for such worldwide surveys.

Americans Salute As Russians Go Up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. officials today saluted the latest Soviet space feat as a brilliant achievement which further lengthens Russia's lead over America in manned space flight.

The United States plans nothing exactly comparable to the Soviet cosmonaut's ramble outside a spacecraft before the fifth two-man Gemini flight in 1966.

Dr. Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Council which advises President Lyndon Johnson on American space programs, gave this appraisal of the Russian flight:

"This is a logical extension of the manned space flight program that they have. It helps them to maintain the lead they have over us in manned space flight. It shows that they have a space suit sufficiently well developed and designed to permit men to move outside their spacecraft."

Beep, Hiss, Click So Blind May Read

VANCOUVER (CP)—An electronic reading machine for the blind is being tested here. The inventor says it could replace braille within 10 years.

Dr. Michael P. Beddoes of the University of British Columbia's department of electronics engineering, said in an interview Wednesday his invention can teach the blind faster than braille but still needs modifying.

It will be some time before the device, called a lixiphone, will be available commercially.

UBC has granted Dr. Beddoes a year's leave to work on the machine at the Massachusets Institute of Technology.

Dr. Beddoes said the device consists of six photo-electric cells. When these are passed over lines of standard typewriter print, they send out a combination of sounds — beeps, hisses and clicks—amplified by transistors.

Tests have been conducted here with 26 blind persons, despite the fact the machine as yet can distinguish only nine letters. At least two of the blind persons tested, Mrs. Cynthia Moffatt, 21, and Mrs. Evan Williams, both of nearby Burnaby, can now distinguish the nine letters with ease.

They learned the letters within three months which, Dr. Beddoes said, is faster than the braille method of teaching through touch.

Within a year he hopes to make the machine capable of teaching the complete alphabet. When this is done, he said, it will be possible for a blind person using the device to read eventually at the rate of 180 words a minute, some 40 words a minute more than that guaranteed by the braille method.

The lexiphone cost $15,000 to build. It was supported by the National Research Council and by private sources.

Russians Continue to Lead In Race to Outer Limits

By Reuters

The successful launching of a two-man Russian spaceship today marks another milestone in the Soviet-American space race which began nearly four years ago with the one-orbit flight of Maj. Yuri Gagarin April 12, 1961.

The latest flight brings the total of 12 men and one woman—nine Russians and four Americans—who have blazed the trail into space.

The United States plans to launch its two-man Gemini capsule next week as part of the U.S. assault on the moon.

Gagarin's flight was followed by the first U.S. orbital flight by Col. John Glenn, with three orbits Feb. 20, 1962.

In June, 1963, Col. Valery Bykovsky and the first spacewoman, Valentina Tershkova, orbited the earth simultaneously in two space ships.

Bykovsky completed 81 and Valentina 48 orbits.

SCORE BIG 'FIRST'

Last October, Russia scored another "first" in the space race and the most important breakthrough so far when it successfully launched a three-man space ship.

The three-man crew were Col. Vladimir Komarov, Konstantin Feoktistov and Lieut. Boris Yegorov. They completed a 16-orbit flight of the earth.

The full list of previous space flights is:

April 12, 1961—First spaceman, Maj. Yuri Gagarin, who completed one orbit.

Aug. 6, 1961—Maj. Gherman Titov, 17 orbits.

Feb. 20, 1962 — Col. John Glenn, first American in orbit—three orbits.

May 24, 1962—Cmdr. Malcolm Scott Carpenter, U.S., three orbits.

Aug. 11, 1962 — Maj.-Andrian Nikolayev, Soviet Union, 64 orbits.

Aug. 12, 1962 — Col. Pavel Popovich, Soviet Union, 48 orbits.

Oct. 3, 1962 — Cmdr. Walter Schirra, U.S., five orbits.

May 15, 1963 — Maj. Leroy Gordon Cooper, U.S., 22 orbits.

June 14, 1963—Col. Valery Bykovsky, Soviet Union, 81 orbits.

June 16, 1963 — Valentina Tereshkov (first woman) Soviet Union, 48 orbits.

Oct. 12, 1964—Col. Vladimir Komarov, Konstantin Feoktistov and Lieut. Boris Yegorov, (first multi-man flight) Soviet Union, 16 orbits.

JUST LIKE GREENLAND

Home Under Dust Planned on Moon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Army engineers and map experts believe it will be possible to build living quarters and other structures both on the surface of the moon and below it.

This view was made public today by Brig. Gen. E. Wilhoyt Jr., assistant chief of engineers for support of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Underground housing, similar to that which the army engineers have already built under the Greenland icecap, is believed essential on the moon for protection from tiny meteorites where there is no shielding atmosphere.

"Construction tasks on the moon will probably be quite similar to those on earth," Wilhoyt said.

"But restrictions imposed by the lunar suit, reduced gravity, near vacuum conditions, temperature extremes and other environmental conditions will require development of completely new construction tool, equipment and building techniques," he added.

Wilhoyt, along with other army experts, has been studying thousands of photographs of the moon sent back by the Ranger lunar probes. He disclosed the conclusions of the study today in the current issue of the Army Information Digest, an official publication.

"Ranger VII photos have greatly increased our knowledge of the moon; they indicate that there are many more craters, many very small, in the lowlands than was first believed," Wilhoyt wrote.

"The surface of the moon is probably made up of low density rock covered by a few inches of dust with 'drifts' up to several feet deep in some places," he said.

Scientists have disagreed widely since the Ranger VII flight last August on the probable depth of the dust. Opinions have ranged from a few inches to more than 100 feet. Ranger VIII photographs obtained last month did little to clear up the differences.

Space Ship Orbits Once Every 90.9 Min.

MOSCOW (AP)—Text of the first official Soviet announcement on the launching of spaceship Voskhod II, as distributed by Tass news agency:

At 10 hours Moscow time (2 a.m. EST) March 18, 1965, a powerful Soviet booster orbited space ship Voskhod II (Sunrise II), manned by a crew composed of ship commander pilot-cosmonaut Col. Pavel Belyayev and co-pilot cosmonaut Lt.-Col. Alexsei Leonov.

The orbit of the space ship is close to the prescribed one.

According to preliminary data, the space ship satellite is orbiting the earth once every 90.9 minutes, its minimum distance from the earth (perigee) and its maximum (apogee) are 173 and 495 kilometres (107.5 and 307.5 miles), respectively, and the orbit angle is about 65 degrees.

Two-way radio communications are constantly maintained with the spaceship Voskhod II.

The report by the ship's commander Pavel Belyayev and telemetric data show that the crew withstood satisfactorily the orbiting and the transition to weightlessness.

FEELING WELL

The crew are working in accordance with their program of observations and are feeling well.

The information from aboard the spaceship Voskhod II is sent on the frequencies of 143.625, 17.36 and 18,035 megacycles. The ship also carries a "signal" transmitter working on the frequency of 1.996 megacycles.

All the equipment on board the spaceship is functioning normally. Further reports about the progress of the flight will be transmitted by all Soviet radio stations.

Parachute Jump Leg Break Slowed Training for Trip

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Pavel Belyayev, 39, commander of the new Voskhod space ship, is the oldest cosmonaut yet launched into space.

Born June 26, 1925, he is nearly 10 years older than his space companion, Alexsei Leonov, who was born in Siberia May 30, 1934.

Both are members of the Communist party, both are married and both are good parachutists.

Belyayev was born in the village of Chelyshevo, in the Vologda region of northern Russia, and Leonov in Listvyanka, in the Kemerovo region.

After finishing school in 1942, Belyayev worked as a lathe operator in an arms factory, but the following year he joined the army.

LEONOV
. . . steps outside

He volunteered for flying school and graduated in 1945 in time to be a fighter pilot in the war against Japan.

He and his wife Tatyana have two daughters, Irina, 15, and Lyudmila, 10.

STUDIES ENGINEERING

Leonov is a parachute instructor and is studying at an aviation engineering academy.

Moscow television said he was brought up in a large and happy family. His father, Arkhip Leonov, now is a pensioner. His mother Yvdokiya also is still alive.

Leonov and his wife Svetlana have one daughter, Viktoriya, four.

Belyayev lost nearly a year in his space training when he broke a leg in a parachute jump in 1961, but today there is no trace of the fracture.

He and Leonov trained together for more than a year. "We understand each other very well," he told the Soviet press agency Novosti. "At times it seems that we read each other's thoughts."

Belyayev was one of the six children of Ivan Belyayev, a junior medical worker in a local hospital. His mother used to work on a collective farm.

He was trained for two years at a naval flying school, finishing in 1945. In 1956 he came to Moscow to study at the Air Force Academy.

Novosti said his skill as a pilot recommended him for training as a cosmonaut. He is especially respected for his sense of discipline and his ability to use his time wisely, the agency added.

He imparts his love of music to his daughter Lyudmila.

Leonov was described as a crack-pilot, a remarkable sportsman and a gifted painter.

His grandfather was exiled to Siberia by the Czarist government after taking part in the unsuccessful 1905 revolution.

His father, now 73, began as an examiner in the Donbass region of the Ukraine and later became chairman of a local Soviet (council) in the Kemerovo region, where Leonov was born, the eighth child of a family of nine.

He completed his 10 years of school in Kaliningrad, formerly Keonigsberg in East Prussia, where the family moved after the Second World War.

Russian Walk In Space 'Giant Step Forward'

LONDON (Reuters) — British scientists today greeted Russia's achievement in sending a man space-walking as a fantastic effort and a big step toward making possible the assembly of huge orbiting space platforms.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Jodrell Bank radio astronomy station, said:

"The exit of a man from an orbiting spacecraft adds another touch of fantasy to the world's space exploits.

"It has long been recognized as an essential step in the task of joining units to form large orbiting space platforms," he said.

"In the particular case of the Russian programs there are reasons for believing that the establishment of a large orbiting space platform is an essential step in their manned lunar landing," Lovell said.

"The degree of achievement of the Russian scientists and engineers can be gauged by placing the exploit in relation to the American Gemini program, which is unlikely to achieve a similar exercise until later this year," he said.

Canadian Content TV Case Dismissed

BARRIE, Ont. (CP)—Magistrate Gordon Foster called Wednesday for improved communication between the Board of Broadcast Governors and individual television stations when he dismissed a charge against Ralph Snelgrove Television Limited.

The magistrate had reserved decision after a day-long hearing last November. The company was charged with having less than 55 per cent Canadian content on CKVR-TV during a four-week period last May.

A BBG official testified at that time that by his calculations the station offered only 50.46 per cent Canadian content during the period in question.

He said the board calculates programming times in blocks from the start of the first program and does not consider commercial, public service and promotion inserts as separate programming regardless of where they are produced.

Charles Tiernev, the station's general sales manager, said he calculated the content for the same period at 55.29 per cent, adding that Canadian-produced commercials, and other messages were counted in his calculations.

Magistrate Foster said evidence showed areas of difference regarding calculation of logs and some doubt in regard to what could be classified as programming.

He expressed surprise that the BBG would correct inaccuracies found in station logs without notifying the station of them, and he found the station lax in completing and correcting errors in its logs.

Mom Seeks House Funds For Orphans

PETERBOROUGH Ont, (CP)—Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte said here Wednesday night she is going to build a "Peterborough house" as part of the child care centre she established in Nigeria after leaving Canada two years ago.

Mrs. Whyte, on a 10-month North American speaking and fund-raising tour, said that money contributed by her supporters here will pay for the maintenance of a house mother and seven children at her orphanage in the isolated village of Aiyetoro in the northern region of Nigeria.

Mrs. Whyte went to Africa after her homes for children in Canada were closed for not complying with provincial regulations. She operated a home near Bowmanville, Ont., and later moved to British Columbia.

She ends her tour in Oshawa, Ont., Friday.

ALBERTA WILL FIGHT COMPULSORY MEDICARE

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government served notice Wednesday that it will fight any attempt to set up a compulsory national health insurance plan in Canada.

Health Minister Dr. J. Donovan Ross said if the federal government insists on a compulsory national plan, Alberta wants to stay out.

"We would not be prepared to depart from a voluntary program," he said. Alberta has a volutary medical care insurance plan.

Dr. Ross said the government believes any medical plan should be voluntary also, because the experience of other nations has shown that government can't afford compulsory health schemes.

EXPERT PREDICTS

Brain Studies to End Necessity for Couch?

Research being carried out at the University of Victoria neuropsychology laboratory may help lead to discovering the reasons for basic human behavior, it was suggested this week.

"A more profound knowledge of brain functions may help us to know why young adolescents are enamored with the Beatles or why the colors red and yellow have a different emotional impact on people than blue and green," said Dr. William Gaddes, a neuropsychologist.

"It will also help to discover why jealousy and forms of hostility occur in some personalities and not others.

"When we understand the physiology of the brain depressive and the normal, and this leads to controlling it, psychiatrists will be obsolete and will be replaced by neurological-psychological therapists," he told a meeting of the University Extension Association.

"Until that happens society must supply recreation and therapy centres for the neurologically impaired. Automation will increase the leisure time of the mildly impaired and we will have to prepare for this as well."

CELL TISSUE

Dr. Gaddes said research is being carried out into the structure of cell tissue at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"If man can produce mental tissue there need not be any mental retardation and if we can learn enough about cell chemistry we can teach the body to produce mental tissue.

"The mentally handicapped child of today faces a far brighter future than in the past," said Dr. Gaddes.

City Flowers Painting Presented to Vaniers

A water-color painting by Emily Sartain of Victoria — Canadian Wild Flowers from Coast to Coast—has been presented to Madame Georges Vanier, wife of the governor-general of Canada.

It will be hung at their official residence at Rideau Hall, Ottawa.

Miss Sartain was commissioned to paint this national flower study by Toronto Garden Club. It was created in her studio at 1020 Cook Street, and presented to Madame Vanier in Toronto last Friday.

"I tried to include as many Canadian wild flowers as possible," Miss Sartain said, "but of course they had to conform to the general color scheme."

Included were the Pacific dogwood of British Columbia, the wild rose of Alberta, the prairie crocus of Manitoba, the trillium of Ontario, the trailing arbutus of Nova Scotia, the blue iris of Quebec and the pitcher plant of Newfoundland.

GARDEN CLUB

The painting was displayed at the new Civic Garden Centre in Toronto before presentation to Madame Vanier by Mrs. George Masters, president of the Toronto Garden Club.

"I felt greatly honored by being asked to produce this work," Miss Sartain said. "It was a gift to Madame Vanier on the occasion of her visit to the civic garden centre."

Citizenship Withheld From Dutch 'Athiests

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Stanley Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court upheld Wednesday a Cayuga county judge's decision denying Canadian citizenship to a Dutch husband and wife because they do not believe in God.

Mr. Justice Schatz emphasized in his 41-page judgment that his review is limited only to a consideration of Judge W. W. Leach's jurisdiction and the law as he applied it.

Judge Leach had earlier refused to recommend Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bergsma of Caledonia, Ont., as being suitable to be granted citizenship under the Canadian Citizenship Act of 1954.

Mr. Bergsma, who came here nine years ago, had admitted to Judge Leach that his family does not attend church. He told the judge that if his children want to join a church, "that is up to them."

Judge Leach had replied: "The things that we believe in this country stand for Christianity . . . being honest and believing in Christ's teachings.

CHRISTIAN WAYS

"Not everybody follows this, but that is what we try to attain in this country, the Christian way of life. I feel you must have some kind of faith, but you don't seem to believe in anything from what I can gather."

Judge Leach had ruled that the Bergsmas could not take the oath of allegiance as prescribed in the Citizenship Act.

Mr. Justice Schatz said in his report that originally in common law a person could not be accepted as a witness unless he believe in God. He said that nothing in the Citizenship Act has relaxed this requirement.

The judgment noted that the Canadian Bill of Rights, calling for freedom of religion, was passed after the Citizenship Act and its regulations.

NO INTERFERENCE

The Supreme Court judge said: "The Canadian Parliament has in the Citizenship Act declared the requirements for obtaining the privilege of Canadian citizenship, and the Bill of Rights in no way affects the purpose or effect of that statute."

He said Judge Leach made no error in law that would deprive him of jurisdiction, and the Ontario Supreme Court could not interfere with the judge's decision on that ground.

'MOST UNUSUAL CASE'

Woman Needs 2 Jobs To Keep 2 Husbands

VANCOUVER (CP)—"This is a most unusual case," commented Magistrate Gordon Scott Wednesday as he heard the amazing details of the double life of Joan Mae Celli, 42.

She peaded guilty to bigamy and court was told not only was she married twice, but kept up two homes for two mates only blocks apart and held down two jobs to help support them.

Her counsel, Gordon Dickson, told the court the attractive woman married Dominic Celli in the 1940s and they had two children. In 1949 to help support the family she began a daytime job at a hospital.

Then, 1958, she met William Millar and they were married a short time later. It was then her double life began for the two homes were only blocks apart. To help the second husband she got another job—as a waitress in the evenings.

It wasn't until 1960, counsel told the court, that the first husband discovered his wife had married a second time.

Magistrate Scott ordered the woman remanded to March 24 for sentence but instructed Crown officials to interview both husbands and report back to the court.

FORMER external affairs minister Howard Green predicted Wednesday night there will be a federal election in June and he will be a candidate. Mr. Green said he will run as a Conservative in his old riding of Vancouver Quadra.

10-DAY CRUISE STARTS

Escorts Leave for Manoeuvres

Two Esquimalt-based warships left Wednesday on a 10-day cruise involving exercises off the western U.S. coast.

The destroyer-escort HMCS Qu'Appelle and ocean escort HMCS Ste Therese will rendezvous during the cruise with three other Pacific command ships returning from a 10-week junket to Central America.

They are HMC ships Yukon, Sussexvale and New Glasgow now en route here after cadet training exercises.

A three-day liberty and recreation stay in Portland, Ore., is scheduled for Qu'Appelle, Jonquiere and Ste. Therese from Friday to Tuesday.

After the Portland visit, they will be joined for work-up exercises by the submarine HMCS Grilse.

HMCS Qu'Appelle will leave the group and return here March 26.

But ocean escorts Jonquiere, Ste. Therese and Grilse, conducting manoeuvres en route, will visit San Francisco for the March 27-28 weekend.

March 29 they will be joined by Yukon, Sussexvale and New Glasgow. All warships and the sub will return here April 2.

Dependents of personnel serving in Yukon, Sussexvale and New Glasgow will be admitted to HMC Dockyard that morning at a time to be announced by the RCN later.

Shared Costs Opting Out Bill Termed Farce

Tax Abatements Part of Program

OTTAWA (CP) — Start of debate on a government bill to allow provinces to choose to stay out of a number of shared-costs programs was greeted with scorn Wednesday by opposition members.

To the Conservatives, the bill was a hoax. A New Democratic MP called it a mouse and a Social Credit spokesman termed it a fraud.

Today the Commons was to hear a report from its committee on procedure, then continue with the opting-out bill at least for the rest of the week.

The government, bowing to demands by opposition parties, agreed not to go back to consideration of the Canada Pension Plan until all hearings of the Commons - Senate pensions committee has been translated into French.

Prime Minister Pearson said he has ordered federal translators to work around the clock and during the weekend so that the translation would be ready either Monday or "early next week."

SEEKS TRANSLATION

The pension bill appeared headed for final approval this week until Creditiste Gerard Perron moved Tuesday that it be shelved until a French translation of the hearings was available. He charged the government with neglect and of violating the rights of French-language MPs.

In a prepared statement, Mr. Pearson said his government is doing all it can to establish "absolute equality" between the two official languages in the public service. But there were practical difficulties. The government had no objection to going on with other business until the translation was ready.

Giving reasons for the opting out bill, Finance Minister Gordon said most of the shared-costs programs fall under provincial jurisdiction and transfers of money from federal to provincial governments had reached such magnitude that they (the provinces) should not be divorced from the responsibility of raising it.

Provinces getting out of the programs would be compensated by personal income tax abatements or by cash payments.

Mr. Gordon stressed that there would be no lessening of national standards in the joint programs. The provinces opting out must agree to continue to operate the programs under existing conditions.

MOVED AMENDMENT

Conservative Marcel Lambert, leading off opposition criticism, moved an amendment to suspend the bill until a federal - provincial conference discussed priorities for the 17 programs involved.

It was a hoax, he said, because it didn't allow the provinces "one iota of latitude." While there was unease in Canada about the federal government giving way to the provinces, the present bill was innocuous.

Colin Cameron (NDP—Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands) said his party probably would vote for the government bill. But it wasn't an earth-shaking as it was supposed to be.

But he should have known that "when this mountain of a government goes into labor, it usually produces a mouse."

H. A. Olson (SC — Medicine Hat) said the bill merely gives the appearance of allowing the provinces to handle their own programs.

But the bill produced no new revenue for the provinces, nor did it allow them to change the programs on their own.

Thus it could be termed a farce.

FAROUK
. . . 'prince charming'

Fat, Forgotten Ex-King Farouk Dies in Italy

ROME (Reuters) — Former King Farouk, the "prince charming" who ascended the throne of Egypt at 16, died here today in exile at the age of 45, fat and almost forgotten.

In his pockets when he collapsed at the fashionable Ile de France restaurant on the Aurelian Way outside Rome were a pistol, the dark glasses in which he was always photographed, 97,000 lire (about $160) and a pocket mirror, police said.

Farouk collapsed over the table after dining on oysters and roast lamb with a mysterious blonde whom police declined to identify. Waiters rushed to his assistance and he was taken to Rome's San Camillo Hospital by ambulance.

He was put in an oxygen tent, but died after a few minutes. A doctor at the mortuary today said there had been no sign of any relatives wishing to see the body.

The former monarch, dethroned in the Egyptian revolution of 1952, was living in an apartment in the Parioli district of the Italian capital, which is popular with diplomats and foreigners.

MARRIED TWICE

Farouk was married twice—to Queen Farida, by whom he had three daughters, and to Queen Narriman, who presented him with an heir, Crown Prince Ahmed Fuad, in January, 1952. Both marriages ended in divorce.

Farouk was born Feb. 11, 1920, the only son of King Fuad I. When he succeeded his father he had a fortune which was later believed to have provided him with a peak income of at least $5,000,000 a year.

But his behavior soon became headline news throughout the world—except in Egypt, where censorship obscured it.

A military coup led by Gen. Mohammed Naguib overthrew Farouk in 1952 and he was forced to abdicate in favor of his baby son.

But the following year little Ahmed Fuad also was deposed and Egypt became a republic.

PARADES APPROVED

Negroes Hail Court Ruling

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Civil rights workers were heartened today by a federal judge's sanction of a 50 - mile march from Selma to Montgomery and by establishment of ground rules for parades and demonstrations in the Alabama capital.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. rejoiced over the court order requiring state police to protect demonstrators instead of interfering with them. He promised a decision during the day on when the pilgrimage will start.

"We look forward to seeing the governor comply with the court order," said King.

The Negro integration leader also said he hopes Governor George Wallace will "see a delegation of people from all over the state when we arrive in Montgomery" at the end of the march. Wallace did not comment.

King and other civil rights leaders joined Montgomery city and country representatives in signing an agreement declaring that "parade permits for peaceful demonstrations should be applied for and granted."

While that meeting was in progress, Willie Ricks, a field worker for the Student non-violent Co-ordinating Committee, told a church gathering that 2,000 Tuskegee Institute students planned a march in Montgomery today "to call on George Wallace."

There were these other developments on the racial scene:

1. President Johnson sent his voting rights bill to Congress and said it would "help rid the nation of racial discrimination" at the ballot box.

2. Selma police arrested 36 white ministers — two of them women — as they approached Mayor Joseph T. Smitherman's house with picket signs. They headed toward the mayor's red brickhouse after marching on the Dallas county courthouse with about 700 others. The ministers were charged with parading without a permit and bond set at $200 each.

3. In Washington, Representative John Bell Williams (Dem Miss.) told the House of Representatives that he considered King "the most dangerous man in America" and a "godless individual who is not interested in religion." King received the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize and is co-pastor with his father of an Atlanta Baptist church.

4. Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem. La.) received an honorary degree from Oklahoma City University in the privacy of his Oklahoma city hotel room after student objections caused cancellation of a convocation. The National Association fo rthe Advancement of Colored People protested the hotel room presentation.

5. About 300 students, mostly white, staged a sit - down - in-slush at the front gate of the White House. The gathering was called by the SNCC.

No Proof of Assault In Tiff With Police

Magistrate William Ostler Wednesday told a man convicted of impaired driving he was lucky he was not jailed for assault.

He dismissed the assault charge against Peter D. Lubin, 3155 Somerset after a two-hour trial in city court.

Court was told Lubin was picked up on an impaired driving charge March 2 and a scuffle resulted in the police station while he was waiting for a sobriety test.

But Magistrate Ostler ruled there was a reasonable doubt Lubin had formed the intent to scratch Const. Gordon Bennett's face during the ruckus.

The magistrate added police should have placed the beligerent man in "a padded cell if necessary" to await the test.

Lubin earlier pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $500 and barred from driving for one year.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS, Eng. (Reuters) — The Queen Wednesday smashed a bottle of wine on the prow of the huge 100,000-ton British Admiral to launch the biggest oil tanker ever built in Europe.

Two Drivers Injured In Three-Car Crash

Two three car collisions in Greater Victoria Wednesday sent two drivers to hospital.

A crash at Tattersall and Savannah in Saanich resulted in minor injuries for Mark E. Haynes, 16, and Eva Blight, 23, 56 Midwood.

Both were later released from hospital.

The accident occurred when Haynes' vehicle, proceeding east on Tattersall, was in collision with two westbound cars.

Driver of the other car was Walter Valette, 39, of Edmonton. He and his passenger escaped injury.

About $2,100 damage was done to the vehicles.

No injuries resulted from the Oak Bay accident at Uplands and Lansdowne involving three distaff drivers.

Police said a car driven on Uplands by Edith Day, 4299 Gordon Head Rd., collided with a car driven by Joan Riley, 3175 Exeter, bumping it into another driven by Susan Gill, 3681 Crestview.

COUNTY TRIAL WITH JURIES HELD VALID

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice Angelo Branca ruled Tuesday that county court judges have the power to conduct criminal trials before a jury.

This was the effect of the Supreme Court justice's decision in which he dismissed an appeal by Clarence Smith against a four-month sentence imposed in county court for damaging plumbing fixtures at Oakalla prison.

Smith appealed on the ground that B.C. Legislature amendments to the law giving county court judges the right to hold criminal jury trials were invalid.

Mr. Justice Branca held that the legislation was valid. He said it was supported by authority going back to the British North America Act.

SLOWS GROWTH

Cold Aids Easter Flowers

The latest cool weather which has sent many people hustling back into winter overcoats has saved the annual spring flower crop.

Earlier unseasonable warmth had raised fears that daffodils would have to be picked early and placed in cold storage before shipping east for the Easter trade.

But Jack Crossley, horticulturist at the Saanich experimental farm, said the recent cold nights had held back growth without damaging the blossoms.

Cane fruits and strawberries suffered a little damage during the frosty nights but Alan Littler, district horticulturist for the department of agriculture, said it was "negligible."

Heavy damage has been reported on the mainland.

District weather forecaster William Mackie said the cool weather will last for at least a few more days with night temperatures of 25-32 degrees and daytime highs of around 45.

Winds will be from the northwest at 15-miles an hour.

40% Vote Duplication In One Poll Charged

OTTAWA (CP)—An allegation went into the House of Commons records Wednesday that 40 per cent of the names on the voters list in one poll in Burnaby-Coquitlam constituency for the 1963 federal election also appeared on the lists in other federal constituencies in British Columbia.

The allegation is included in a letter to the Commons election committee from Morland T. Brown of New Westminster, B.C. The letter was tabled in the Commons Wednesday.

In reporting the tabling Wednesday, The Canadian Press erroneously quoted the letter as saying that 40 per cent of the names on the list in the entire constituency were duplicated in other ridings.

One sentence in the five-page longhand letter said "poll one Burnaby-Coquitlam was duplicated elsewhere in B.C. to the extent of 40 per cent."

The official report on the 1963 election shows there were 68 names on the list in poll No. 1 and that 59 cast ballots.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, who won the seat, received 35 votes. The others went to: Rene J. Gamache, Social Credit 5; Tom Kent, Liberal, 8; Lyn Morrow, Conservative, 11.

The count for the entire constituency was: Mr. Douglas, 19,067; Mr. Gamache, 3,917; Mr. Kent, 14,148; Mr. Morrow, 3,990.

A spokesman for Mr. Douglas said today that poll No. 1 is in an isolated logging area in the northeast corner of the constituency and that many of the voters were loggers who worked there but had their homes elsewhere.

Getting and Spending

THE ANNUAL REPORT OF MR. Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, indicated some uneasiness as to the prospects of the Canadian economy in the years ahead.

Mr. Rasminsky's emphasis, as an Ottawa dispatch on this page by Maurice Western notes, is on the fact that Canada may have a more difficult time earning money abroad since a number of our most important customers are having problems with international payment balances or inflationary pressures which have led them to curtail demand for imports. This could throw more weight on domestic factors — stimulation of consumer demand, for instance — as a means of sustaining Canada's economic growth.

This is a rather doubtful outlook, despite the calm and sober language in which it is stated, since the Canadian economy is simply not tuned to sustain growth through internal consumption. Our population is not large enough and our production has not the diversity of goods which we demand to make this kind of operation practicable. Canadians must sell their products abroad, and in ever-increasing volume, or the country will face stagnation.

Mr. Rasminsky noted in his report that even excluding the exceptional grain sales to the Soviet Union the Canadian balance of payments deficit on current account has not followed its historical tendency to expand during periods of rapid growth. This is technically correct and, in fact, last year's deficit was the lowest since 1954. Even so, the figures on Canada's world trading accounts which have just been released make disturbing reading.

Last year Canada earned a surplus of more than $1.2 billions in dealings with overseas countries. Almost half of that surplus was earned in Britain and about a quarter of it came from wheat sales to Soviet Russia. At the same time Canadian payments to the United States exceeded earnings in that country by almost $1.66 billions, resulting in a deficit in current account payments of about $440 millions.

With nearly three-quarters of Canada's overseas earnings arising from dealings with Britain and Russia—two areas in which it is unlikely that last year's experience will be repeated—it is not difficult to predict trouble for our balance of payments. Couple this with the fact that our deficit in dealings with the United States shows every sign of continuing to increase at a rapid rate due to the demand for American capital and consumer goods, and the outlook is even more uncertain.

Mr. Rasminsky's statement that Canada's payments deficit has not shown its historical tendency to expand during a growth period may, thus, be somewhat misleading. In total the deficit was lower last year but in dealings with the United States, Canada's most important single international business partner, it was up 37 per cent from the previous year. This would seem to indicate not a reversal of the historic trend but rather the masking of the trend by exceptional, and not likely to be repeated, dealings with several other countries.

A Necessary Measure

LEGISLATION PASSED LAST year to set up a three-man board which would control canvassing and selling purportedly in aid of the blind has never been implemented. The result is that the field of promotions for the blind is still open to fly-by-night operators, fast-talking salesmen and hoodwink artists who make a sordid living on the fringe of the law and sometimes well beyond it.

The legislation was urged, over a period of years, by officials and members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, as a means of curtailing questionable sales campaigns, doubtful "magazines for the blind" and other operations which were taking thousands of dollars each year from sighted persons whose sympathies were aroused by such appeals.

The fact is that all of the 2,600 blind persons in British Columbia are eligible for the many services of the CNIB branches throughout the province—and the CNIB never appeals directly to the public for funds. In Victoria and Vancouver the organization is a member of the community chest. Thus independent door-to-door canvasses in aid of the CNIB are always unauthorized.

It was unfortunate that a small group of blind persons in Vancouver became unduly fearful of the scope of the legislation designed to protect them, and believed that it would interfere with their activities even to the point of hampering sale of their homes. This, of course, was quite beyond any intent of the legislation.

Now, as further questioning of the act has been publicized, it would be well if the Attorney-General were to make a full and detailed explanation of the powers granted by the act, the use to be made of them, and the safeguards against misuse. Then the needed protection afforded by the legislation could be implemented.

Three-Way Transport Study

AN INTERESTING FRAME IN which to place the bus problems of Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver has emerged from a recent executive meeting of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Mayor Grant MacEwan of Calgary has announced plans for a Canada-wide study of the transportation problems of urban areas by the federation with the financial support of certain research foundations.

The Calgary chief magistrate indicates the trend the study will take. It will seek a solution within the capabilities of federal, provincial and municipal governments. The issue will no longer be considered solely as a municipal responsibility.

The announcement adds significance to the decision reached by Premier Bennett last month. At that time he accepted the position adopted earlier by Mayor Wilson and Mayor Rathie that provincial, Hydro and municipal leaders should sit around a table and discuss the problem with a view to finding answers to questions now troubling the municipalities.

If to such discussions are to be added the findings of skilled researchers throughout Canada, the prospects of a solution should be increased.

Prosperity By Ignorance

THE RETAIL MERCHANTS' Association of Canada, apparently rejecting the formula devised by the British Board of Trade to established simple annual interest charges on credit purchases, issues a dark warning. (The formula was reviewed on this page, March 8.)

If any government regulations forced disclosure of credit costs in this form, says a Canadian Press report of the association's statement, it could lead to a depression of the country's economy, and to "unscrupulous practices" by some retailers.

Canadians will be surprised to learn that their prosperity depends on this type of ignorance.

What they don't know, won't hurt them, say the association spokesmen—not, at least, until the bills come in.

—Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

By MAURICE WESTERN

Clear Warning From the Banker

MR. RASMINSKY, the governor of the Bank of Canada, is a calm and reasonable man whose reports are couched in language of such sobriety as to discourage reporters in search of front page stories. It is important for this very reason to note that there are currents of definite uneasiness in his 1964 report on the performance and prospects of the Canadian economy. There is no doubt that we have enjoyed an excellent year marked by a most impressive growth rate and a dramatic reduction in the deficit on our international current account. Mr. Rasminsky makes the point that, even if one excludes the exceptional grain sales to the Soviet Union, the current account deficit has not followed its historical tendency to expand during periods of rapid growth. He cautions, however, that we have been the beneficiaries of "singularly favorable" conditions overseas and also that there has been enough remaining "slack" in the Canadian economy to moderate upward pressures on costs and prices.

Western

These are salutary observations because there is nothing like a boom to cause people to believe in the inevitability of continuing boom.

Outside Influences

As regards the overseas prospect, Mr. Rasminsky says: "While the international economic situation still looks reasonably favorable some of the main countries with which we do business are in balance of payments difficulties or are concerned with the 'over-heating' of their economies and have taken steps to limit the expansion of demand. This suggests that gains from external factors may be more difficult to come by than has been the case during the past few years."

On the second point, he notes that in certain industries there is (now) for practical purposes no unused capacity and in some geographical areas shortages of certain types of skilled labor have appeared. "It seems clear that the absorption of the remaining amounts of unused resources in the economy will be more difficult, and that we shall have to rely to an increasing extent on improving the adaptability of our growing resources in order to avoid serious bottleneck problems and price pressures." Mr. Rasminsky emphasizes that, even in 1964 with slack to absorb and unemployment averaging 4.7 per cent, the consumer price index rose by nearly two per cent.

Balanced Budget Question

This is interesting in view of some of the advice now being showered on Mr. Gordon as he prepares for his 1965 budget presentation. The minister is in a position in which, by the Keynesian logic, he would probably be justified in striking for a balanced or surplus budget after many years of deficit financing. There are those who consider such a course undesirable and who argue, generally, along the following lines:

What we now require, in their view, is a new definition of economic adversity which would justify large tax cuts producing new deficits massive enough to generate sufficient additional purchasing power in Canada to achieve our desired economic objectives. One reads suggestions, for example, that the times are bad enough to justify deficit financing so long as unemployment remains above a now acceptable rate of three per cent.

Deficit financing, like monetary policy, affects the whole economy. If the existing surplus manpower areas are, in effect, to dictate the budget pattern, what is to happen in areas where there is no longer unused capacity? If the price index rose two per cent in a year of continuing slack, what is it likely to do a few months hence if there is a deliberate decision to enlarge the narrowing deficit?

Mr. Rasminsky notes with approval the growth objectives of the first annual review of the Economic Council of Canada. He observes, however, that the "mixture of economic policies most likely to achieve the kind of economic performance we want is complex and not easy to prescribe." Repeatedly, he warns (as, indeed, did the Economic Council) that price stability and economic efficiency are essential to success.

Special Effort Needed

Thus he writes: "It is clear that, if the growth (projected in the report) is to be sustained, a special effort will have to be made to maintain price stability and to avoid balance of payments difficulties."

Again noting that fiscal policy, montary policy and public debt management "are by no means sufficient in themselves," he adds: "Indeed, excessive reliance on these general policies and the resulting neglect of the other policies that are required to encourage sustainable economic expansion has in many countries caused serious increases in prices and costs, critical problems in the balance of payments and periodic retardation of growth. In addition, therefore, to being concerned with the appropriate management of over-all demand, we must be concerned with the efficiency with which our productive resources are used."

It will be recalled that the Economic Council elaborated a particular pattern of growth to 1970 which would have resulted by that year in a current account deficit of $1.5 to $2 billions. The council was concerned with this prospect and Mr. Rasminsky endorses this concern. Canada's exports, he says, must do much more than keep pace with the general growth of markets. There must be "continuous headway in achieving a greater penetration of export markets and in bettering our capacity to meet import competition." Again comes the warning: "To improve the competitiveness of the Canadian economy we have to aim at large improvements in our productivity and at a performance in respect of price and cost stability that compares favorably with that of our principal trading partners."

The warning, indeed, becomes almost a liturgy. It is up to governments to provide the lead but, reports Mr. Rasminsky, business must also contribute through imagination, initiative and foresight while the whole community must recognize "that the level of real income we can enjoy depends on our productivity and that the only way real incomes can be increased is through the more effective utilization of our resources."

Risk of Frustration

The governor returns to his point. "Unless we act in a way that takes full account of these facts, there is danger that the efforts made to obtain the high level of employment that we need will be frustrated by serious price instability and balance of payments difficulties."

Mr. Rasminsky is no alarmist and he does not seek headlines by crying wolf. But his warning about "general policies" appears distinctly relevant to some current thinking about Mr. Gordon's budget problems. It must also be significant that he punctuates his report with admonitions about costs and prices which have not in late years been fashionable preoccupations in the Canadian capital.

HARVEST OF THE YEARS

"I am amazed to find how often the past comes back vividly to life when I am writing. Episodes long forgotten or incidents dismissed as trivial, become important; they acquire significance; and they are more real now than when they took place. I could almost say that nothing really happens until afterwards. And this idea leads me to realise that life has a wholeness; the years, the days, the minutes do not pass; they are gathered. Perhaps the Gallic races appreciate this fact better than we do; if I were a Frenchman, for instance, I would not say, "I am sixteen years old." I would say, instead, "I have sixteen years."

Another St. Patrick's Day has been and gone and no society with St. Patrick as its patron has yet formed in Victoria. A St. Patrick's Society has been formed there and has a large membership.

FROM WASHINGTON

Disgrace and Humiliation

THE State of Alabama as ruled by Gov. George Wallace is in open defiance and contempt of the Constitution of the United States. There is no possible doubt that a very large part of the Negro citizens of Alabama are deliberately denied the right to vote. In Selma, with the connivance of the governor and by the brutal actions of the state troopers, American citizens have been denied their constitutional right to assemble and their constitutional right to petition and protest agains the denial of the right to vote.

Lippmann

The issue between the State of Alabama and the United States is clearly and sharply drawn. Shall the law be defied? No one, no leader of either political party, is raising the question of whether the decision to compel the State of Alabama to obey the law is an invasion of the rights of the state. For it is evident and obvious to all that there can be no right of any state to nullify the Constitution of the Union to which it belongs, or to abrogate the Bill of Rights.

Overwhelming Support

There is no doubt that the Congress will support overwhelmingly the president's call for legislation to put an end to the widespread disfranchisement of Negro citizens. What is more, the country will support overwhelmingly the enforcement of that law. For the enforcement of that law will be equivalent to putting down a rebellion against the United States.

This time and in this case the issue of civil rights is clear as crystal. There are no fuzzy edges as there were and are on the problem of the desegregation of the schools and of public accommodations. On the question of the right to vote, all the leading Republicans, including Barry Goldwater, are against Gov. Wallace. Today he stands alone. Only the unabashed white supremacists even profess to support him.

Because the basic issue is so clear-cut, the human reaction of the American people to the outrage in Selma is not sicklied over with any pale cast of intellectual doubt. Selma is not only an American tragedy. It is an American disgrace and a profound humiliation.

Selma is what happened in a country which is engaged in defending freedom throughout the world! Selma is what has happened in a country which is talking about freedom in Asia and Africa and the Americas!

Unless Selma is expunged by a mighty national act of repentance and reparation, how shall Americans look themselves in the face when they get up in the morning?

Safety Helmets

That the wearing of safety helmets by motorcyclists should be encouraged there is no doubt and indeed their usage is increasing in proportion to increasing registrations of the two-wheelers. However, the Bill now before the legislature, which if passed would forbid motorcyclists and passengers to ride without such headgear, is in the opinion of the Victoria Motorcycle Club very wrong.

This Bill will establish the precedent whereby a provincial government has infringed on an individual's right to decide what article of clothing he might wear or not wear.

And what might the motorcyclist expect next? Compulsory goggles (riders have been known to be struck by insects)? Compulsory directional signals? Compulsory light paint-jobs or light clothing for night riding? Compulsory riding belts as assurance against back injury? A total ban on pillion riding?

It is a dismal fact that in all too many instances those who advocate compulsory measures will not be themselves directly affected. One would wager that if a single MLA were an active motorcyclist he would study this Bill in a different light.

He might consider the plight of the rider far from home who has his helmet stolen! Or of the father who has to purchase helmets for his youngsters of different head sizes before he can take them for a ride! He might give thought to those thousands of casual rides home from work that motorbike riders give their friends. At one stroke of the pen all those go unless the passenger happens to have a helmet with him.

Surely no other group of road-users could be discriminated against so unfairly. Is it unreasonable for those thousands of mature motorcyclists in B.C. to ask that they be allowed to decide for themselves when it is prudent to wear safety helmets? Any compulsion should be done at the parental level if minors are involved.

BEN HIRCOCK,
President,
Victoria Motorcycle Club, Inc.

Intemperate

Montreal Gazette

IT IS one thing for members of Parliament to have strong opinions, even outrageous opinions. It is quite another thing for members to lose such control of themselves that they use language which is clearly forbidden by parliamentary tradition, that they treat the authority of the Speaker with contempt, and that they turn a sitting of the House into an ill-mannered free-for-all.

No one would have any right to object to strong convictions, strongly expressed, however much they might disagree with them. This is a fact of life of any Parliament. It also has to be accepted that from time to time members will lose their tempers.

But these things have to be kept within limits. And it is the right and duty of the Speaker to keep them within limits. When members ignore the Speaker, and make their own passions the standard of conduct in the House, then Parliament becomes threatened by anarchy.

Fortunately, a voice of calm and reason was injected into the turmoil by a former Speaker, Mr. Marcel Lambert. He pointed out correctly that "uncomfortable and regrettable language" had crept into the House during the past year, and that rather than create a crisis over one incident out of many, "the sensible thing to do would be for all members to resolve not to use such language . . ". and that we get on with the business of the Houe."

This is indeed good advice. It is only unfortunate that Parliament's behavior should make such advice necessary.

Southern Magnet

Montreal La Presse

Industry Minister Drury recently predicted that in a few years, if all goes well, Canadian motorists will get good news as a result of the United States-Canadian tariff agreement on car parts. It's more than probable that car prices will stop rising. . . But it also is said that the agreement will have wider repercussions, that it will open a door to the south for Canada.

Not just autos, but also entire sections of related industries and then other industries may take advantage of the chance to obtain "hunting licences" for the U.S. market. A North American common market is mentioned. Trade right now is not free but closer economic ties between the two countries are being established.

The result of such tendencies is that the industry of Canada is exposed to new stimulation and so is the imagination of the average Canadian.

The average Canadian will wonder why, with such economic gains made possible, the trip down this affluent avenue should not be extended. Especially will he think that way when he is told by an economist that to stay Canadian will cost him $500 a year in the light of what could be saved by a surrender of sovereignty.

So we are heading for a starry destiny, one starred with all the stars of the U.S. flag?

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

The other afternoon I had tea at the home of a friend who lives on Beach Drive, facing out to the Olympic Mountains and with Trial Islands in the foreground, for good measure.

The sun was shining. The mountains were etched in crisp snow lines against the blue sky. The islands, with their two slender radio booster horns, were humped so close, it looked as if we might easily wade out to them.

"That would be impossible," the oldest one amongst us said, "there's a tide out there that would take you under in a moment."

This oldest one has lived in Victoria all her life. She remembers playing on Shoal Bay Beach when she was a child and seeing the first Trial Islands lightkeeper (he was a friend of her father) land his rowboat on the gravel beach there.

She can look back as a young woman, to walking with her future husband along that shore and seeing the light flash out at steady intervals from its rocky promontory.

In their turn, she took her own children to play on the beach and now that they are grown and away, she again takes a daily walk along the shore where she can see the islands and the light.

* * *

She told us of a man who at one time leased the islands from the Dominion government. He turned several hundred rabbits loose on the rock and scrub and then sat back to wait for them to multiply. In this way he expected to start an easy and lucrative business.

His dream never came true for, in spite of warnings and threatening signboards, scores of local sportsmen visited the preserve, whenever an opportunity presented, and the rabbits were rapidly turned into stews and pastries for Victoria tables.

In those early days Trial Islands were the mecca for beachcombers.

They landed to recover logs, derelict timber from booms and other drift from which they could make tidy earnings.

"They trapped mink over there, too," this oldest one at the tea party told us.

Indians and Chinese gathered seaweed on the islands, she said. They worked steadily, day after day, harvesting the weed, hauling it ashore, drying it and then transporting it to the downtown Chinese district where it was sold for family soup pots or to be shipped off to China.

* * *

How did the islands receive their name, we asked this woman who remembers so much of the city's early history.

It happened in the days when Esquimalt was a base for the British Navy.

Ships in for repair and refueling used the tiny islands as markers for trial runs before returning to sea. Sailors named the rocks, Trial Islands. Townsfolk caught on. And the name stuck.

The Dominion government established a light and fog alarm station on the islands in 1906 that has been in constant use ever since.

First lightkeeper was Harold Okell. He and his wife, Ada, lived out there for more than 25 years.

Even in those days, the trip ashore could be made in a rowboat in as little as 20 minutes. Then again, if the tide was running strong, it might be two hours.

If a sudden gale blew up it could be several days before the tiny boat got back to the light.

Harold and Ada Okell never left the island together in the 25 years. If one went ashore, the other stayed to tend the light.

"It's quite different today," someone said, as our hostess refilled the teacups.

"Quite different!" agreed the oldest one amongst us.

Her eyes were on a sleek, swift-moving launch that had appeared from the far side of the islands. It cut easily through the chop and churn of the tide and soon was out of sight around the Oak Bay shoreline.

Now the sun was low in the sky. The mountains were turning an opalescent pink and grey. The islands swam in a sea touched with the same colors.

"The light will soon appear," our hostess assured us.

"That's right!" said the one who knows Trial Island so well . . . "it's like a dear old friend. It never changes and it never fails!"

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Walter Alvarez

A mother writes that her child gets a rise in temperature of two or three degrees when he plays very actively. When this happens, she does not worry about an oncoming illness, because the child is active and happy. She wonders if some other children and perhaps adults get fever with excitement.

Yes, I have often heard of this in children, and 60 years ago my professor of children's diseases told us to watch out for children of this type and then to get the mother to throw away her thermometer! He said that this was the best treatment for this type of child!

Years ago, I read the report of an army doctor who found that when a group of soldiers had an exciting poker game they had a definite rise in body temperature.

I remember well a woman who for four years ran a temperature of about 102 degrees every day, and had with it a stomachache. During these four years she did not feel ill and was able to work hard every day. But because her doctors were anxious about her, in the four years they operated and explored her abdomen four times. They expected to find something wrong but they never did find anything.

* * *

Because the patient denied that she had anything gnawing at her heart, I sent for her sister, who told me that the illness was all due to constant friction with the woman's husband. The fever had started when she had married and had found that she and her husband were decidely incompatible. Then the woman got a divorce and instantly her fever and pain were gone.

A year and a half later, she returned with the fever and the stomachache again. This time she was ill because she was having a rough time with an unsuitable and hot-tempered beau who wanted her to marry him. When I got her to put the continent between herself and the beau she was all right and had no more fever. I could tell any number of such stories to show that many people get fever with excitement or anxiety or unhappiness.

* * *

I am sad when I get letters from people who say that perhaps two members of their family have a Mediterranean anemia, and even a famous blood specialist does not know exactly what to do about it.

Another name for this disease is thalassemia. Thalasso, in ancient Greek, meant the sea, and emia refers to blood. This anemia tends to occur in people whose ancestors lived on the shores of the Mediterranean, but it has been found in several parts of the world. Sometimes it is called Cooley's or von Jaksch's disease. It is a hereditary anemia.

It usually appears early in life, with peculiar changes in the blood, and then it tends to progress and get worse. Something goes wrong with the red corpuscles of the blood. Fortunately, it is fairly rare.

* * *

Often in these cases the spleen becomes enormous, reaching clear across the abdomen. The child with thalassemia is usually small for his age, but his head is big. His face has a muddy yellow color, his cheekbones are prominent, the bridge of the nose may be sunken, the eyelids may be puffy, and the child may look somewhat Mongoloid—with Chinese eyes.

Unfortunately, the disease usually is not affected by any form of anti-anemic treatment as yet discovered. Many medicines have been tried out, transfusion of blood have only a temporary value, and should be avoided as much as possible. The removal of the spleen may be helpful. Apparently a person does not miss his spleen when it is removed.

Sask. Plans Better Deal For Indians

REGINA (CP)—Premier Ross Thatcher this week said the treatment of Indians in Saskatchewan compared with the "treatment of Negroes in Selma, Alabama."

Mr. Thatcher, introducing a bill in the legislature to establish an Indian and Metis Affairs Branch, said "the white man in Saskatchewan repeatedly displays intolerance, lack of understanding and complete indifference to the plight of the Indian."

He said about 36,000 people of Indian and Metis background live in Saskatchewan "in conditions of deprivation and squalor that would be the shame of some of the world's most underdeveloped countries."

He said housing is primitive, flush toilets and running water virtually non-existent, heating and roads on reserves are outdated and electricity and telephones in most cases are merely a dream.

"These are just a few of the problems which we have for too long failed to recognize," he said.

Powerful Speech . . . . . . Put Him In Front

LBJ TAKES THE LEAD IN CIVIL RIGHTS

By ROBERT E. BAKER

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has completed an eight-year evolution from foot-dragger to grand marshal of the civil rights parade.

With his speech to the Congress and the nation Monday night, the president leaped to the front and seized the leadership of the movement which had threatened to march away from him in the past two weeks.

The speech, a powerful appeal to unity on civil rights, should reduce tension in two ways.

A southerner himself, the president's words undoubtedly got through to many whites in the south who want to make a constructive peace on the civil rights front. Some southern senators were his most vigorous back-slappers after he completed his appeal.

STAY IN FRAMEWORK

And the speech provided Negroes with a persuasive argument for staying within the framework of the constitution and law and order.
view of the president's commitment, that the federal gov-
No one can say honestly, in ernment now is indifferent to the plight of Negroes anywhere.

The office of the presidency has the history of carrying chief executives to the forefront of the civil rights struggle.

Abraham Lincoln believed in progress, not revolution. But in a crisis, he faced realities and led the way with the emancipation proclamation.

In modern times, Harry Truman was never one to make vigorous speeches in behalf of civil rights as a senator. But as president, he was the first to put the federal government on record against segregation per se.

President Eisenhower was lukewarm on civil rights at first but sent in federal troops to Little Rock to enforce court-ordered school desegregation.

President Kennedy was more inclined to push civil rights through executive action than legislation. But in crisis, he initiated the nation's most comprehensive civil rights bill.

Now President Johnson has completed an even more spectacular evolution. He has always supported every American's right to vote. But as senate majority leader in 1957, he opposed action by legislation because of its divisive effect on the Democratic party and preferred that the struggle be won in the courts and by executive action.

In 1960, he opposed liberal proposals for federal voting registrars in favor of the middle of the road proposal for voting referees which has not worked.

And one of his first moves as vice-president was a decision against liberalizing senate rules which distressed civil rights advocates.

Yet, here he is today, leading the movement. The speech Monday was the work of the president himself. He worked long on it.

Critics still wonder why he didn't make his move immediately after the brutal beating of Selma Negro demonstrators on March 7 and thus take the steam out of a reaction that reached a nationwide crisis.

One White House source said the resounding demands for action by the clergymen, understandable for their concern, nevertheless stiffened the president. The Texan in the White House does not take kindly to ultimatums.

But when he made his move, he made it in grand style.

CUBA EXILE PLOT EXPOSED

By DAN KURZMAN

WASHINGTON—Cuban exile training camps in Nicaragua are being shut down in the wake of a scandal at an exile base in Costa Rica involving a plot to overthrow the Costa Rican government.

The camp in Costa Rica was ordered closed three weeks ago by authorities of that country. The elimination of the three bases that have been operating in Nicaragua is expected to signify an end to exile efforts to stage commando raids on Cuba from Central American bases.

According to representatives of the Revolutionary Recovery Movement (MRR), which had operated the bases under the command of Manuel Artime, leader of the ill-fated Bay of Pigs Expedition, the camps are being closed for strategic reasons.

GOING UNDERGROUND

"The commando approach, it is clear, cannot overthrow Fidel Castro," a spokesman said. "We will henceforth devote ourselves to underground activities inside Cuba."

However, diplomats here speculate that the main factor in the shut-down was a decision of the United States to cut off funds to the MRR as the result of the Costa Rican scandal.

Costa Ricans are understood to believe that the CIA has supported the anti-Castro training activities and therefor should have prevented the exiles from plotting against the Costa Rican government.

The apparent severance of U.S. funds is expected to prevent what might have been a serious deterioration in relations between the two countries.

Reports from Costa Rica indicate that local rightists had been trained and armed at a Cuban exile camp in preparation for a coup in which government leaders were to be assassinated and replaced by a neo-Nazi dictatorship.

SMUGGLING LIQUOR

The exiles are believed to have been motivated in part by the government's discovery of a liquor smuggling conspiracy in which planes from Panama allegedly unloaded their illegal cargoes in the camp. The MRR has denied exile involvement.

The local rightists are also believed to have had promises of arms from Dominican Republic military officers who had lost their jobs in the Dominican government, which was not involved. The rightists plotters are understood to have solicited aid from Nicaraguan authorities as well.

Aside from the coup and liquor scandals, the inefficiency and ineffectiveness of the training groups are believed to be contributing factors to the shutdown. They have been accused of recklessness in their tactics. Their prestige plummeted after the reported capture of two MRR agents in Cuba early last month. These agents apparently kept few secrets from the Castro regime.

Criticism has also been levelled at kangaroo court-style trials that have reportedly been held in the camps for individuals charged with Castorite sympathies. At least one person has died mysteriously.

This lightweight comedy could almost be a skit on American puritanism and the American craze for getting the right kind of wives for business executives who are expected to have the right kind of wives.

It could also be a skit on the voluptuous Gina Lollobrigida, complete with million-dollar wardrobe!

We see her first in a natty leopard-skin suit; then in some magnificent orange-colored underwear—and later in a flesh-toned body stocking which rolls all the way up from her toes to her dainty neck.

You guessed it — she is now Lady Godiva and ready to ride the streets of London on a white horse to match the flesh-toned body stocking

* * *

Gina, in this instance, is a free-thinking firecracker, addicted to protest marches, silk pyjamas for the heathen and The Arts in general.

She seeks to emulate Lady Godiva in a near-nude ride to the U.S. embassy in London to protest the decision of unnamed bureaucrats who have decreed that a fig leaf be added to a work of primitive art.

This itself is great fun, but unfortunately it is entangled with all kinds of artificial gimmickry aimed at keeping the story alive.

Rock Hudson, as an executive of Inter-Allied Petroleum Products, Inc., awaits a promotion to head the corporation's European office at a salary of $200,000 per annum.

"But first," he is told, "you must have the kind of wife who is worthy to help you represent us."

As it happens, Rock has a wife and she is close at hand and really anxious to help him. But she is neither respectable nor reasonable and they have been formally separated for seven years.

In the interests of the firm, public relations man Gig Young encourages Rock to effect a reconciliation.

He does his best but, of course, it isn't really for the firm at all. You can see that from the gleam in his eye. . . Gina may be a screwball and a damn nuisance, but she's a woman and a good-hearted one at that.

City Dancers Win Top Honor In Festival

Two students from the Shelagh Mallard School of highland dancing of Victoria won high honors last weekend at the Vancouver ladies pipe band festival.

Barbara Munro, 1290 Tracksell Avenue, won the under-12 age trophy and Gregor Graves, 859 Ellery, placed first and second in various categories, winning the highland fling trophy. Gregor also placed third in a piping group.

Other outstanding competitors from the school were Carol Lynne Holmes, Wendie Allnut, Shergie Graves and Judyth Thomson of Brentwood. Judyth placed high in the Shean Truibhas event and marked honors in the Irish jig.

There were as many as 40 contestants in some classes.

Housing Shortage Concerns Elderly

The Silver Threads Service Wednesday moved to press the city and senior governments for assistance to relieve "an acute shortage" of low rental housings for senior citizens.

The Community Chest agency at its annual meeting unanimously endorsed a motion calling for the preparation of a brief on Greater Victoria housing needs for elderly people.

Owen Karn, president, said the housing shortage will grow more acute as the senior citizens population increases in the city.

He noted that non-profit housing provided by Kiwanis Village, Matson Lodge, various churches and Victoria Senior Citizens Society, all have long waiting lists of applicants.

SHORTAGE AGGRAVATED

This shortage had been further aggravated over the past two years by older homes, within the one-half to one mile circle, being demolished to make way for commercial projects, he said.

"Each of these homes housed eight to 15 senior citizens at a moderate rent," he stated. "These displaced persons have to search for other suitable accommodations and due to their limited income it is near impossible to find."

The meeting felt Greater Victoria is lagging behind many B.C. cities in taking advantage of urban renewal programs to provide low rental housing. (Senior governments share costs for urban renewal).

Ald. Alfred Toone told members the proposed Blanshard Street urban renewal project called for construction of housing for senior citizens, a new school and reallocation of older homes.

The project, he said, is scheduled to be discussed soon at a city council committee meeting.

Another issue raised at the meeting was the federal government's pension plan.

While two levels of government were moving towards improving conditions for senior citizens who will reach the age of 65 in five or 10 years, Mr. Karn said those now 65 have been completely overlooked.

Clive D. Campbell, chairman of the building committee, estimated between $15,000 and $20,000 will be needed to furnish and equip the senior citizens' activity centre now under construction in Centennial Square.

A drive for funds may be necessary, he said.

Members elected to serve on the agency's board for a two-year term are Owen Karn, F. Allen, Mrs. M. Campbell, Marjorie Baird, Clive Campbell, C. Connelly, A. Partridge, W. E. Osland, J. Daniel, E. R. Rickinson, Dr. H. Anderson and Mrs. I. Craig.

Board members who have one year to serve: Mrs. M. Cowdery, P. Blewett, C. F. Wharton, F. Nicholson, J. Goult, J. Dalgleish, H. Craven and A. Davidson.

PORTUGUESE rebel leader Gen. Humberto Delgado is rumored to have been executed by the government without trial. Delgado masterminded the 1961 hijacking of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria at sea.

Rivard Gone But Barn Door to Be Locked

MONTREAL (CP) — Police have turned up "nothing whatsoever" in the 15-day-old manhunt for Lucien Rivard but Claude Wagner, Quebec attorney - general, has announced steps will be taken to prevent similar escapes.

Mr. Wagner said Wednesday his department now is negotiating with the department of national defence for the right to use the Craig Street armory in downtown Montreal as a prison.

He said some 300 prisoners could then be transferred to the armory from Bordeaux provincial jail.

Mr. Wagner had said earlier that overcrowded conditions in Bordeaux were one of the main reasons for the escape of suspected narcotics kingpin Rivard and fellow prisoner Andre Durocher March 2.

Police said Wednesday they received many tips on the whereabouts of Rivard, 49, a resort owner who escaped from Bordeaux while his lawyers fought against his extradition to face Texas charges of conspiracy in narcotics smuggling.

One such report was that Rivard was hiding in the French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon, south of Newfoundland. A spokesman for the St. Pierre police denied the rumor.

Meanwhile, a guard at Montreal's Bordeaux prison is quoted as denying that he ordered Lucien Rivard out of his cellblock the night the suspected narcotics kingpin escaped from the north-end prison.

Sergeant Roger Beaupre is quoted in an interview with La Presse that "at no time did I tell (fellow guard Noel) Bonneville to go and find Rivard to help Durocher water the rink."

Beaupre's statement appeared to conflict with one made in the provincial legislature last week by Quebec Attorney-General Claude Wagner.

Questioned by an opposition member on how Rivard came to accompany fellow prisoner Andre Durocher on the "rink-watering" expedition that set off their March 2 escape, Mr. Wagner said guard Bonneville had been ordered by Beaupre to find Rivard and have him lend a hand with the hoses.

MOVED QUICKLY

Once united in this assignment, Rivard and Durocher moved quickly to subdue several guards and prison employees and escape from the jail. They have not been seen by authorities since.

Asked why either Durocher or Rivard was permitted to water the rink in 40-degree temperatures, Beaupre said he did not know that night how warm it was outside. He had not been outside since he reported for work at 4 p.m., some two hours before the escape.

Smith Urges Crown Corp. To Run Buses

Pensioner Pass Statement Asked

Social Credit backbencher J. Donald Smith (Victoria) wants the government to set up a Crown company to run B.C. Hydro buses.

He said that such a move would eliminate the main fears of Vancouver and Victoria that within two or three years they might be burdened with the return of the transit systems to city ownership.

He also stated that under a Crown company, with a board of directors formed from city council members, the government and bus drivers, the transit system would operate more efficiently and at a profit.

Mr. Smith also wants the government to state a definite policy on requested $5 a year passes for old age pensioners.

'WHAT IS ENOUGH'

"We have asked for $5 as an annual fee (for a pensioner pass) but if that isn't enough can the government tell us what is enough? Should it be $10 or $20? What would be satisfactory?"

Mr. Smith said over the years some progress had been made regarding special concessions for pensioners "but that progress is not adequate," he added.

"Many pensioners are confined to their suites because they cannot afford to go out. In the interest of these pioneers I urge that a statement be made."

5,000-NAME PETITION

At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Smith handed a 5,000-name petition calling for annual passes for pensioners to Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston. Earlier in the session a 20,000-signature petition was handed to Premier Bennett.

Mr. Williston is a director of B.C. Hydro.

Mr. Smith made his plea during discussion on estimates for Mr. Williston's department of lands, forests and water resources.

'Violations' On Equal Pay Hit In House

The government itself violates the Equal Pay Act by discriminating between men and women janitors who help clean the Parliament Buildings where the law was made.

This charge was laid by the legislature's only woman, Mrs. Lois Haggen (NDP-Grand Forks-Greenwood) who made her annual plea Wednesday for greater enforcement of the regulations.

Mrs. Haggen said a $62 differential exists in the monthly pay between men and women on the government cleaning staff and the public works department boasted when it began using women that the savings on wages would run "to hundreds and thousands of dollars."

She said there is blanket wage discrimination between male and female practical nurses too.

Mrs. Haggen said there is insufficient inspection by the labor department to see that women receive equal pay fo requal work and there is no compulsion on employers to observe the regulations until a complaint has been made.

Debate on her bill to broaden the methods of invoking the act against offending employers was adjourned putting it into limbo along with other private memebr's bills for another year but Mrs. Haggen said she will continue to bring it before each session until she wins her point.

The same fate and the same promise from her befell her perennial bill to prohibit sale or discharge of fireworks anywhere in the province except for public displays.

Baha'i Faith To Celebrate New Year's Day

Victoria members of the Baha'i faith will join in the worldwide observance of Naw-Ruz, the Baha'i New Year, beginning at sundown on Saturday.

Traditionally the celebrations last from sundown on March 20, the first day of Spring, until sundown March 21. Victoria members will mark the anniversary with a meeting in Norway House, Hillside Avenue, Sunday from 2 to 6 p.m.

"We are followers of the prophet Baha'u'llah, whom we recognize as the voice of God in modern times," said Mrs. Irene Mallins, 906 McClure, who is secretary of the local group.

Mrs. Nan Greenwood, the former secretary, is now engaged in missionary work for the Baha'is at Qu'Appelle, Sask.

TO CURB VANDALISM

Smith Offers Reward

NORTH COWICHAN — Parks chairman Gerry Smith saw red the day vandals damaged Chemainus community centre.

Wednesday he took the bull by the horns and offered $25 reward for their capture.

Making his offer at a North Cowichan council meeting, Mr. Smith said the vandals last weekend had torn toilets from the walls, thrown them outside and then tried taking the roof off the building.

'ABSOLUTE DISGRACE'

He said "This sort of thing has happened in other places too and it makes me sick. It's an absolute disgrace."

When asked about public co-operation in catching offenders, Reeve Donald Morton recalled a similar outbreak at Maple Bay.

He said "When we got the names of those responsible their parents were aghast that other people would give the information and they would not co-operate."

Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn said bringing one of the offenders to court might curb the outbreaks.

Besides Mr. Smith's offer, council agreed that the reeve and clerk should find out if it was in order for them to put up a reward.

Chamber Drive Falls 'Flat On It's Face'

DUNCAN—Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce has "fallen flat on its face" in a new membership drive aimed at increasing revenue.

President Cliff Pascoe made this statement at an executive meeting Wednesday.

The chamber, which last month withdrew its $500 annual grant to Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau, decided to ask the city of Duncan and North Cowichan for increased grants.

Sam Keeble said the executive shared a list of 73 prospective members but he had only received reports on 11 of these.

The city will be asked to increase its chamber grant from $600 to $1,000 and the municipality from $100 to $300.

Will Dobson said North Cowichan gave more 35 years ago than it does now.

He said: "They have some 7,000 people in the school district 65 part of the municipality so their present contribution is one and a half cents per capita. I think 50 cents per capita would not be too much for either the municipality or the city."

Jim Hunt, chairman of B.C. Retail Merchants' Association, will likely be the speaker at a March 25 general meeting called by the Duncan chamber to debate the question of uniform store hours in the city.

The chamber is to make a second approach to city council to press for setting up of a recreation commission.

Dick Benzies said local service clubs would be asked to help "lobby" the council into action and show there was enthusiasm for the idea.

More Park Funds Asked in Saanich

A Saanich parks budget of $29,975 proposed for 1965 is far short of desired funds for park improvement, parks and recreation committee was told Wednesday.

Parks superintendent Bert Richmond said the municipality spends too little on parks and recreation area maintenance work.

Coun. Ed Lum said Saanich should take over development of two jointly administered parks—Gorge and Mount Douglas—to free it from budget restrictions of Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee.

A step in the direction of future parks expansion was taken by the committee with inclusion of a $2,500 item to begin a 5,000-tree nursery and display area at Swan Lake, site of municipal administration.

"We are not getting our money's worth," Coun. Lum said. "Saanich could do a better job on its own."

He pointed to Gorge Park as an example of an issue talked around year after year. Only $350 is earmarked in the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks budget for 1965 work there.

Mount Douglas Park could be turned over to Saanich without difficulty by virtue of the original assignment to Victoria "or its successor," Coun. Lum points out.

The committee recommended that council seek to take over development of both parks.

Mr. Richmond, who first proposed the nursery idea five years ago, said Saanich could have saved $6,000 by this time by having its own tree stock.

The committee also approved a Victoria Natural History Society junior branch offer to make a nature walk in Logan Park, and showed disappointment in Gyro Club plans for a shelter at Cadboro Gyro Park, asking for another try.

TOP BIRLERS OFF TO JAPAN

World champion birlers, Ardiel and Jubiel Wickheim, of Sooke, will travel to Japan in April to give a display of their talents.

Occasion will be the International Trades Fair, April 16 to May 6.

The borthers will be performing in a 50 by 30-foot pond in the centre of the Canadian Pavillion.

Their sponsor, the federal department of trades and commerce, hopes to arrange a series of contests between the brothers and Japanese log rollers.

High Rise Plan Under Debate After Letter

Concern for the special status of Cathedral Hill precinct was expressed to city council zoning committee Tuesday by the YM-YWCA.

The Y noted proposed development of a high-rise apartment building at the corner of Blanshard and Courtney, to the rear of the Royal Theatre and overlooking the Law Courts.

"We hope it is possible to retain the original concept of the precinct," a letter to the committee said.

A re-examination of the precinct is being made by advisory planning board and the engineering department planning section.

It has been suggested that any building that dominates the cathedral or the Law Courts or detracts from the open aspect of the precinct area should not be permitted.

Committee members authorized the city manager to proceed with an agreement allowing the beautification of Mc & Mc property on the corner of Government and Cormorant, opposite McPherson Playhouse.

The city will spend about $1,800 on improvements and planting, with the understanding that Mc & Mc will not sell or develop the land itself for at least five years.

If the lot is sold, however, the company will reimburse the city pro rata.

GRASS FIRE SPARK LEAVES 7 HOMELESS

SOUTH WELLINGTON — A family of seven escaped uninjured Tuesday when a stray spark set fire to their home here.

But Mr. and Mrs. William Unrau and their five children are homeless today as a result of the blaze.

The fire broke out in the roof of their two-storey home. It is believed to have been caused by a spark from a nearby grass fire which got out of control.

The roof was badly damaged and most of the bedding and clothing were destroyed by fire and water.

Mr. Unrau, who is unable to work through illness, did not carry insurance on the property.

They will stay with neighbors until another home can be found.

Teen-Ager Fined $40

CHEMAINUS — A 17-year-old boy who drove the truck in which his friend was killed, appeared in juvenile court here Wednesday charged with careless driving.

He pleaded guilty and was fined the juvenile court maximum of $25. He was fined a further $15 after pleading guilty to driving contrary to licence restrictions (he was not licenced to drive a car).

Magistrate Ken McAdam suspended his licence one year.

The boy crashed the panel truck on Thetis Island Jan. 31 and Richard Cook, 16, of Thetis, was killed.

Facilities a Disgrace

NORTH COWICHAN — Post Office facilities here are a public disgrace, says Coun. Gerry Smith.

He voiced this opinion at Wednesday's meeting of North Cowichan council.

After receiving an assurance a transfer of customs office from Chemainus to Duncan was no longer under "active consideration," council agreed to press for a new federal building in Chemainus.

Quality of Service Held More Important Than Beds

(Also see story page 21)

Hospitals can't serve a community with beds alone, Royal Jubilee Administrator George Masters said Wednesday.

In a speech to the hospital annual meting he drew attention to the current bed shortage, adding:

"The public understands the need for early admission to a hospital when illness requires it, but there is a great deal more than a bed required when a patient is being treated."

Mr. Masters said, "our former policy of growing to keep up with the size of our community has given way to an interest in the quality of service to be made available."

The policies of adding beds to match population growth and adding services to keep up with the needs of modern medicine "are no longer compatible."

The Jubilee board of directors has produced a long-range program to modernize the hospital plant, provide better diagnostic and treatment services and add approximately 150 beds, he said.

"But this will not satisfy all the needs of the community in the period it will take to reach this objective.

"We need more beds in our existing hospitals.

"We need to replace more beds in our existing hospitals.

"We need more hospitals," he stated.

He drew attention to the recent formation of Victoria and District Hospitals' Planning Council, involving all district hospitals, which is now estimating needs of the area for the next 15 years.

(Earlier, he had pointed out that the bed problem is district wide and will be solved only when all sections of the capital region area are contributing to hospital upkeep directly, in a unified community program.)

He said Royal Jubilee in the last four years had increased its nursing staff by 70 and admitted 2,000 more patients in 1964 than in 1960, meeting all its commitments for expansion, which had been made to B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

"The plan that was agreed upon with BCHIS involved all of the hospitals in the area and for various reasons the other hospitals have not been able to meet the same deadlines," he said.

He pointed out that hospitals in Victoria now have a worth of $20 million and there is practically no outstanding bonded indebtedness.

"There is not another municipality in this province which does not have a large debt, upon which they are paying interest, for the construction of local hospitals. In all our existence, something less than $500,000 has been funded for our capital needs."

Production Target Set For New Mine

VANCOUVER (CP) — L. T. Postle, president of Gran-Isle Copper Mines Ltd., says a 5,000-ton a day copper mine will go into production next year on an island in Babine Lake in north central B.C.

Mr. Postle said financing for the mine has been arranged, and construction of the ore concentrator will start this summer.

He said the concentrator will be finished in the summer of 1966, and production at the mine will start late that year.

Mr. Postle said the ore concentrate will be shipped by barge across the lake, and then by truck to Topley.

From there it will be hauled by train to Prince Rupert for shipment to Japan.

He said about 100 men will be employed by the mine when it is in production, and about three or four times that many during the construction period.

Mr. Postle said the Babine Lake mine has been planned for four or five years.

WINDFALL PRESIDENT TELLS PROBE

'I Would Probably Have Been Shot'

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—Rumors of a rich ore strike on the Windfall property near here had been circulating round Toronto's Bay Street for weeks before the company revealed that a drill hole had shown no commercial values.

Price of Windfall stock skyrocketted on the Toronto Stock Exchange from 56 cents to a high of $5.60, but Windfall President George MacMillan told a royal commission inquiry Wednesday he did not know the results of the final assay on the core until 3:30 p.m. July 30.

The stock plunged to 80 cents overnight, deflated by the announcement.

The 65-year-old mining veteran said he probably "would have been shot" had he announced to shareholders that there was no ore in the first 570 feet of the drill hole and later discovered ore at a deeper level.

He was testifying at the last days of hearings here of the commission, appointed under Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Appeal Court to investigate circumstances around the movement of Windfall stock. The commission resumes hearings in Toronto next month.

GIVES HIS REASON

Mr. MacMillan told the commission:

"There has been some discussion as to why I did not assay the crucial area of the drill core from 416 to 570 feet. This has caused me some troubles also.

"I felt at that time that I was not through the area where there was mineralization. I don't think any man alive could say I would not run into commercial ore as I drilled.

'Had I assayed that crucial core and told the public I had no commercial values, and then drilled further and found ore—as I had a 50-50 chance of doing—the roof would have fallen in. It would have been said that I knew all along there was ore. I probably would have been shot. In that dilemma I, and I alone, decided to finish the hole, and have it assayed."

Mrs. Viola MacMillan followed her husband to the stand.

Her testimony related largely to the acquisition of the Windfall property from the staking group of John Larche, Donald McKinnon and Alfred Rousseau for $100,000 and 250,000 shares of Windfall stock.

"I couldn't make a deal on behalf of the company," she said. "There were shareholders to consider and the Toronto Stock Exchange and other conditions. I took the deal in my name knowing it would have to be offered to the company."

AT MONTREAL stocks were off but Equity Explorations was higher. Equity Explorations was up seven cents to 37 cents and appeared steady compared with its spectacular plunge of $1.40 from Friday's closing price of $1.77. Drastic decrease said to have been caused by poor assay report revealed by Quebec Securities Commission.

With the bank rate unchanged, gilt-edged stocks were idle and little altered.

Dollar stocks were mixed. Leading Canadians, however, showed up well and Hollinger and International Nickel were an especially good features. Others to improve included Algoma, Aluminium, B.A. Oil, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, Imperial Oil.

Quebec Orders Inquiry Into Mining Stock

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Securities Commission has ordered the suspension of registration of any further treasury shares of Equity Explorations on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

The commission said earlier that engineering samples from property owned by Equity "show a considerable discrepancy" from those reported by the company.

The stock exchange has ordered an inquiry into trading in Equity stock March 12 and March 15, asking all members to present a complete analysis on their dealings in this stock on these two days.

The commission and the exchange decided to act because of a drop in price of Equity from $1.79 to 55 cents a share.

B.C. HYDRO OFFICIAL SAYS:

Pulp Output Could Triple

Pulp production in B.C. can be tripled in the next few years.

And in place of the 12 present pulp mills there could be 48.

These predictions were voiced Wednesday night by W. C. Mearns, executive director of B.C. Hydro.

Speaking to Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Mearns said the pulp industry would be just one of many to benefit from the Peace River hydro project.

He forecast large mining developments north of Prince George and Prince Rupert where the bulk of the province's vast mineral wealth lies.

Said Mr. Mearns: "Power development has to go ahead of resource development and, as it would have been impractical to supply power from the Vancouver area to the centre of the province, you can understand the reason for developing a large power source on the Peace River, which is just north of the centre of the province."

He said power availability in the northern parts of the province will help bring mineral deposits into production on a large scale in areas where mining activity previously did not exist.

As for mineral demand, he said: ". . . there will be a very great increase in the demand for steel.

"It is forecast that the automobile industry in the United States will run from 60 to 70 per cent above the present level by 1970."

Returning to the pulp industry, Mr. Mearns said B.C.'s share of world pulp requirements in 1963 was 3.3 per cent.

With the tremendous expansion ahead this figure will have risen to 4.4 per cent by 1970.

Mr. Mearns added: "This primary industrial development will have the effect of creating much new secondary development in Vancouver and population increase in both Vancouver and Victoria."

Park Land Sellout Planned

NDP Member Charges in House

Charges that the government was preparing to sell a provincial park to private developers were made in the legislature Wednesday by David Barrett (NDP—Dewdney).

Mr. Barrett said a bid by Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources to take over the Cypress Bowl area in West Vancouver would be a "miserable failure" on the part of the government if permitted.

He claimed that the area had been set aside as a park for public use in 1944 following a land exchange involving the original owners of the 9,000 acres of land.

"This company, represented by a public relations man named William Clancey, has made a bid to develop this land and has revealed plans for a $10,000,000 project," Mr. Barrett said.

Mr. Clancey is one of a handful of public relations men termed "close" to the premier and has in the past been described as one of Premier Bennett's "image makers."

Mr. Barrett said the area in question could become another Stanley Park and involved "some of the most valuable land on the lower mainland."

He added that throughout negotiations the impression had been given that this was ordinary crown land.

"It is not ordinary crown land," Mr. Barrett told the House.

"It is park land and was so designated in 1944 by order in council."

Mr. Barrett said he had queried the minister of recreation and conservation about the matter in November, 1964.

"I do not fault him for his reply," he said. "But I do fault him for his research before replying because in the letter he sent back to me he said: 'This is not park land. The original reserve was for a watershed and is now no longer required for that purpose.' This is not true," Mr. Barrett continued.

FOR PARK LAND

"It was designated park land by order in council and now we are faced with private promotion by a company with a public relations man named Clancey.

"If this land leaves the public you have failed miserably. This land must never leave the control of the Crown."

Lands and Forests Minister Williston said the land was originally transferred "under the guise of parkland" but that the government of the day had failed" to take the next step and officially dedicate it" as a park.

"It is within the boundaries of West Vancouver municipality," Mr. Williston continued. "They could go for a district park or a regional park but the provincial government will not move until the municipality does. We have received no firm decision from them."

It is understood that next week a delegation from West Vancouver will recommend to the government that 300 acres be given to private development.

The delegation will also likely recommend that the balance of the 9,000 acres be developed as a provincial park.

THREE QUESTIONS

Mr. Barrett had three specific questions:

Is it going to be sold outright? Is it going to be developed by private promoters? Can the minister give us the assurance that this park will not be given away?

Mr. Williston said he had nothing further to say.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) asked: "Is the minister telling us he has no views on this matter? Does he believe it should be kept as parkland or sold off?"

Mr. Williston gave the House the assurance that the government was not considering selling the entire park.

But he added that "we may sell them (the promoters) sites for ski lodges and other areas on which capital works are constructed."

DEBATE HALTED

Anti-Snoop Bill Gets Nowhere

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) wants the government to crack down on people who buy gadgets to listen to other people's conversation.

But the government, Wednesday afternoon, showed little interest in his alarm at the availability of "listening aids" or his bill to ban illegal listening.

After introduction of the bill—"An Act Respecting Privacy"—Attorney-General Bonner moved adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Macdonald quoted from various advertisements offering for sale bumper beepers to enable a car to be followed, microphones, which when applied to a hotel room wall, enabled people in the next room to listen to conversations, small microphones that could be attached to desk and hooked up to tape recorders, and sensitive microphones that could pick up conversations from two blocks away.

"There was a time when a man's home was his castle," he said. "But no longer. You may not be safe in your own home or in your car."

Had Mr. Macdonald's bill received approval it would have made it illegal to use microphones or cameras to listen to private conversations.

It contained provisions to make it legal for police to tap telephones or eavesdrop on hotel rooms once they had obtained a written court order.

Woods Group 'Too Fenced In'

Socred Backbencher Suggests Hearings Move to Logging Areas

The legislature's forestry committee is too fenced in to do its job properly, a government backbencher complained Wednesday.

"I think it's high time we decentralized this committee from the Maple Room (in the Parliament Buildings)," said Dudley Little (SC—Skeena).

He said the committee should hold its hearings in the logging areas where it could hear more opinions and see problems for itself.

Mr. Little said the district foresters of the government are the best experts on their individual districts, but in the five years he has served on the committee not one district forester has appeared to give MLAs information.

"I think it's got so bad that they would be afraid to appear," he said.

Unless the government made the district foresters available for questioning, the committee's investigations would be hampered, he argued.

David Stupich (NDP—Nanaimo-Islands) said the government was losing a potential $60 million in revenue each year through poor reforestation practices.

He said 2.4 million acres of crown lands have been poorly re-planted or left out and this has resulted in loss of potential lumber production and government taxes.

FALLEN DOWN BADLY

"Its a tragedy," Mr. Stupich said. "The forest service has fallen down badly on the job of reforestation."

Mr. Stupich said the government should pursue a vigorous policy under which forest lands would revert to crown administration and the government would contract to supply pulp and lumber mills with timber in return for their present licences and tenures.

Earlier, Forests Minister Ray Williston and Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver) crossed swords over past forests policies and a special concession given to Polie Bentley, president of Canadian Forest Products, in the Nimpkish Valley near Campbell River.

Mr. Gibson charged that CFP had been relieved of its contract requirement under a forest management licence to farm out half of its annual cutting program to small contract loggers.

He said this showed a bias by Mr. Williston for the large firms against small loggers.

Mr. Williston said it was true that Mr. Bentley had been relieved of this requirement for four consecutive years, leaving him free to do all his own logging.

"But not one contractor in this province has presented me with a complaint that he has been denied a contract or has given me adequate proposals as to how he could log in there," Mr. Williston said.

He pointed out that the last remaining private logging railroad in B.C. was the only present access into the Nimpkish Valley and it was owned by the company.

"Everything taken in to contractors would have to go over that railroad raising problems of freight rates and transportation problems.

"In the near future it will be possible to get into Nimpkish by road . . . when that happens, contractors will be able to get in and the entire structure of the logging operation will change."

Woman Kept Seven Years Inside Cage

SUSONOMACHI (AP) — A Japanese farmer kept his mentally-ill daughter locked in a cage for seven years until her death last week, police have reported.

The cage was five foot, three inches high and five foot, 10 inches square.

Police said Jusaburo Ichikawa, 64, caged his daughter because she was considered a hopeless mental case. She was 34 when she died Thursday.

Ichikawa said he fed his daughter through an opening in the cage. He was held by police, but no charges were filed pending an investigation.

FOREST BILL INTRODUCED

A bill to amend the Forest Act including higher rental fees on crown timber lands and measures aimed at speeding return of the lands to government administration was introduced in the legislature Wednesday.

The amendments were forecast in forestry committee hearings earlier in the session.

Labor Policy Of Company Criticized

Timber companies asking for increases in timber quota while refusing to permit workers to join organized labor groups should be rebuked by the government.

John Squire (NDP—Alberni) made the statement Wednesday in the legislature.

"There are more problems brought before the department of labor, more phony labor organizations, more court cases, more injunctions in the Kamloops area in one month than there are at the coast in a year," Mr. Squire said.

"Yet they (Froelich Timber) feel they the right to organize other companies in a plea for bigger cuts while preventing their workers from organizing.

"This man, after all other avenues had been explored, refused to meet with the minister of labor to settle a labor dispute. It was a direct insult and then he turns around and asks for more timber. Before he asks for more cutting rights he should rectify the other situation."

200 Delegates For Meeting Of Credit Men

More than 200 delegates are expected to attend the 19th annual Canadian Consumer Credit Conference at the Empress Hotel March 26 to 30.

Representatives from the Associated Credit Bureaux of Canada and the Credit Granters' Association of Canada will attend.

Among the dignitaries will be P. H. Etter, president of the Credit Granters' Association and A. H. Ferguson, president of the Credit Bureaux.

H. L. Matthews of Victoria is chairman.

ACT AS WATCHDOG

Forest Commission Urged by Gargrave

While one of the lumber industry's tycoons listened from the public gallery Wednesday, an opposition member attacked centralization of cutting rights in the forest in a few private hands.

Anthony Gargrave (NDP—Mackenzie) said the government should undertake "complete nationalization of the timber growing sites with the forest service growing the crop."

Walter Koerner, Rayonier of Canada Ltd., and some associates listened as opposition members launched their salvos against government forest policies when Forests Minister Ray Williston's salary vote came up in estimates committee.

Mr. Gargrave advocated creation of a forestry commission which would act as watchdog on the industry and have powers similar to a royal commission. The permanent commission also could serve as an appeal board from the minister's decisions.

Mr. Gargrave said the crown forests should not be leased to private firms "almost in perpetuity." The lands should not only be owned by the crown but also managed by the crown.

This was the only way to secure maximum revenue, maximum utilization and perpetuation of the province's most important natural resource, he said.

Mr. Gargrave said the minister is about to make awards of the new pulp harvesting area licences "the most significant form of tenure in the past and in the future for this province yet he will make the decisions unaided and alone."

He said the government should give a B.C. university a $100,000 research grant to study the PHA licences and make recommendations on their use to the minister.

CALIFORNIA TEAMS LAG BUT GATE COUNT UP

SEATTLE (AP)—Attendance in the Western Hockey League is up 100,000 compared to last year, president Al Leader reported Wednesday.

Playing in its new Coliseum, Seattle gained 63.7 per cent.

Leader did not release a team-by-team breakdown but announced only that paid attendance had passed the 800,000 mark after each team had played 30 games.

Vancouver Canucks are up 29.7 per cent in paid admissions. He noted that Portland, which has led the league in attendance since 1960, shows a gain of 9.5 per cent this season.

Victoria, which replaced Denver in the circuit, has played to 17.2 per cent more customers than did the former franchise holder.

"The two California teams, San Francisco and Los Angeles, losing key games at home of late, have shown slight decreases," he said.

Leafs Shillelaghed 8-3 By Hot Portland Squad

Perhaps it was only to be expected when the day was March 17 and the man you were trying to beat was named Kelly.

In honor of St. Patrick's Day, the "blue" lines at Portland's Coliseum were painted green Wednesday night and in goal for the Buckaroos was a fellow named Dave Kelly.

The Irish combination was too much for Victoria Maple Leafs and the Buckaroos came charging into battle like Gaelic warriors and boosted their Western Hockey League victory streak to seven games.

Buckaroos consolidated the grip on first place before 6,900 fans as they whipped the Leafs 8-3 and made their win skein the longest of any WHL team this season.

Portland all but wrapped up the decision before the Leafs, playing their fifth game on a six-game road trip, could get the travel kinks straightened out.

THREE FAST GOALS

The Bucks rapped three shots behind Victoria goalie Al Millar before the game was four minutes old and were in front 4-0 before nine minutes had ticked away.

It was a fairly even struggle after that but the Bucks had boosted their lead to 5-0 before Lou Jankowski slapped in the rebound of a shot by Gordie Redahl to get Victoria on the scoreboard in the second period.

Leafs missed a great chance to slice the deficit when they had a two-man edge late in third period but they failed to beat Kelly. Portland made the count 7-1 in the third before rookie Rollie Wilcox and Danny Belisle picked up two quick goals for the Leafs.

JONES TIES FOR LEAD

Tom McVie and Art Jones each collected two goals and two assists for Portland in the game which left the Bucks holding an 8-5-1 edge over Victoria in meetings between the two clubs.

McVie's two goals boosted his league-leading total to 36. Jones increased his point total to 83 to tie Seattle's Guyle Fielder for first place in the race for individual scoring honors.

Dick Van Impe, Andy Hebenton, Arnie Schmautz and Doug Messier got the other Portland goals.

There was considerable consolation for coach Rudy Pilous and his Leafs when they learned that Seattle Totems had put their defensive talents to work at San Francisco and edged the Seals 3-1.

USED VITAL GAME

Defeat left the Seals one point behind Victoria in the struggle for the league's fourth and last playoff position. Seals also used up one of their vital home games. They now have only two games at home and two on the road while the Leafs have seven games remaining, three on home ice.

Totems allowed the Seals only 17 shots at rookie goalie Bob Gray as they grabbed the decision with two goals in the final period.

Jim Powers cracked a 1-1 deadlock with a 10-foot drive midway in the final period and Chuck Holmes wrapped things up by scoring into an unguarded net in the last minute.

LEAFS HOME SATURDAY

Jean-Marie Cossette opened the scoring for Seattle in the first period and swift Len Haley counted for San Francisco in the second session.

Maple Leafs make their next start Friday night at Vancouver and return home Saturday night for another clash with the third-place Canucks.

EAGER-BEAVER BATTLER

Apparently determined to finish what he started inside ring, Eddie Gonzales of Fort Worth, Tex., leans through ropes to pin Bob Rodreguez of Minneapolis on ring apron during 118-pound Golden Gloves bout Wednesday at Kansas City. Ringsiders hold Rodreguez' head and referee tugs at Gonzales, who was awarded unanimous decision to move into semifinal round. (AP Wirephoto.)

Quigleys Reach Alberni On Rapid Building Job

PORT ALBERNI—Paul Traynor, a short, grey-haired veteran coach, has worked with sped and efficiency to earn Hamilton Quigleys a shot at the Canadian senior men's basketball championship.

His building job will get another, and probably its sternest, test here tonight when he leads Quigleys into the opening round of the four-team national tournament.

Traynor, who guided Hamilton CYO teams to Canadian junior titles in 1959 and 1961 has whipped Quigleys into a contender in the short space of two months. Organized in January, the team has amassed a record of 10 wins and four losses and swept to the Ontario title with six wins and only one defeat.

"We have the best senior non-university team in Ontario," Traynor claims. "We have proved we are the best in the province."

FORMER UBC STAR

Of the 10 players making the western trip, eight stand six feet or better. Centre Wayne Osborne, a former University of British Columbia and Vancouver senior star, is six feet five inches. Forwards Brian Hotrum and Bob Tatti are six-feet-five and six-feet-four respectively.

At the guard positions, the Hamilton team has Brian Middlemiss, six-feet-one, and Doug Harrison, a mere six feet.

Al Schlosser, Traynor's other centre and a former Toronto Argonaut and Calgary Stampeder football player, will join the team Saturday if it survives the opening games in the double-loss elimination competition. He also is six-feet-five.

SPEIDEL CONFIDENT

Quigleys will tangle with Winnipeg Dunlops in tonight's opening game at 7.

Winnipeg's roster includes three former UBC stars—John Cook, Jack Lusk and Laurie Predinchuk—as well as two-time Olympic representative Fred Ingaldson. Dunlops average six feet, three inches.

In tonight's second game at 9:30, coach Elmer Speidel will send his Alberni Athletics against Montreal Brewers.

Speidel is predicting his club will win the title with three straight victories.

"The boys have waited a long time for this," Speidel said Wednesday, "and now we have it in our own back yard. We should have the edge."

COULD END SUNDAY

On Friday, the losers will play at 7 p.m., with one being eliminated and the winners tangle at 9 p.m.

The tourney will continue on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and could wind up on Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

If a seventh game is needed, it will be held on Monday, at 8:30 p.m.

Each night, the 1,400-plus capacity Athletic Hall is expected to be sold out.

Coach for 70 Years; Stagg Dies at 102

CHICAGO (AP) — Amos Alonzo Stag, the grand old man of football, died Wednesday in a Stockton, Calif., rest home, his son reported.

Stagg was 102 year old.

His son, Amos Alonzo Stag Jr., said his brother, Paul, was with their father and reported that his death was peaceful.

The younger Stagg said his father had been in fairly good health but became ill Tuesday night and developed a fever.

He said death was believed due to uremic poisoning.

Amos Alonzo Stag worked at his profession until failing eyesight forced him to the sidelines in 1960.

In 1905 when foes charged the game was too brutal, Stagg came to its defence in a conference called by President Theodore Roosevelt. The sport lived.

He was instrumental in bringing about the T formation, wingback formations, forward pass, huddle, man-in-motion and the number on football jerseys.

Stagg studied for the ministry but gave up his ambitions when he felt his voice not suited to preaching. At Yale, he had been a star baseball pitcher and end on the first all-America football team.

Stagg began coaching in 1890 at Springfield, Mass., College. Two years later Dr. William Rainey Harper, president of the new university of Chicago, offered him the job of organizing athletics there.

He held the job 41 years until reaching the age of 70 and mandatory retirement.

So in 1933, he came to College of the Pacific in Stockton and coached football there until 1947. The Football Coaches Association named him coach of the year at 81.

In 1947, he retired from COP and his last head coaching job.

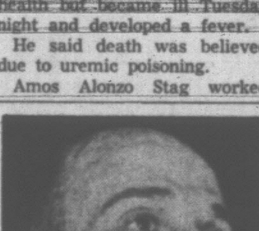
HAD GREAT RECORD

During 57 years, his teams compiled records of 309 victories, 200 defeats and 35 ties.

After retiring from COP, Stag helped Amos Alonzo Jr., at Susquehanna until 1953 and then returned permanently to Stockton where he was advisory coach at Stockton College until 1960.

That year, on Sept. 16, he wrote coach Larry Kentera:

"It is with a deep feeling of regret that I write you that I will not be able to accept your invitation to come out for football practice this year. For the past 70 years I have been coach. At 98 years of age, it seems a good time to stop."



FAVORED to win men's singles title in B.C. open badminton championships at Victoria Racquet Club is Bert Fergus. Vancouver veteran and other visiting stars will swing into action early Saturday. Tourney starts tonight with doubles matches involving local players.

Bumping Bruins Bounce Title Hopes of Hawks

By The Canadian Press

The lowly Boston Bruins, who this season mark their sixth year without reaching the National Hockey League playoffs, appear determined to make the league leaders fight for their extra bonuses.

In Boston Wednesday night the hard-hitting Bruins downed the second-place Chicago Black Hawks 2-1 to dampen Hawks' hopes of overtaking the idle Detroit Red Wings.

The Bruins received a stellar performance from rookie netminder Jack Norris, who held the Hawks off the scoreboard until 19:58 of the third period. In gaining their 19th win of the season—their best record since the 1959-60 campaign — Boston hustled throughout and kept the speedy Hawks off balance with heavy bodychecks.

The result left Detroit in first place with 78 points. The Hawks remained second with 76 and Montreal Canadiens were one point back with 75.

Detroit and Montreal have two games in hand over the Chicago crew.

After a scoreless first period in which the Bruins peppered Glenn Hall with 13 shots, Johnny Bucyk broke through in the second for his 23rd goal of the season.

Former Hawk defenceman Reg Fleming, now playing as a forward for Milt Schmidt's team, scored his 17th goal of the season less than five minutes later.

JUST BEAT BUZZER

Norris held his shutout until two seconds before the final buzzer when Camille Henry tallied for the Hawks during a melee in front of the Boston net.

Norris wound up with 33 saves for 29 for Chicago's Glenn Hall.

Meanwhile, the Canadiens and the Red Wings were girding for battles tonight with Toronto Maple Leafs and the Bruins respectively.

Montreal coach Toe Blake had high hopes his injury list would be down to nil by the time the Habs and Leafs faced off. He will decide today whether defenceman Jean-Guy Talbot, centre Henri Richard and winger Dave Balon will start.

With Dodgers, No-Hitters Don't Guarantee Victories

By Associated Press

Don Drysdale was out of town on business last June when his buddy, Sandy Koufax, hurled his third career no-hitter. On hearing the news, the tall right hander asked dryly: "Did he win?"

Since the 1964 Los Angeles Dodgers were something less than terrors at the plate, the question wasn't entirely uncalled for. But Drysdale, a .173 hitter himself last season, is showing signs of taking matters into his own hands this year.

He proved that Wednesday when he doubled home two runs in a five-run second inning that started Los Angeles to a 6-4 exhibition victory over Minnesota Twins.

More gratifying for the Dodgers than Drysdale's double was the continued strong hitting by Tommy Davis, who must carry the offensive load if Los Angeles is to move up in the National League standings.

Davis, who won two straight batting crowns before slipping to .275 last year, drove in two runs and continued to show the form that produced averages of .346 in 1962 and .326 in 1963. He has six hits in his first 11 swings this spring.

Relief pitcher Bob Miller struck out five batters in two innings and teamed with Drysdale, Johnny Podres and Charlie Spell for a four-hitter.

Elsewhere, Willie Mays was in mid-season form, slamming three hits and driving in four runs in San Francisco Giants' 17-2 rout of Boston. Tony Conigliaro produced both Red Sox runs with a 450-foot homer in the first inning.

APRIL 20-22

New Format for Golf Training

A new format will be applied to the Victoria District Golf Committee's junior development program this year.

A three-day school will be conducted at the Gorge Vale Golf Club during the Easter holidays.

In the past, the junior clinics were held at the various Victoria courses over a period of several weeks.

It was felt that a three-day school would retain the interest of beginners more than the old system.

Head professionals of five courses will handle instruction at the classes due to start April 20 and wind up April 22. Three sessions will be conducted from one to 4 p.m.

The professionals, wholeheartedly behind the new format, are Paul Trapp of Victoria Club, Johnny Wren of Uplands, Bill Court of Colwood, Dick Munn of Cedar Hill and Gorge Vale's Joe Pryke.

The clinic will be restricted to boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 18. It has been proposed to limit the clinic to 100 students on a "first-come, first-serve" basis.

Don McColl of Uplands, chairman of junior development, said the school will be financed, in the main, by funds from the B.C. Golf Association. Gorge Vale has offered its practice ground facilities free of charge.

Youngsters will be charged a modest $2 registration fee. The fee is being levied in order to draw only youngsters with a genuine interest in golf.

Students will be required to supply their own golf clubs—a wood, an iron and a putter as a minimum.

Entry forms will be available later this month.

CARROLL ENTERS . . . . . . TIMES ISLAND OPEN

Defending Champ Back

Laurie Carroll is coming back to defend the Times Vancouver Island Open golf championship.

Carroll's name popped up in the latest batch of entries received by tournament secretary Leo Derman.

Carroll, 35, captured the Island match-play crown last year with a 6 and 4 victory over Bill Wakeham in the 36-hole final at Gorge Vale, site of this year's qualifying round. Capable Laurie also won the Island Open title in 1958, the first pro to do so.

Wakeham returned from the Caribbean tour trail this week and is also expected to enter.

With the entry list just a few short of the 160 limit, the official entry form is being published for the last time today. It appears on the left.

The form, along with a $3 entry fee, must be mailed to Derman. Entry deadline is Saturday and the draw will be made early next week.

Qualifying round will be played March 28.

First round of match play is scheduled for Uplands April 4. Other rounds are scheduled for April 11 (at Oak Bay), April 18 (at Colwood), April 25 (at Gorge) and the 36-hole finals May 2 at Uplands.

Low 32 scorers qualify for the championship and an additional 32 enter the handicap scramble for the Hugh Francis Trophy.

WORLD CUP

Irish, Welsh Alive

LONDON (CP) — Wales and Northern Ireland kept alive Wednesday their hopes of staying in World Soccer Cup competition. The finals are to be played in England next year.

Wales defeated Greece 4-1 at Cardiff in the second leg of their group qualifying match and Northern Ireland defeated Holland 2-1 at Belfast in their group.

Wales is in the same group as Russia, Denmark and Greece in the qualifying games. In that group, Russia has yet to play a game. The winner goes into the World Cup finals.

HOME AND AWAY

Each team in each group plays home and away games in a round-robin tournament, with the group winner going into the finals.

Northern Ireland is in a group involving Holland, Switzerland and Albania.

In other soccer action, the Scottish league tied the English league 2-2 in a match at Glasgow watched by 40,000 persons. Centre - forward Jock Hughes scored both goals for the Scottish.

PRE-SELECTION MATCH

The match was a trial one before both countries pick their teams for an international match at Wembly April 10.

It was also a tryout for Scotland before it sets out for the World Cup qualifying round in a group involving Italy, Poland and Finland.

In European Cup action, Munich 1860 advanced to the semifinals of the cup winners tournament by tying Legia Warsaw 0-0 at Munich in their second-leg quarter-final game.

Munich had won the first leg 4-0.

REAL MADRID WINS

A crowd estimated at more than 100,000 saw Real Madrid beat Benfica of Portugal 2-1 at Madrid in another European Cup quarter-final.

Benfica had won 5-1 at Lisbon Feb. 24 and thus took the two-game, total goal series 6-3.

Torino, the Italian Cup winner, also advanced to the semifinals. Torino beat Dinamo of Yugoslavia 2-1 at Zagreb and took their series 3-2.

In a fourth quarter-final game, F. C. Cologne of Germany and Liverpool of England played their second scoreless tie.

MIXED CURLING

Down-to-Wire Finish Predicted in Playoff

TORONTO (CP)—"This won't be decided until the last stone is thrown," a veteran observer mused as he watched the fifth round of the national mixed curling championship Wednesday.

And after the day's chain of upsets that left the 11 rinks in the round - robin tournament wondering just what would happen next, the unidentified railbird might have called it exactly right.

The Alberta rink, skippered by Lee Green of Calgary, was in sole possession of first place with five victories in as many games. But the defending champion Manitoba rink, skipped by Ernie Boushy of Winnipeg, was also undefeated although a fifth-round bye left them one victory behind Alberta.

Should both rinks survive the next five rounds the "last stone" prediction would be true since the stage will then be set for a showdown Saturday when Alberta and Manitoba are scheduled to meet in the 11th and final round.

But Manitoba and Alberta are not the only rinks that could force the bonspiel down to the wire.

Ontario, skipped by Ray Grant of Unionville, was running a close third after Wednesday's fifth round with a 3-1 won-lost record.

B.C., skipped by Fred Tinling of Vancouver, shared fourth place with Nova Scotia, each with 3-2 records. Tinling counted two on the final end to upset Saskatchewan 11-10 in the fifth round.

Earlier, however, Tinling suffered his second setback when P.E.I. upset B.C. 6-5 for its first victory of the 'spiel.

Canadian Rink Shares Lead After Swedes Upset Scots

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—Canada defeated Scotland 9-7 Wednesday to run its record to 4-1 in the international curling championships here.

The Wednesday night victory, together with a 19-3 win over Switzerland earlier in the day left the Canadian team tied with the United States in won-lost records.

However, the U.S., which defeated Norway 22-5 and Switzerland 19-3, was placed first because it had scored more shots.

In other games Wednesday, Sweden defeated Scotland 10-9 and then downed Norway 8-7.

The four leading rinks will play off today to determine two finalists in the competition, won by Canada since it was started in 1959.

The Canadian rink, skipped by Terry Braunstein, 25, of Winnipeg, will meet Scotland in one playoff and the United States will play Sweden in the other. Scotland and Sweden have 3-2 records.

Sweden's afternoon victory over Scotland was considered an upset. The four curling doctors that make up the team were not expected to beat two-time Scottish champion Rick Hay.

Turning point in the game came in the eighth end when Hay was heavy on a draw shot and slid to the back rings, allowing Sweden to count four and go ahead 8-5.

Hay got back in contention with a pair in the ninth, gave up one in the 10th and then scored singles in the 11th and 12th to tie the game 9-9.

SAVES GAME

Swedish skip, Dr. Tore Rydman, saved the game in the 12th when, with Scotland lying two on the four-foot ring, he drew in to cut Hay down to one point and prevent a Scottish victory. In the extra end on his first shot, Rydman again pulled around guards to the button. Hay tried to follow on his last rock but was six inches short allowing Sweden to count one.

Canada had to stage a remarkable come-from-behind effort on constantly changing ice to sneak past Scotland. It took a patented double take-out and roll by Don Duguid, 29, named outstanding third in the 1965 Canadian championship, to set up a three-end in the 11th which enabled Braunstein's rink to regain the lead they had relinquished in the third end.

Duguid's tremendous take-out through a cluttered front of the house enabled Canada to lie two. The exceptionally heavy ice caused Hay, on both his shots, and Braunstein on his first, to fall short of the house. Braunstein, on his last rock, threw the first out-turn draw of the end and pulled into the button to count three.

National Co-Favorite A Disappointing Fifth

WORCESTER, England (AP)—Jay Trump, an American-bred horse who has been made one of the favorites for the March 27 running of the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, finished fifth Wednesday in a final tune-up race.

The winner of the three-mile Worcester Royal Porcelain Handicap steeplechase was Meon Valley, a 4-to-1 second choice owned by Mrs. I. Parry of Britain. He is not entered in the National. Hydra-Dor was second and Happy Spring was third.

Jay Trump, owned by Mrs. Mary C. Stephenson of Cincinnati and ridden by amateur Tommy Smith of Middleburg, Va., started as 3-to-1 favorite in the 13-horse field. He finished about 6½ lengths behind the winner.

Jay Trump had been co-favorite with Freddie for the National, but his odds are expected to lengthen as a result of Wednesday's race.

Remember when Bonded Stock came in that plain old bottle?

Well it doesn't anymore.
That fine old bottle has launched its last sip.
We've designed a new container for Gooderham's Bonded Stock. Tall and refined with classic lines. (Our whisky's now in the best shape ever).
And we age Bonded Stock longer now as well. To make every drop just a little more mellow.
One thing though. Bonded Stock's smooth lightness we don't change. Our blenders know a good thing when they taste it.
Judging from the number of people who buy Bonded Stock Whisky, so does the rest of the country.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832

QUEBEC TEAM'S PLAYING-COACH

Fergie Back in Action

MONTREAL (CP)—John Ferguson, the Montreal Canadiens hockey player who has been rated among the country's top lacrosse stars, plans to return to lacrosse competition this summer.

Ferguson, who played formerly in British Columbia, has agreed to act as playing coach of Sorel Titans of the Quebec Lacrosse League. He sat out last season but played previously in Nanaimo.

A spokesman for the Titans said the club also hopes to obtain the services of Cliff Pennington, a former Boston Bruins hockey player who also doubles as a lacrosse performer.

Several teams in the league had been bidding for Ferguson's services.

Purchasing Body Change Bid Fails

An attempt to amend the Purchasing Commission Act failed in the legislature Wednesday.

Alan Macfarlane had asked the government to consider amending the present act so that members of the commission would become "officials of the government within the meaning of those words under the Criminal Code of Canada."

After Mr. Macfarlane's brief presentation, Attorney-General Bonner moved that the debate be adjourned.

His move meant that discussion on the bill cannot resume unless the debate is reopened by Mr. Bonner.

Mr. Macfarlane noted that according to a judge's ruling on the now famous Jones' case commission members were no more "government officials" than supreme court judges.

He suggested that it would be much simpler if the act were changed and the statute spelled out in "plain and ordinary language."

He stressed that as the statute now reads a member of the commission could be charged and brought to court only to have the case against him dismissed on a technical point.

TECHNICAL POINT

In the judgment acquitting G. E. P. Jones on charges of accepting a favor, the judge said he could dismiss the charge on the technical point but went further to state that not only was the charge technically wrong but that the evidence presented by the Crown had failed to prove wrongdoing.

Mr. Macfarlane said that had the matter just been dropped on the technicality the name of the man would remain besmirched.

"The judge acquitted Mr. Jones on a technicality and on fact," he said. "Had the matter dropped there his name would now be clear. Unfortunately it has been taken much further than that and his reputation is being besmirched every day."

Movie to Help Exchange Plan

A fund set up at the University of Victoria to bring two African students there next September will benefit from a special showing of A Raisin in the Sun, starring Sidney Poitier, in the Fox Theatre Sunday at 6:45 and 9 p.m.

"We are donating the theatre for both performances," said Garry Nixon, assistant manager.

The fund, operated by the students' council at Uvic, received $1,300 from three earlier Sunday showings at the Fox—Lord of the Flies, A Taste of Honey and Shoot the Pianist.

King Fund Hiked

Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association boosted the Freeman F. King natural history scholarship fund by $200 Tuesday night. The fund now stands at $2,306. The scholarship is for study at the University of Victoria.

RUSS FLEET NEAR ALASKA

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — A fleet of 90 Russian vessels is fishing in southeastern Alaska waters 140 miles west of here, Capt. Henry Clay Keene, commander of the Ketchikan coast guard base, said Wednesday.

Keene said he flew over the area Tuesday and saw three or four factory ships, a tanker and dozens of trawlers.

Most Russian fishing operations in Alaska have been to the north and west.

THE BABIES HERE are the latest in a "family" of 400 Florence and Earl Pearson have cared for over the past 23 years. That's Sarah on Mrs. Pearson's knee and Brad with "Dad". (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

400 Babies Crown of Achievement For King and Queen of Sitters

By RON SUDLOW

A middle-aged Esquimalt couple has set a record in baby-sitting.

Florence and Earl Pearson, 1001 Esquimalt Road, estimate they have cared for 400 little ones over the past 23 years.

Their "sitting" is done through the Children's Aid Society and the Family and Children's Service.

Their little bundles of joy have demanded an awful lot of work, as any parent can imagine.

Mrs. Pearson is unable to estimate the number of diapers she has washed or the number of formulas she has prepared, or the number of burps she has coaxed.

But she gets great satisfaction from "sitting."

The hardest part, she says, is when the infant must leave them because adoption arrangements have been completed.

"We don't really run a foster home. I like to think of it as a shelter. We keep the babies until they are adopted.

"And when that happens I feel a little piece of me goes with them," she said.

Even so, the Pearsons don't have to wait long for a replacement.

. . . ON DOORSTEP

There have been times when they have returned from town and a child is waiting for them on their doorstep—in the arms of a welfare worker.

During their years as pro-tem parents, the Pearsons have helped to raise infants of all nationalities and religions.

Back in their heyday of baby-sitting—the late 40s and 1950—they handled up to ten children at a time when they lived on Tillicum Road.

In those days, canned milk was bought by the case and nine clotheslines were full of diapers daily.

THREE AT A TIME

Today the Pearsons accommodate a maximum of three children at any one time.

Washing is still a major chore.

For inclement weather, a blower system has been rigged to their basement oil furnace to facilitate diaper drying.

This is an innovation of Mr. Pearson's who takes regular "shifts" at "sitting" after a day's work at Yarrows Shipyards Limited.

The majority of the infants they care for are illegitimate.

Their average stay is three and a half months and they fall into three categories.

AWAITING ADOPTION

Those who are awaiting adoption; those who will go into foster homes and those who will return to their mothers after they have made plans to take care of them.

Why does a couple go to all this trouble? Mrs. Pearson's answer is simple.

"After I gave birth to a boy and two girls who are now grown up, I lost my last baby —a boy. That's when it all started."

They now have five grandchildren and another is on the way.

PEARSON'S FORMULA

Experience is a great teacher and here's the Pearson's formula for taking care of babies:

"Be placid. Don't handle the babies as though you are scared of them. If you are tense, the baby will sense it."

With all their "children" the Pearsons have lived a placid life, but plans are being made to "whoop it up" for their 40th anniversary this May.

And it looks as if Victoria's champion sitters will need a baby-sitter. Any takers?

LONG-TERM PAYMENT

'Parents' Seek Aid in Adoptions

A delegation of Victoria foster parents wants the provincial government to subsidize legal adoptions of some children placed in their care.

The subsidy should be a long-range regular payment toward health and education costs and should cover legal costs, they said.

And they also asked that where a child is placed in a foster home for two years or more, the courts be empowered to approve adoptions, or at least make the foster care arrangement permanent.

At the same time, the Foster Parents' Committee of Victoria Family and Children's Service drew attention to the low rates paid families who take in a child as a ward.

Mrs. Audrey Z. Paterson, 958 Terrace, chairman of the committee, said a meeting was held Tuesday with the legislative committee on social welfare.

AFFECTION, GUIDANCE

She told the MLA's that foster parents are asked to give affection and guidance but are told "Do not become emotionally involved."

Very few people can care for a child without doing so, she said. Hence many parents will not take in children as wards and those who do cannot give a child a feeling of security when the foundation for this does not exist.

The first one or two partings leave the foster parents and the children distraught, she said. At the same time, care of a foster child on a temporary basis often means depriving one's own children of little extras.

Mrs. Paterson said the foster parent receives $1.25 to $1.85 daily depending on a child's age, plus half the normal family allowance.

Cost to Victoria Family and Children's Service is $4.79, while for a child held in a provincial detention school, the cost is $7.73 for boys and $10.40 for girls daily.

She said the prevailing attitude among foster parents must be, "We take you foster child, to love, cherish, protect in sickness or in health, until the social agency makes other plans or your own parents decide whether or not they shall waive legal rights, although they have waived all others."

INSECURE SITUATION

She added, "It is a precarious, insecure, impermanent situation."

More children are coming into care for longer periods and the rising number of illegitimate children compounds the difficult situation.

Foster families would like to see more intensive work done toward strengthening broken families before a child is taken in care.

But where a child must be taken in care, then it is preferable to permit adoptions when they have been so long in a foster home that mutual attractions have been established, Mrs. Paterson said.

There are 7,000 children in foster homes in British Columbia and 400 in Victoria, 40 of whom are adoptable, Mrs. Paterson said.

New Road Access For Fish Wharf Gets Green Light

City council finance committee today gave the go ahead to a $30,000 works project for a new access road and extended storm drain at Fisherman's Wharf.

The financial recommendation to council will enable the city to sell for $130,000 a site bought by Victoria businessmen for development of a marine restaurant, incorporating banquet hall and specialty shop.

Money will come from land tax sale funds, which will be boosted by $70,000 if council approves two new land sales involving waterfront and seaview property.

Lands committee endorsed the sale of property at the foot of Milne and Mary Streets and on Dallas Road opposite Victoria Machinery Depot for $35,001 each.

Offers are both from Quinn Brothers Enterprises Ltd., who are believed to be interested in high-rise apartment development.

The land is zoned for industrial use in both cases, and the second parcel is in use by VMD as a parking area.

Sidney Crash Sends Couple To Hosptial

Highway Crossing Accident Scene

A Victoria couple was being detained in Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney, today following a collision on Pat Bay Highway shortly after midnight.

Conrad Cannon, of 610 Avalon, is suffering severe chest injuries and head injuries. He is doing fairly well.

His wife is "in good shape" suffering facial injuries and shock.

The driver of the car in which they were travelling, Frederick Stark, of 849 Fort, was uninjured.

Truck driver Robert D. Quinn, 24, of 4831 West Saanich Road, also escaped unhurt.

The accident happened at the junction of Pat Bay and Beacon Avenue.

CAR DAMAGED

The car was badly damaged.

The truck, owned by Capital Freightways, Victoria, was heading for Swartz Bay ferry terminal to pick up a trailer. The car was pulling out of Beacon Avenue.

The truck was damaged on the right hand side.

BAY-ROSE CRASH

Later this morning a woman was taken to hospital with minor back injuries following a two-car collision at Bay and Rose Streets.

Police said a car being driven west on Bay Street by Monte Roberts, 1290 Beach Drive, was in collision with an auto proceeding south on Rose.

Driver of the other car was identified as Harry McIntosh, 1540 Burnside West. His wife, Linda, was hospitalized. Damage to both vehicles was estimated at $800.

CHARLES HORNSBY
. . . to meet Queen

Blind Veteran To Attend London Meet

Charles Hornsby, 941 McClure, has been chosen by the Sir Arthur Pearson Association of War Blinded to represent Canadian First World War blind veterans in London, England, March 26.

Mr. Hornsby will leave Vancouver Saturday to attend the 50th anniversary of St. Dunstan's Training and Rehabilitation Centre for the war blinded in England.

All overseas veterans at the reception March 26 in St. James Palace will be presented to the Queen.

Mr. Hornsby was born in Lancashire, England, in 1892 and came to Canada in 1912.

He went overseas in 1916 with the Canadian Army, 143rd B.C. Bantams and was wounded at Paschendale, Oct. 29, 1917. He was totally blinded.

LEARNED BRAILLE

He entered the St. Dunstan centre in 1918, and after training became competent in Braille shorthand.

He returned to Edmonton, Alberta, the following year and took a job as a male stenographer.

After 16 years he retired to Savory Island and in 1954 he moved to Victoria.

He is now chairman of the Vancouver Island Chapter of the Sir Arthur Pearson Association and vice-chairman of the Victoria White Cane Club.

Sir Arthur Pearson, for whom the association was named, was a newspaper publisher who lost his sight as a civilian. Because of his concern for the hundreds of blinded young men returning from the war he founded the training centre.

Worker Misinformed On Payment of Bill

Victoria shipyard worker Douglas Quinn, 4525 Cheeseman, said today he has not paid a $2,137 hospital bill to a Seattle hospital because he sent his wife there on the understanding the bill would be paid for him.

Mrs. Quinn died of a kindey failure seven weeks after a five-week stay in University of Washington Hospital.

Mr. Quinn said he sent his wife there on the recommendation of the Victoria doctor who was treating her and on the understanding the bills would be paid by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and his own medical insurance plan.

He said after his wife's death he received a hospital care bill for about $3,000 and a bill from the Seattle doctors for between $800 and $900. A $350 bill for blood transfusions, included in the $3,000, was paid for in cash and blood from the Canadian Red Cross, said Mr. Quinn.

Mr. Quinn said his medical insurance plan paid the doctor's bill, but the BCHIS could only pay $400 of the $3,000 hospital bill because of a stipulation which only allows them to pay $12 a day for out-of-province hospital care.

He said the hospital has sent him numerous requests for the money which he has ignored "hoping they would forget about the whole thing."

Recently they sent a letter to his employer regarding the bill. He turned the letter over to officials of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers Union who advised him not to pay the bill, and brought it before the Vancouver Labor Council earlier this week.

Mr. Quinn said over a three-month period he paid more than $5,000 for his wife's care.

SPECIAL ALLOWANCES

University of Washington Hospital administrator Roy Rambeck said today in Seattle the hospital makes special allowances for persons who cannot pay bills, but Mr. Quinn has never told the hospital he can't pay.

He said the hospital has tried to contact Mr. Quinn but he hadn't answered the letters, and indicated that was why the employer of the man had been contacted.

$15,000 Approved For Car Park, Shopping Arcade

Finishing touches worth $14,952 were approved by committee today, allowing work to progress on Centennial Square car park and shopping arcade.

Centennial Square committee expects the complex to be ready for use by the end of September, but contractors need early approval of finishing work to schedule other jobs affecting the total operation.

The committee allowed $15,000 to complete the buildings with such things as washroom, suspended ceilings, wiring and fixtures for square illumination, door hardware, stair rails and storage room heating.

Firm Fined $30 For Failure To Pay Sales Tax

Representatives of two city businesses today appeared in magistrate's court on a total of seven counts of failure to remit sales taxes on time.

Both were charged under the Social Services Tax Act.

Anthony Penn pleaded his company, Penn Holdings Ltd., guilty to three charges from the months of October, November and December, 1964.

Magistrate William Ostler fined the business $10 on each count and suspended sentence on its director.

Neil Edward Baker, operator of th George Inn, 604 Broughton Street, was remanded to March 25 without plea on similar charges from the months of September through December last year.

IN COMMUNICATIONS

Sailors Eyeing European Meet

Pacific Command sailors are hoping to participate in the annual European Naval Communication Agency competitions late this spring.

The competition, for communication operators of NATO navies, will be held in Amsterdam June 14-18.

Men will be tested in radio telegraph reception and transmission, flashing light reception and teletypewriter transmission.

A national team comprises four male junior operators with not more than six years' service.

Team members are now being sought within the command. Final selection will be made in May when West and East coast personnel hold playoffs.

Co-ordinating Pacific Command participation is Commodore A. G. Boulton, commodore RCN barracks, HMCS Naden.

City Ban Likely On Firecrackers

$2½ MILLION DEBT CLAIMED BY VANCOUVER

Mayor William Rathie of Vancouver said Wednesday that Premier Bennett owes the city $2,500,000 for a coliseum.

He said the money—a federal grant for a British Columbia centennial project — was intended for a downtown Vancouver coliseum, but the premier took the money and used it for a new provincial museum and archives in Victoria, as a provincial centennial project.

Mayor Rathie said Immigration Minister Jack Nicholson told him the money was intended for a Vancouver coliseum.

He said he thinks the premier should give Vancouver the $2,500,000 as a start towards the $6,000,000 he wants the province to contribute to a $12,000,000 coliseum.

ENTRANCE ON SQUARE FOR HOTEL

A current $500,000 renovation and expansion of Westholme Hotel will bring a change of name, new entrance and modified landscaping opposite Centennial Square.

City council Centennial Square committee today approved a revision of landscaping at the foot of Pandora Avenue where it once joined Government Street.

This work, at hotel expense, will permit automobile access to the new entrance planned by hotel developers anxious to complement the design of Centennial Square.

The hotel wrote to committee and presented sketch plans for an entirely new facade on Pandora, incorporating Roman arches, pennants and plate glass.

MORE ROOMS

Inside there will be an additional 53 rooms, a cocktail lounge, beverage room and lobby.

The name will be changed, the letter said, but not necessarily to what appears on sketches—one referring to the Victory Hotel, another to Sheraton Senator.

City manager Dennis Young said it is "obvious some type of agreement will have to be entered into" allowing the change in access.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the proposed entrance was by far superior to the existing entrance on Government.

Approval was recommended to council, subject to endorsation of working plans by the city engineer.

Committee Approves New Bylaw

A draft bylaw to outlaw firecrackers in Victoria was endorsed in committee today and passed along for city council approval.

The bylaw presented by city solicitor T. P. O'Grady follows recommendation of intermunicipal committee several months ago and is intended as a test in the capital region.

"It doesn't look like the legislature is going to act on fireworks this session," remarked Ald. A. I. Curtis.

TEST EFFECTIVENESS

Mr. O'Grady suggested the testing period in Victoria to determine whether the prohibition on sales and discharge is effective.

"Should it prove not to be and the reason is the lack of similar prohibition in unorganized territory, then I would suggest an appropriate form of resolution might be put to the Union of B.C. Municipalities," Mr. O'Grady wrote to the legislative committee.

The UBCM could then request more far reaching provincial legislation.

The solicitor noted that Mrs. Lois Haggen (NDP — Grand Forks-Greenwood) has a bill before the House for prohibition of fireworks generally, the same bill she has tried to get passed in previous years.

EXPLOSIVE TYPE

The Victoria bylaw relates only to explosive type firecrackers. Enabling legislation permits the city to issue a permit to persons or organizations marking a special event using fireworks or firecrackers.

Other Greater Victoria municipalities have indicated they approve and would pass similar bylaws.

The committee urged council to ask the Vancouver Island Association of Municipalities to seek more local banning of firecrackers.

3 New Mills Get Licence For Timber

The provincial government has approved timber allocations for new pulp mills earlier proposed for Squamish, Quesnel and Prince George.

None of the companies concerned got what they asked for, but each got sufficient for contemplated operations, said a release from Forest Minister Ray Williston's office.

The minister disallowed an application from Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. for a pulpwood harvesting area for its Woodfibre plant.

Mr. Williston said this should not jeopardize its expansion plans, now underway, which will double the mill's 250-ton daily capacity.

LICENCES GRANTED

The companies which were granted timber rights were United Pulp Co. Ltd. in association with Price Bros. and Co. Ltd. at Squamish, Cariboo Pulp and Paper Ltd. in association with Weldwood of Canada at Quesnel, and International Pulp Ltd., a joint subsidiary of Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd., and Feldmule A. G. of Prince George. The latter is a German firm.

In the case of Rayonier, the minister said he thought the wood requirements of that firm would be met by increasing the utilization of timber in areas already under the company's control.

This would mean logging trees of a minimum of nine inches in diameter where it has been the practice to log trees of a minimum 13 inches and larger.

Mr. Williston said this policy would embrace the whole sustained yield area of the coast.

A bid to purchase the hangar when TCA moved to new quarters was successful, and "now we have to raise funds to pay off our debt," an official said.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Originality Gives These Special Glow

By Penny Saver

One thing Penny appreciates is originality. When I was at a dinner party in a friend's home the other evening, I happened to notice the beautiful centrepiece she had on her table. It was a single brandy snifter of smoked glass, surrounded by some sort of wine-red flowers. (I found out later they were artificial.) Inside was a candle in the same deep red tone. The only light in the room was cast by tall candles on the sideboard, a fire in the fireplace and the candle in the snifter. The effect was hauntingly lovely.

One of the things I particularly liked about the candle was the simplicity and uniqueness of the design. So, I sniffed around (the candles were scented, too) and discovered how I, and you too, could achieve a different effect from candles.

The store my friend was in has candle wax chips—pure beeswax, selling for $1.50. These come in a variety of colors with scents to match—sandalwood, carnation, pine and hyacinth.

One feature about these chips is that you can melt them to any shape you wish or to fit a glass bowl.

I found a wide variety of different items in this store. One I would like to tell you about is the sweetest little doll imaginable. Made in England, these dolls have an all-plastic body, with huge head, covered with a mop of curly fuzz or great wisps of long hair.

The best thing about these little charmers is the expression on their faces. Face-splitting grins, with the most soulful expressions in their eyes!

I fell in love with them. They come in three different sizes—large, $5.95; medium, $4.45 and small, $1.95.

They're an amusing item to hang from the rear-view mirror in the car.

Another humorous article this store contains is contemporary writing pads. These pads sell for 39 cents and are by many of the artists who design the long, tall contemporary cards. Witticisms and hilarious pictures will accompany every note you write.

Interested? Then, 382-3131 is the number to call for Penny.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Fight Those Eye Wrinkles To Stay Young Looking

A woman cannot begin too early to take care of the skin beneath her eyes. So often a woman will look years younger than she is except for those little lines under her eyes.

Lowman

The skin is very thin in this area and the underlying tissues are not heavy. This is the spot which is subjected to squinting when we laugh. While nobody wants to go about with a mask for a face, extreme facial expressions can create lines about the eyes.

If you have a very dry skin it behooves you to apply an eye cream each night before going to sleep, even if you are still in your twenties. This is good preventive beauty care. Pat the cream into the skin around your orbs, very gently.

From middle age on, even if your epidermis is normal in the amount of oil it has, the same procedure is good insurance against future wrinkles. It also will help to wear colored glasses when out in the sun's glare.

Many women find that their eyes are swollen when they awaken in the morning. It can be quite extreme. If this happens to you, it should be investigated by your family physician. In the first place, it is one symptom of several diseases. Habitual swelling of the skin in this area will lead to lines eventually.

If your doctor finds nothing wrong, you would be wise to suspect allergies. A dermatologist will be the one to see. Before going to the skin specialist there are several things you might try. Switch to one of the cosmetic lines which is especially for those who are allergic to the usual brands. The ingredients most likely to cause trouble have been removed.

You might also try laundering your pillow slips by hand at home. Use a mild soap and be sure to rinse extremely well. Detergents may be causing your trouble.

DEAR ABBY ...

In a Nutshell!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and male, and my problem is this: How can I graciously answer the questions, "Why are you limping?" and, "Why don't you dance?"

Most people are not aware of my limp unless they've known me a long time. It is not very noticeable except when I am tired. Some people think I have recently hurt my leg. The reason I limp, Abby, is because I had polio, and surgery as a result of it. But I'm afraid if I were to tell people this it would create an awkward silence. An offhand wisecrack doesn't go over very well now that I'm older. Can you tell me how to answer these two questions so there will be no further discussion of a subject I find rather unpleasant?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: The best reply to both questions is the simple truth: "I've had surgery as a result of polio." If questions persist after that, answer them graciously enough so the inquirer will not be embarrassed, and briefly enough so he will realize that you don't wish to dwell on the subject.

DEAR ABBY: We have a handsome, intelligent boss who has one fault. He opens everybody's mail. It doesn't matter if it's marked PERSONAL, or not. He opens it anyway. Even bills! And I know he reads everything because he's made remarks about bills being overdue and other information he could only have picked up from personal letters. I once tried to tell him in a nice way that he shouldn't open other people's mail, but he said he opens all the letters from the back and he doesn't pay any attention to whom it is addressed. I can't get used to this. I wait for the mail and try to get mine first, but some days he beats me to it. He owns this business and he's the boss, and I have to eat. So what do I do?

"J" IN PORTLAND

DEAR "J": Don't tell me that's the only job in Portland! It is obvious that your handsome, intelligent boss has nose trouble. If you want the privacy to which every employee is entitled, clear out of there and find another job. But if you remain, knowing your privacy is being violated, don't complain.

DEAR ABBY: Have you seen these men who rock back and forth on the two back legs of their chairs while dining or playing bridge? This is a problem I don't know how to cope with. It not only puts a great strain on my chairs, but it also makes large dents in my vinyl tile floor.

Can a hostess ask her guests please to keep all four legs of the chairs on the floor? This may seem like a small problem, but it has me whipped. I shudder when we must entertain some friends who do this. Sign me, "ANNOYED," because that's what I am.

DEAR ANNOYED: A hostess may certainly ask her guests to quit rocking back and forth on the hind legs of her chairs. You mention the possible damage to your chairs and floors. But you overlooked a most serious danger—their falling backwards and cracking their noggins.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice is usually pretty good, but you sure missed on your answer to the woman who complained because her husband "lost all interest" in her. You advised her to get him to a doctor. Doctor, my eye! She should take herself to a lawyer. I was married to a man who, after only nine years of marriage, lost all interest in me, too. I checked into his outside activities and found out that he had girl friends all over town. No wonder he lost interest in me. He was always dead tired. He only came home to rest up.

"THREW HIM OUT"

Troubled? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I am only 14 years old and wish to convert my Daddy's V-neck sweater to a cardigan because the neck is stretched. Can this be done?

Bonnie T.

Dear Bonnie T.:

I'm proud of you for trying. If the sweater already is stretched too large, you can't lose and I bet you'll do a great job and the sweater will look like new.

Baste a three-inch strip of firm woven interfacing on the wrong side of the sweater under the centre front. Machine stitch several rows of stitching on each side of the centre. The interfacing will keep the front from stretching and will keep both sides even in length. Carefully cut between the stitching. If you want the grosgrain ribbon to show, fold ½ inch of the cut edge of sweater over to the front, baste the grosgrain ribbon over the edge and machine stitch both edges (some hand knits are done by hand instead of machine). Buttonholes can be made by machine and presto, the sweater is again wearable.

BE SMART—

Why hasn't someone thought of this before? What better way to apply skin cream than a man's ordinary shaving brush? Most shaving brush bristles are gentle enough not to rough the skin, but brisk enough to massage as extra bonus skin care.

SKIING HOLIDAY IN ALPS

TANS RESULT IN ENVY

Two former Victorians, Judy Richardson and Linda Scales, are now living in London, Eng. Here is another glimpse of the two friends' life in Europe.

By JUDY RICHARDSON

Envious eyes follow Linda and I down London streets, for we've just come back from a two-week holiday in sunny Switzerland and have strange nut-brown faces in contrast to the usual unhealthy pallor of London dwellers at this time of year.

Richardson

After working six months in the library, I was entitled to a week's holiday which I had to take before March 31, the end of the fiscal year. What to do in mid-winter? Ski, of course—if you can afford it. Fortunately the traveller's grapevine had long ago informed us of a place in Switzerland that catered to English-speaking travellers such as ourselves. So we totted up the pounds, discovered we could get by on £70 for two weeks plus an extra £30 for the train fare back. I persuaded the library to give me an extra week off without pay. Then we economized in various ways—such as making Brussel sprouts our main vegetable for several weeks because they were only nine pence a pound.

COMPLETE SUCCESS

The holiday was a complete success. We left London early one Saturday morning, taking the train to Dover and channel ferry to Boulogne, intending to hitchhike the rest of the outward journey because we had only enough money for the train fare back.

A South African couple approached us just as the ferry docked to see if they could give us a lift so the first day was exceedingly easy. The second morning, we left Rheims around 10 o'clock and after a poor start, ran into a snowstorm that aroused sympathy of passing motorists. That night we spent in Lausanne. By noon the next day we had reached Leysin, a small village in the mountains above Aigle on the eastern end of Lake Geneva.

Allan Rankin of Ottawa and his wife, Carol, started Club Vagabond in 1961 in a small chalet sleeping 18 people. The following winter Ken Tait of Northern Rhodesia joined the venture and they purchased the former Hotel Les Lials. In keeping with their idea of providing something between a youth hostel and a hotel for young people travelling in Europe, they renamed it Club Vagabond.

Hot showers, washing and ironing facilities are provided within the inexpensive rates for room and board but guests make their own beds and help themselves from the porridge pot in the morning. Really energetic types are welcome to give a hand with the dishes.

More enthusiastic skiiers than ourselves either stayed on the slopes all day without eating or bought lunch in the restaurants. We took advantage of the small shop run by the club and the kitchen provided in which to cook noon-day meals.

There had been a metre and a half of snow before we arrived so that learning to ski was an hilarious succession of falls and flounderings in deep powder snow.

Seeing us through the first agonies of the snow plow and traverse was a Swiss-German named Ado whose English became more German the more we exasperated him.

"Weight on the walley ski!" he would exclaim. "Vy you lean up hill? In this moment you fall down."

And as one New Zealander in a familiar heap at the bottom of the hill waved her pole hopelessly in the air, he glanced at her friend nervously preparing to make the run and assured the fallen one, "You won't be alone for long!"

All our falls were laughable. But other visitors to Vagabond did not manage so well. The lounge contained at least three people with broken legs. One Dutch girl had suffered a particularly bad break eight weeks before, had gone home after having it set and then decided if she had to sit around for months, she would rather sit at Vagabond. After our two weeks there, we could see why.

I ASKED TWO FRIENDS WHY THEIR MIRACLE FLOUR DISAPPEARED SO QUICKLY. Each replied, "It makes me want to bake more often!" Why? Because they know they won't have to face sifting or flour-dust all over the place every time they bake. FIVE ROSES MIRACLE FLOUR — the only true instantized flour — actually pours like salt, so you never need a sifter! HUMBER'S OF BASTION SQUARE

A cool breeze did nothing to dampen the spirits of women guests who crowded the lounges of the Gorge Vale Golf Club Wednesday afternoon for the second annual bridge-tea of the ladies' division. Wearing attractive spring finery in spite of the chill were, left to right, Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. T. A. O'Connell, convener; Mrs. Kate Dawson, captain of Uplands Golf Club ladies' division; Mrs. E. F. MacMillan, captain of GV ladies' division; Mrs. M. Warawa, Mrs. Clive Kelly, Mrs. G. L. Hay, ladies' division captain at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club, and Mrs. R. E. Foster.

There were 48 tables of bridge in play at Wednesday afternoon's party in the Gorge Vale Golf Club. Among those who arranged the affair were, left to right, Mrs. C. M. Holland, Mrs. John J. Fry, Mrs. G. T. Horne and Mrs. R. W. Saunders.

Amateur Couturiers Present Giant Show

It was amateur night at the Oak Bay Junior Secondary School, Wednesday, when more than 100 women, enrolled in the adult education classes of the Greater Victoria School Board, modelled outfits made during their voluntary schooling. But, if the talent was amateur, the results were professional enough to make any would-be Christian Dior hesitate before setting up a business in Victoria!

There were suits, two-piece, three-piece and sometimes more; coats, afternoon dresses, theatre suits, cocktail gowns and elegant formals. And, if some of the models lacked assurance, the clothes they modelled drew raves from the crowded auditorium.

Not restricting themselves to clothes, many of the women teamed their outfits with hats, bags and shoes which they had also made during the evening classes.

Some were joined in their modelling by younger members of the family. One mother displayed a tweed suit which she had made. She was escorted by a very dapper young man, obviously very proud of his new suit which had been cleverly created by his mother from her husband's cast-off suit.

Whispering of haute couture, many of the outfits had the popular semi-fitted look and several were accented with flattering capes. Color combinations were unusually attractive. White, pinks and reds were dominant.

UNEXPECTED ACCESSORY

One model was able to use an accessory she hadn't counted on. When it came time to show the green suit and hat she'd made, Mrs. M. L. Stocks casually draped over her shoulders a flattering China mink cape in golden brown tones. Her husband had won it as a door prize earlier that evening and insisted that she use it during her modelling debut!

The show was under the sponsorship of the Aldyen Hamber Chapter, IODE, being convened by Mrs. H. Barnes and Mrs. Bea Douglas. Welcoming guests was H. Alan Batey, principal of the adult education division. The affair was opened by Miss Elizabeth Forbes. Commentator was Nona Damaske, Times' fashion editor.

During the show, the instructors were introduced to the audience. They were Mrs. L. Cottam, Mrs. M. Gifford, Mrs. Jack Kraeling, Mrs. John Evans and Mrs. Yves Pommelet.

Completion of the evening came when guests moved to the school cafeteria for refreshments and were able to enjoy displays of flower arranging, decorated cakes, clothes and accessories, all made by evening students.

And, if the comments overheard are any guide, next year's show will have even more amateur designers proudly showing their budget-priced creations!

WORN BY LORNA WORTH

Necklace Fulfils Tradition

A gold necklace belonging to her paternal grandmother fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Lorna Frances Worth when she became the bride of John Whitney Meikle.

The necklace was designed with three small birds encrusted with pearls and provided a perfect accent to the bride's floor-length gown of silk peau d'ange. The bodice of the gown was fashioned with long lily point sleeves and a batteau neckline. The high empire waistline and semi-full skirt were enhanced with re-embroidered lace appliques. A slight watteau train created back interest. The softly flared veil misted from a tiny crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of pink ranunculi.

Rev. John Vickers officiated at the ceremony in All Saint's Anglican Church, View Royal, that united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Worth, 2875 Ashley Road, Victoria, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Meikle of Vancouver. Mr. Worth gave his daughter in marriage.

During the signing of the register, the organist played "Ave Maria."

PINK GOWNS

Identical gowns of soft pink lace over taffeta styled on simple A-lines were the choice of bridesmaids, the Misses Mary Nex and Mahri-Annah Meikle. They complemented their ensembles with whimsies of pink net, appliqued with lace. White rosebuds formed their bouquets.

Chris Archer was the best man and guests were ushered to their pews by Graham Ross-Smith and Douglas Worth.

Marshall Worth proposed the toast to his niece's happiness at a reception that followed in Holyrood House.

The pink and white theme of the wedding was carried out in decorations and in the three-tier wedding cake that centred the head table. Background music was provided by Miss Vera Critchard.

The bride's going-away outfit was an empire-line dress of printed silk topped with a cream-toned bell-shaped coat of doeskin, that she had made herself. A floral hat, black accessories and corsage of gardenias. completed the ensemble.

The couple is now making their home in Victoria.

Proceeds of $369 Raised By Golden Key Auxiliary

It was a "red letter" day for the Victoria Multiple Sclerosis Society Golden Key Auxiliary, Wednesday.

The annual spring project, that took the form of a tea in the Hudson's Bay Douglas Room, netted proceeds of $369 to be used as funds for the work of the parent society.

The successful event was opened by Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, honorary president. General convener was Mrs. W. B. Pennock.

The head table was centred with a huge arrangement of white chrysanthemums, backed with greenery. Those who presided at the table included Mrs. Archie Wills, wife of the past president of the organization; Mrs. W. H. Phillips, wife of the incoming president; Mrs. D. L. Brothers, Miss Elizabeth Forbes, Mrs. R. D. Ferguson and Mrs. M. Loomer.

Individual tables were covered with embroidered white cloths and centred with small arrangements of daffodils and forsythia in green containers. The flowers were centred with large shamrocks or small pipes.

Providing an extra note to the decor was a display of paintings by local artist, Frederick Lennox Jones.

Very few guests were able to bypass the tempting array of cakes, pastries, breads and other home-baked goods that were being sold at a stall convened by Mrs. Frank Hammond. Assisting her were Mrs. L. McAllister and Mrs. P. Nugent.

Among those who assisted in making the affair a success were the following committee members: Mrs. Olive Campbell, Miss Elizabeth McGillivray, Mrs. H. Walker, Mrs. J. Barr, Mrs. Hammond and Mrs. F. Lesley.

The serviteurs were in charge of Mrs. Lesley and Mrs. A. Millard. Other conveners included: Door prizes, Miss Barbara Hindson; table decorations, Mrs. Wills; kitchen, Mrs. C. Bacon; tea, Mrs. D. Stewart, and publicity, Mrs. Barr.

ROYAL FAMILY BRIDGE GULF

LONDON (AP) — Another member of Britain's royal family visited the Duke of Windsor in hospital Wednesday and also met the American-born duchess.

The Princess Royal, the duke's 67-year-old sister, followed the pattern set by Queen Elizabeth Monday in bringing the duchess into the royal family circle after three decades of ostracism for her marriage to the duke.

The Princess Royal, widow of the sixth Earl of Harewood, brought flowers to the hospital, where the duke is recovering from eye surgery.

The meeting between the princess and her brother and sister-in-law was private.

Olivia De Havilland Sums Up Frenchwomen

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The French woman is perfect with men—and perfectly beastly with other women."

Thus does Olivia de Havilland, wife of a Frenchman, describes the basic character as she reads it of the women of her adopted country and why les femmes have a reputation for charming the opposite sex.

Said Miss de Havilland, "the Frenchman's family life and home are the most important part of his life.

"The French woman is queen because she runs a kingdom for the king—her husband."

The actress, wife of Pierre Galante, an executive editor of Paris Match, cited the differing approaches of the American woman and her French counterpart by saying:

"If the American couple is dining out, the wife will say forthwith and specifically where they will go.

"The French woman will know definitely where she'd prefer to dine. But she suggests one restaurant she actually dislikes, and the husband will say no. Then she mentions another she doesn't like and again he will say no. Then she mentions a third, which she preferred in the first place, and by this time he is feeling so guilty he will acquiesce.

"The Frenchman was born protesting and dies protesting."

Miss de Havilland, of English heritage but reared in the United States, has lived in Paris since her marriage to Galante in 1955. Her book, "Every Frenchman Has One," recounts some of her experiences as an American wife in the French capital.

In an interview here, the award winning Miss de Havilland commented that life in France is more complicated day to day than life in the United States, although the French home now has many labor savers.

"But to operate an American made washing machine," she said, "I had to figure out the instructions in French, and then get them translated into Spanish for a servant not yet familiar with French."

BORN IN TOKYO

Miss de Havilland was born in Tokyo, the daughter of an international patent attorney.

She is a descendant of Sir George deCarteret who with two other Englishmen was granted the original deed to the State of New Jersey. Sir Geoffrey de Havilland of the English plane manufacturing family is a cousin.

Miss de Havilland has been in films since the early 1930's and scored one of her biggest hits as Melanie in "Gone With the Wind."

She has two academy awards as best actress, as does Bette Davis, with whom she stars in the new 20th Century Fox film, "Hush . . . Hush, Sweet Charlotte."

The two women have been on a personal appearance tour to promote the film. Inevitably, rumors of a feud between the ash blonde Miss de Havilland and the red-haired Miss Davis developed.

Miss de Havilland pooh poohed such reports, reminding that she and Miss Davis had worked together in three other films.

Club to Provide Baskets at Easter

It was decided that Easter baskets will be provided for the preprimary children at the Elford Street Occupational Centre for the Retarded at the recent meeting of the Victoria Jaycee-Ettes. Gifts will also be presented to the adults at the centre.

Mrs. R. Owens, president, chaired the meeting and introduced the head table guests. Grace was said by Mrs. D. Paulin and Mrs. T. Nex led the group in the Jaycee creed.

Membership director Mrs. D. Mathison introduced new member Mrs. T. Tubman and introduced the following members of the Port Angeles Jaycee-Ettes: Mrs. P. Erickson, Mrs. R. Philplips, Mrs. M. Phillips, Mrs. R. Ackenhausen, Mrs. D. Knotek, Mrs. B. Westmoreland, Mrs. R. Schmitt and Mrs. G. Johnson.

Secretary Mrs. W. Garcin read the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. B. Belfie, treasurer, reported a bank balance of $270.68. Standing committee reports were presented by Mrs. G. Allen, jackets and pins; Mrs. D. Webb, Elford Centre; Mrs. B. Small, hospitality; Mrs. B. Brinkworth, Save the Children Fund; Mrs. H. Taylor, publicity, and Mrs. Paulin, awards.

It was decided that the group would assist the Jaycees in visiting the children's wards at the hospitals at Easter.

During the meeting, the group was addressed by Mrs. G. Johnson, Washington State director, and Mrs. Grant Johnston, president of the Nanaimo unit.

Hospital Board Denounced On Doctor Ban, Policy Lack

By PETE LOUDON

A Victoria doctor publicly denounced Royal Jubilee Hospital Board Wednesday and won hospital association support to letting doctors stand for election to board seats.

His surprise attack from the floor of the 75th annual meeting of the association made it one of the liveliest such gatherings in history.

Dr. Scott Wallace who last year made public protest against a bed shortage at Royal Jubilee accused the present board of "a lack of leadership and policy in the past year."

Then, in a show of hands, he won solid support to his motion that the board ask the government of British Columbia to amend legislation to permit doctors to stand for election to the board.

He told the meeting of about 100 that the Royal Jubilee Hospital Act specifically forbids doctors or clergymen from running for a seat on the 12-man board.

FOUR ELECTED

At the same time, he pointed out that only four of the board are elected while eight are appointed by either the provincial government or local municipalities.

These four are elected all at once for a two-year term.

These members-at-large were elected last year so there was no opportunity to vote for new members Wednesday night. Dr. Wallace said two should be elected each year.

In a tirade against the present board, headed by president and former Saanich Reeve Joseph Casey, Dr. Wallace said the present outlook of the board is "Thank God things aren't worse."

He said at present it takes too long to get people into the hospital. And he repeated a charge made earlier in the Legislature by Alan Macfarlane (Lib.-Oak Bay) that some patients today are kept in a "fire trap."

This was a reference to the hospital's isolation ward which is located in a wooden frame building to the rear of the main hospital. It is slated for demolition this year.

PROTEST GETS RESULTS

Dr. Wallace claimed that much of the progress the present board claims in its annual report came as a result of a protest made last fall by Chief of Medical Staff, Dr. D. J. Whitley.

Dr. Wallace also protested the board's suggestion that its relations with the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service are excellent.

He said the recent bed controversy could hardly have erupted if the hospital and BCHIS had been "seeing eye to eye."

He said he hadn't missed a medical staff meeting in three years and he felt the doctors were left confused by a lack of board policy "and the speed with which policy changes."

"I don't say the doctors should dictate hospital policy but I fail to see who has a better insight into hospital needs," he added.

DREW FIRE

Dr. Wallace drew return fire when he said attendance at board meetings "was not all it should be."

He said Victoria and the surrounding municipalities should give careful consideration to who they appoint to the board because some prominent appointees are so busy on other community affairs they are unable to give the hospital the attention the post merits.

Ald. Robert Baird of Victoria said he took strong exception to this and demanded an apology. He had attended every meeting but one since his appointment, he said "and every member from surrounding municipalities has been present."

Ald. Baird said he had never seen more dedicated members. Board president Casey agreed an apology was called for.

Dr. Wallace conceded he may have been misinformed on this point. After the meeting he said he was wrong.

(The Times was later informed unofficially that absenteeism could only be chalked up to two board members, neither of whom were municipal representatives.)

Dr. Wallace went on to say he could see no reason why a doctor should be ineligible and as a taxpayer he thought it was unfair.

While he did not specifically ask the same right for clergymen, he pointed out that the ban against clergymen goes back to the end of the last century when some people thought church control of community matters was too wide and should be limited.

Dr. Murray Anderson, medical superintendent at the hospital, said between 1890 and 1950 three doctors had been seated on the board and "we got three different opinions" on medical matters. In those days there were 18 board members.

Dr. Anderson said in 1950, or thereabouts, it was decided that only the chief of medical staff should be the only doctor to have a vote at board meetings although the vice-chief of staff and the medical administrator were in attendance at all meetings.

DOCTOR "BLOCKED"

Courtney Haddock, manager of Woodward's and a former board member spoke in support of Dr. Wallace. So did Dr. R. C. Anderson who said he was shocked when he came here from Saskatchewan and found the medical administrator had "so little influence with the board of directors."

Dr. Wallace said if doctors disagree on a board this proves they do not serve as "yes men." He said they have no financial interest in a hospital nor are they employed by it. And though three doctors have attended board meetings, among them they have had but one vote.

Board president Casey said he could not remember a time when the board broached any matter which the medical society did not back. He said the doctors have always had excellent liaison with the hospital and "nothing goes on they don't know about."

Dr. David Longridge seconded Dr. Wallace's motion which was passed with only a few dissenting votes.

'Civil Posts To Require Top Skills'

The number of B.C. civil servants enrolled in the administrative, professional and technical classifications has increased by 50 per cent since 1952, Dr. Hugh M. Morrison, chairman of the B.C. Civil Service Commission, said Wednesday.

"At one time the public service was generally restricted to law enforcement and tax collections, but today the range of activities reflects all aspects of the society served."

Dr. Morrison was speaking to members of a political science convention who were examining the changing nature of the public service.

He said during the same period, since 1952, the number of civil servants in the clerical and manual classifications increased by only 7 per cent.

"The government requires highly skilled technical and professional staff and competition for their services is keen.

"This has resulted in a rapid acceleration of salaries which only a few years ago would have been undreamed of," said Dr. Morrison.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

Good trump management is most essential when you don't have many trumps to manage. Thus, everyone tries to avoid playing a hand with only four trumps, opposite three in dummy, but you can't have everything. Sometimes you will find yourself in that uncomfortable position.

2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥ 3

North wanted four spades for his raise and South wanted five spades for his jump to game, but the cards had not been dealt that way and South had to struggle with what he had.

At first glance there seems to be no problem in the play. South can win the first heart with his ace and not worry too much about the rest of the play. After all, it is dummy with the three trumps that is short in hearts and South cannot be forced to ruff in his own hand.

All this is an optical illusion. If South does win that first heart lead and if the defence plays perfectly from then on, South will not make his contract.

South does not know this because he is looking only at his own hand and dummy but if South is a good, careful player, he will protect himself against all normal poor breaks by the simple expedient of letting East hold the first trick.

If he does, there will be no way to beat him and if East leads a second heart at trick two South will make five odd. He will ruff in dummy, cash dummy's king and queen of trumps and lead a diamond toward his hand. Eventually he will pull West's trumps and discard clubs on dummy's long diamonds.

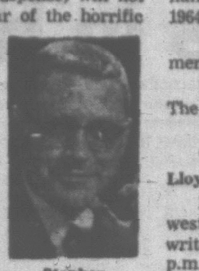
Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Alfred Hitchcock, the master of suspense, will not be back next season and he feels fear of the horrific is the main culprit.



Stephen

The rotund one blames corporate timidity for the cancellation of his series, though he did admit that low ratings may have had something to do with it.

He says that with all the criticism of violence on TV and with a pending U.S. congressional investigation, the networks are being careful. He does predict though this will result in a flood of situation comedies. On this score he is very right as comedies will dominate next year's viewing schedule.

Hitchcock says he deliberately stepped up the horror content this season to try and provide some shock in order to achieve notice. He feels this was necessary after a 10-year run.

The backlog of half-hour and hour mysteries now goes into the syndication market. But he will not profit as he sold his interests some time ago.

In the meantime, he's stepped up his feature movie schedule, which has seen an output of only three movies in the last six years.

At present he has two scripts under consideration.

Former U.S. president Harry S. Truman has been named as the outstanding television personality of 1964.

The American Cinema Editors made the announcement at their annual "Eddie" awards.

Mr. Truman was cited for his program, "Conflict: The Decisions of Harry S. Truman."

* * *

The star of the now syndicated "Sea Hunt" series, Lloyd Bridges, trades swim fins for chaps next season.

Bridges will star in "The Loner," a new half-hour western adventure series created by award-winning writer Rod Sterling. It will be slipped into the 9:30 p.m. time slot Saturdays on CBS-TV.

Stop me if you've heard this one before.

"The Loner" is the story of a former Union cavalry officer who heads west in the post-Civil War period in search of personal fulfillment and challenge.

His wanderings provide a background for what Sterling describes as "studies in depth" of his own character and those of the people he meets.

Nothing could be hoarier. It's surprising a man of Sterling's prolific ability has been unable to come up with something different from the plot of a half-hour western series already on the air.

Still the creators of NBC's Branded with Chuck Connors should be mightily pleased. Isn't there an old saying about imitation being the sincerest form of flattery?

Student Nurses Lack Attractive Bedrooms

Cramped quarters and limited training facilities curtail the production of graduate nurses at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Miss M. E. Thompson, director of nursing at the hospital told the annual meeting Wednesday that the nurses' residence contains 214 beds, 160 of them in double rooms.

She said "the rooms are small and unattractive with space only for bare necessities."

Roommates often are on opposite shifts which means disturbed sleep and inconvenience. Adequate study facilities are lacking and when there are meetings in the auditorium the students have no place to entertain friends.

Size of clasess is dictated by the size of various hospital specialty areas such as the children's ward and operating rooms, she said.

At present the maximum number of nurses who can be graduated each year in two classes is 72, she added. Between two-thirds and three-quarters of these take employment at Royal Jubilee.

Hospital Board chairman Joseph Casey told the meeting there is a shortage of nurses throughout B.C. and there was a turnover of 250 graduate nurses here last year.

Despite this, he said, the hospital nursing staff has increased from 239 at the beginning of 1963, to 289 at the end of 1964.

Hospital Ends Year In Black

Royal Jubilee Hospital operating budget for 1964 ended with a surplus of $32,151.

Treasurer I. C. Dinning told the annual meeting of the hospital association Wednesday the profit resulted from adjustments in provincial aid by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

He said BCHIS has worked closely with the hospital and final financial adjustments in hospital aid resulted in a payment by the government of "$150,000 plus."

"This allowed us to show results in black figures this year," he said.

The annual report showed BCHIS had contributed 80.3 per cent of the hospital revenues while 9.3 per cent came from self-paying in-patients, 5.7 per cent from out-patients and 4.7 per cent from miscellaneous sources.

On the expenditure side, 78.8 per cent was paid out in salaries and wages, 7.1 per cent for drugs and medical supplies, 4.8 per cent for food, 1.2 per cent for fuel and 8.1 per cent for other supplies.

Total operating income for the hospital was $4,921,351. In 1963 the surplus at year's end totalled $42,008.

The Unhappy Warrior

Feud Colors Debates in House

By PETER C. NEWMAN

There they stand, the prime minister and the leader of the opposition, facing each other across the green carpet of the Commons, and the animosity between them is so intense that it is conspicuous even in this querulous Parliament as the great Canadian political feud of our generation.

The obvious relish with which John Diefenbaker taunts Lester Pearson, and the equally obvious disdain with which Pearson reacts mark a long-standing hostility. The man from Prince Albert, particularly when tarring the Pearson administration with the broad brush of scandal, frequently reduces the prime minister to a quivering lump of red-faced fury.

Seldom have there been two more different personalities at the summit of Canadian politics. John Diefenbaker is an outsider, a man of the people who has spent a harsh lifetime fending off the gloved hand of the Canadian establishment; a man who never managed to effectively exercise power although he held office with the largest majority in the nation's history.

Lester Pearson is an insider, a man who became the darling of the diplomatic set and never really had to fight anybody for anything. During the Diefenbaker Years, he retained his international influence. Visiting diplomats would pay formal respects to Diefenbaker, then discreetly shuffle over to Mike Pearson's office for advice on the real issues.

Feeds Antipathy

In part, it's this envy of his international stature that feeds the antipathy Diefenbaker feels for Pearson. Having failed to retain power Diefenbaker now seems determined to destroy the man who stole it from him.

Pearson, in contrast, tends to view Diefenbaker as a discredited politico whose erratic behaviour in office forfeited any further claim he might have on national leadership. He has little confidence that Diefenbaker will react with intellectual forthrightness and shows particular annoyance when the opposition leader claims (as he so frequently does) that it was the Conservative government which initiated wheat sales to Communist countries. (The first sales resulted from treaties negotiated in 1955 and 1956 by Pearson and Mitchell Sharp with Russia and Poland).

By dismissing Diefenbaker instead of trying to deal with him, Pearson has allowed the opposition leader to dominate the Commons and its proceedings. In the process, national attention has been focussed on the contrasting Parliamentary performance of the two men.

Crude Tactics

Diefenbaker's crude but devastating parliamentary tactics were learned during a quarter century of scrambling to be heard, while Pearson, as the nation's glamorous external affairs secretary, enjoyed what amounted to immunity from personal attack.

The opposition leader's assertiveness has lent support to his dreams that he can lead the nation again, while the prime minister's puzzling reluctance to act like a man in control of the nation's affairs has prompted despair among his supporters and the condemnation by his critics.

"Pearson's distaste for Parliament and misunderstanding of it has helped to make it a bear-pit," claims Prof. Denis Smith, head of Trent University's political science department.

"He hasn't learned the simplest rules of tact in managing the Commons. He is a bright example of the unwisdom of promoting non-parliamentarians to positions of political leadership."

Scandal Charges

Pearson's discomposure in the Commons has been most noticeable in the past few weeks when he's been trying to fend off tormentors who imply that one or other of his ministers has been guilty of scandalous conduct. The PM never replies by vigorously defending the colleague involved or by trying to turn the innuendo back on the attacker. Instead, he treats questions regarding his administration's moral standards with a polite scorn that somehow manages to ruffle the Commons into renewed and more vigorous sallies.

Even in attempting to field routine queries he alternates between saying too much and too little. By deliberately splitting a question into infinitely fine shades of meaning, he sometimes exposes himself to the charge of having misled Parliament. During the stormy debate on the Mr. Pearson television documentary, for example, he insisted initially that he had not seen the film although under pressure later he confirmed that he had seen a "slash" (rough) print of it.

At other times, Pearson suffers from a tendency to blurt out more information than he was asked for, so that he ends up by digging himself a hole, jumping into it, and then desperately trying to clamber out again.

More Separatism

On June 24, 1964, for instance, when Reid Scott, an NDP member from Toronto, asked him a routine question about a study into the effects of Quebec secession, Pearson promptly volunteered the explosive news that a task force of Ottawa civil servants was already at work assessing the economic implications of separatism.

In effect, he was tacitly acknowledging federal recognition of the possibility of a Canada without Quebec. Parliament was stunned by the revelation and after the end of its sitting that day, Pearson had to issue an explanatory statement, which described the study as merely "dealing with the economic inter-relations between parts of our country".

On at least one occasion Pearson absented himself from Parliament at a time of crisis, leaving the government's front bench leaderless and confused.

Leaves Ottawa

Last November 23, the day Erik Nielsen began to hurl his harpoons into the administration, Pearson scuttled off for a round of politicking on the Prairies.

"On that occasion, Pearson's United Nations training took over," says one of the PM's former external colleagues. "At the U.N., there are four ways you can react to a resolution. You can vote for it, against, it, abstain from it—or walk out to the delegates' lounge. When the scandal accusations started to fly, Pearson chose the delegates' lounge and took off for the West."

Pearson's supporters deny the charge, pointing out that cancellation of the PM's tour would have given the Nielsen charges more weight than they seemed to deserve. But even the Liberal leader's most loyal disciples don't attempt to defend his effectiveness as a parliamentarian — though they insist that it is irrelevant to his performance as a prime minister.

"I think Mr. Pearson has the proper evaluation of the current parliamentary situation," says Jack Pickersgill. "He's right in feeling that the management of this particular Parliament is not worth his time.

Relative Hush

"In other words, as long as we can, in one way or another, get through the measures that have to be got through, that's the important thing. The appearance of this Parliament cannot be improved by anybody."

The Pickersgill theory is borne out by Pearson's obvious preference for conducting the nation's business away from Parliament in the relative hush of the cabinet chamber or behind the closed doors of federal-provincial conferences. It its first 18 months in office, the Pearson government convened 120 federal-provincial meetings of various kinds—more than were held during the entire six years Diefenbaker was in power.

The function of Parliament in this context tends to be a secondary one—it is almost as though the Commons is being used to ratify "treaties" negotiated by Ottawa with the provincial premiers.

"A fourth level of government has crept into the picture," charges Marcel Lambert, a former Conservative cabinet minister, "because there have been any number of federal-provincial conferences at which major agreements were made which were then presented to the House as something binding."

Prefers Talks

Pearson prefers the conference table to the Commons floor for the simple reason that nothing in his life has prepared him to defend himself against persistent opposition badgering. Although he sat on the Liberal front benches in the St. Laurent administration for nine years, his glamorous portfolio and the success he enjoyed abroad, exempted him from the grubbier aspects of partisan politicking.

His innocence was shattered abruptly just four days after he was named party leader. On Jan. 20, 1958, Pearson moved a devastatingly naive supply motion, suggesting that the newly-elected Conservative administration hand back the government to the Liberals without an election. Diefenbaker's magnificently effective mangling of this Liberal amendment was a searing experience, which still colors Pearson's attitude towards both the Commons and John Diefenbaker.

When the great flag debate finally ended with closure on Dec. 14, 1964, Pearson delivered at the late Parliamentary sitting that day, the best speech of his career. Diefenbaker, on the other hand, his crusade for the Red Ensign ignominiously defeated, sat humbled in his seat, so torn by fury that his voice broke when he tried to interject.

At 2:30 a.m. that night, as Pearson was preparing to leave for home a friend pumped his hand and said, "That was a magnificent speech. It must surely make up for Jan. 20, 1958."

Final Testing

"Yes," Pearson replied, "it really did."

The deep animosity between Pearson and Diefenbaker, on display whenever the House of Commons meets, is approaching a final confrontation. Twice in the past four years, the two men have clashed in national elections with inconclusive results. The campaign now shaping up for this spring will almost certainly mean the downfall of one of them.

The Liberal government's policy reversals have caused the nation to stagger from crisis to crisis. Tomorrow's installment examines the anatomy and the pitfalls of the Pearson method of government.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

MISS MIDNIGHT'S NOTEBOOK — Trial balloon? Adlai Stevenson is being touted as the film industry's first choice to replace Eric Johnston as president of the Motion Picture Association of America. It seems unlikely that the ambassador to the United Nations would leave his global affairs to represent Hollywood, but insiders insist it could happen because of his long friendship with Anna M. Rosenberg, who is under contract to the flicker business at a hefty annual fee. Her duties are considered "public relations." The natural question: How many representatives does the movie industry need, especially in this era when there is virtually no "policing" of the flickers, and suggestive dialogue often gets by without any noticeable protest?

Dick Clark, who shot to fame as a television personality and has been associated with some of the best-known young talent in the country, has turned motion picture producer. He will make three films this year, to be released by Columbia. The first—"That Lovin' Feeling"—goes before the cameras this spring . . . Bookmakers expect more betting on the Kentucky Derby this year than in a long time. There's no stickout favorite, and this tends to make more fans risk a few $$$ on the nose of a long shot.

The toy industry doesn't quit. A new item on the market is a U-2 spy plane for the kiddies. It actually takes photos . . . Although Vince Edwards is still one of the biggest mail-pullers at ABC-TV, the producers of "Ben Casey" plan to introduce a new handsome interne next season . . . Henry Fonda is breathing a sigh of relief. A cyst on his face was found to be no more than that . . . A fading movie beauty, who split and then reconciled with her husband recently, is about to leave him again . . . Diana Ede, who plays a Ginger Rogers-type dancer in the Broadway musical "Fade Out—Fade in," has changed her name to Diana Eden. A numerologist assured her the extra letter would guarantee her stardom.

* * *

Vic Damone is a sheer delight in his act at the Plaza's Persian Room. He sings one marvellous song after the other—and what pipes! . . . Private eye Fred Otash in dictating his memoirs for the Morrow Publishing Co. He'll name names . . .

There's big excitement in the disk business over the bidding between Capitol and Columbia for the U.S. recording rights to Chad and Jeremy, who have just left a small label. Jeff Kruger, the Englishman who controls them, has flown here to make the decision . . .

Many of the Russian soldiers have left Havana and are hidden at military camps in Cuba's interior. The camps are completely "Sovietized," with all Cubans barred . . . David Jones, who played the Artful Dodger in "Oliver!" is leading candidate for the Sam Weller part in David Merrick's forthcoming production of "Pickwick." Quiz question: How is the clever Mr. Merrick going to make THAT dreary plot into a fun evening in the theatre? . . . Quote from Carroll Baker, as recorded by a California interviewer: "I realize I have to live with my limitations; for instance, I know I'll never play Lady Macbeth or any of the other great parts." Don't worry, Carroll: there'll always be "The Carpetbaggers Strike Back" or something like that.

* * *

Veteran character actress Ethel Griffies, who is 86 years old and about to co-star in "Billy Liar" at the Gate Theatre, is the only performer on or off Broadway who has limousine service provided by the producers. It's in her contract . . . The power of the teen-age market is making itself felt in the comedy field. London Lee, who features a "defence of teen-agers" routine in his act, is being besieged with offers from night club owners who want him to headline at their places during prom time.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Nancy Karp, age 10, of Horner, W. Va., for her question:

Is it true that dolphins lay eggs?

Zoos, it seems, are getting better all the time, and a few marine aquariums display huge sea dwellers in tanks and pools of their natural ocean waters. Here we may see the dolphin, and unless we know better we might mistake the mighty swimmer for a whopping fish.

Not all the creatures that dwell in the deep blue sea are fishes. The lobster and crusty crab are not true fish, and neither is the starfish, regardless of his name. There are also many non-fishes at the other end of the size scale. Most of the giant dwellers of the deep are mammals that belong to the same group as the cats and cows.

The largest animal that ever enjoyed life upon our planet is one of these sea-going mammals. He is the monster blue baleen whale of the animal order Cetacea. His smaller cetacean cousins include an assortment of dolphins and porpoises. Though they spend all their lives in the water, these splendid animals are air-breathing mammals. They can stay below only as long as they hold their breaths. A mother dolphin is no fish; neither does she lay eggs like a fish. Like all mammals she gives birth to live babies and feeds them on mother's milk.

Her family includes the common dolphin and the white dolphin, the bottle-nose dolphin and the risso dolphin, the huge and hungry grampus and a dolphin called the pilot whale. The unborn infant may be carried within his mother's body from six to 15 months, depending upon her species. So far as we know, the dolphin calf is always an only child.

Dolphin Intelligent Animal

The 12-foot bottle-nose dolphin may carry her infant for 390 days, and the newborn calf is almost four feet long. The 28-foot pilot whale gives birth to a six-foot dolphin calf, usually in the late fall. The calf of the common dolphin is born in summer, and the birth as a rule takes place in deep water. The infant struggles for perhaps 30 minutes to free himself from his mother's body, but the actual moment of birth is very fast. Now comes a risky problem, for Junior must reach the surface to gulp his first breath of air. He can do this under his own power, but his loving mother takes no chances.

She dives under her newborn darling and lifts him up through the water. There the proud mother and her infant rest and fill their lungs. Junior is ready for his first meal in half an hour, and being a mammal he is fed on mother's milk. The milk, however, is injected into his mouth, and unlike most mammals the dolphin calf does not have to suck his nourishment.

The cetacean dwellers of the deep share other features with the land - dwelling mammals. They are warm-blooded animals and highly intelligent. Dolphins wear no furry mammal-type coats, and in the water their dark and gleaming skins seem quite bare. Some, however, have a few whiskers and bristles, and the five-foot calf of the risso dolphin is likely to enter the world bedecked with a bristly white moustache.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Joyce St. Germaine, age 11, of Coventry, R.I., for her question:

How many bones has a snake?

The slithery snake has no arms or legs, but he is perhaps the boniest of all the world's animals. The spine of an animal's skeleton is a string of small interlocking bones called a vertebra, and most backboned animals have about 30 vertebrae. A human being has 32 or 34. The snake may have 100 or 200 vertebrae, and some of the largest species have as many as 300.

A pair of ribs is attached to most of the vertebrae in the snake's spine, which means that a big snake may have some 800 separate bones in his body.

Computer Age Affects Jobs

By JACK HUTTON

Early in the Second World War military experts faced the problem straight out of a mathematics textbook: how could they figure more quickly the mathematics charts that aimed artillery pieces at unseen targets?

The answer, not publicized until after the war, was a harmless looking box that could solve in half an hour problems which would occupy one man for a week.

Today that computer is more than a secret weapon: the odds are that computers already affect the lives of every single person reading these lines.

Do you use the mails? Giant computers speed service in the larger centres. Ever telephone by long-distance? The computer can not only connect you, but automatically figures out your bill on the spot.

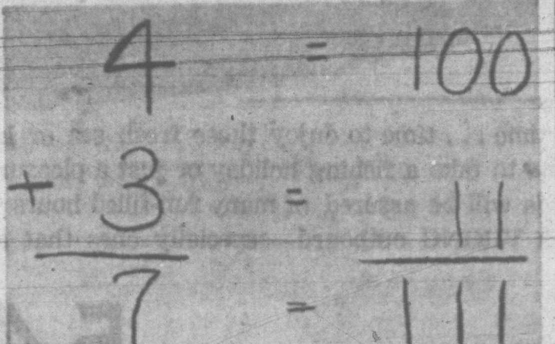
What is a computer? How far can it go in replacing the work man would ordinarily do? How do we prepare for a computer age? What changes will the computer make in our lives—or our children's lives?

Book Review

Those are questions every member of our generation should be asking today. And the best answers I have seen yet are wrapped up in a book entitled The New World of Computers, by Alfred Lewis. (Dodd, Mead and Company, New York).

It landed on my desk early this week. At first glance I decided the 77 pages were too elementary, not giving enough detail. Then I suddenly realized I was learning facts I didn't know before—all presented in deceptively simple language.

Lewis, a New York writer who specializes in popularizing scientific material, concentrates upon explaining preparations for the many jobs computers will offer.



What is a computer? Lewis says: "Computers are machines, related to those of the past, but they are different from all other machines. They do jobs that only human beings were able to do perviously."

A computer does not merely take the place of a man's muscles, his hands or his fingers. It, in a sense, substitutes for himself. In solving an arithmetic problem or running a factory, it does just what a human being does: it sees, it thinks, it acts."

From Fingers

Sounds scary, doesn't it? But Lewis recounts its development all the way from the original counting device—man's fingers. And he traces the various models that preceded those around today. The first commercial computer was built in 1951 for the U.S. Census Bureau.

By now computers, originally developed to do quick mathematical calculations, have been developed to the point where they can remember almost any amount of information fed them. And, more important, they will "remember" it any time you want it.

This means that more sophisticated computers are able to run factories all by themselves. In an oil refinery, for example, information on pressure, flow and other factors may go directly to a computer which knows exactly what to do under any circumstance.

This means more and more jobs can be turned over to computers. Lewis predicts: "Computers undoubtedly will run more and more factories. They will steer automobiles and navigate ships and airplanes, as they already have begun to do in experiments."

Right Track

But—and here's the important point—we still remain in charge. Says Lewis: "It (the computer) can be programed to direct a train to take the left track or the right track in a forked railway. But it will never be able to decide what track is right and what track is wrong.

How do we fit in?

Education, says Lewis, is the key. "The computer-controlled world we are entering will require many specialists. First of all, there will have to be programers to tell the computers what to do." And mathematics will be the base of this control.

"The coming world of computers will not consist only of scientists and engineers, however. There will be an even greater need for another profession — workers to deal with people."

In other words, teachers, writers, social workers, government planners and others will be needed to explain the changes under way and help people adjust. Just as important as the scientists, if not more.

A fascinating world we are entering. Why don't you watch for the New World of Computers on your library shelf?

And, while you are at it, ask your father or teacher how the computer is affecting his income tax this year. The computer won't lower what he pays—but it won't forget the figure either.

The rush of letters for first copies of our Project Pen lists completely overwhelmed what we had available. If you haven't your copy of the list, it will be there soon. Sorry for the delay.

Victoria Flying Club has acquired the former Air Canada terminal at Patricia Bay Airport as its new home. Purchase price wasn't disclosed but the club will finance some of it through social events.

Liberal Sue Bill Silenced

A bill to permit private citizens to sue the Crown got the silent treatment in the legislature Wednesday.

Alan Macfarlane (Lib.-Oak Bay) was asking for third year in a row that the government approve legislation bringing B.C. into line with the federal government and other provincial governments where a citizen may sue the Crown in court.

Speaker W. H. Murray ruled the bill out of order unless a government member of cabinet rank agreed to its presentation.

Mr. Macfarlane appealed to the attorney-general to grant his consent to presentation of the bill.

"His refusal will be a denial of the people's rights and B.C. will become a backwater of justice," he said.

The government benches remained silent and once again the Speaker ruled the bill as presented by Mr. Macfarlane, out of order.

Mr. Macfarlane asked if the Speaker would "put the question to the government" but Speaker Murray replied that such a presentation was not the function of the chair.

To cries of "shame" from opposition benches the bill was shelved.

Health Team Looks Over Sewage Units

Members and officials of Metro Health toured Saanich sewage treatment plants Wednesday, including the controversial one serving Northridge subdivision off Carey Road.

The tour was arranged by Saanich officials to give health officials a first-hand look at the plants. Among them were medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread and Reeve Gordon Lee of Central Saanich, metro health chairman.

"We will probably go away with much more information than prior to this visit," Reeve Lee commented.

Chief point of interest was where the Northridge plant discharges treated sewage into Colquitz Creek.

Saanich has applied to double the discharge to 70,000 gallons a day and metro health has opposed the application now before the Pollution Control Board.

MURKY CREEK

The effluent running into the creek was clean water while the creek itself was a murky brown color.

Municipal engineer Neville Life explained that chlorination took care of bacteria but viruses were an unknown factor in the effluent.

The visitors saw the Chesterlea plant, which serves 70 homes; Northridge, which serves 170 homes and Willow-McBriar which as a capacity of 480 homes.

Effluent from all three plants, which cost a total of $108,000, eventually drains into Colquitz Creek.

At Chesterlea and Northridge, raw sewage solids are chopped up, aerated, settled, chlorinated and discharged.

At Willow-McBriar, the solids settle into the bottom of a tower and are removed and buried twice yearly while the liquid is sprayed through a rock filter, chlorinated and discharged.

CONTINUAL TESTS

Tests are run all the time and reports sent to Mr. Life weekly.

The plants serve pockets of population where sanitary sewers do not exist.

Mr. Life said sanitary sewers serve 9,300 properties in Saanich, more than half the number of houses.

The sewers discharge into the sea off Gordon Head and through the city system.

One of the problems in expanding this system was that the city's line could only handle a certain volume and Saanich was limited to the amount it could send into this pipe.

Metro Health To Undergo Close Look

Health and finance committees of city council are expected to slash at a proposed $25,000 increase in Metro Health board spending this year.

The $267,035 budget was due to go before city council's committee meeting today. It must also go before Esquimalt, Oak Bay and School District 61 councillors and trustees.

Salary increases provide for much of the proposed increase in spending, including $20 a month for nurses, 3½ per cent for clerical staff and $2,787 a year for the senior medical officer, accounting for two-thirds or more of the $25,000.

The budget may be a factor in discussions scheduled between municipal representatives and Health Minister Eric Martin on the future of metropolitan health services.

Mr. Martin will meet the mayor and others following the current session of the legislature.

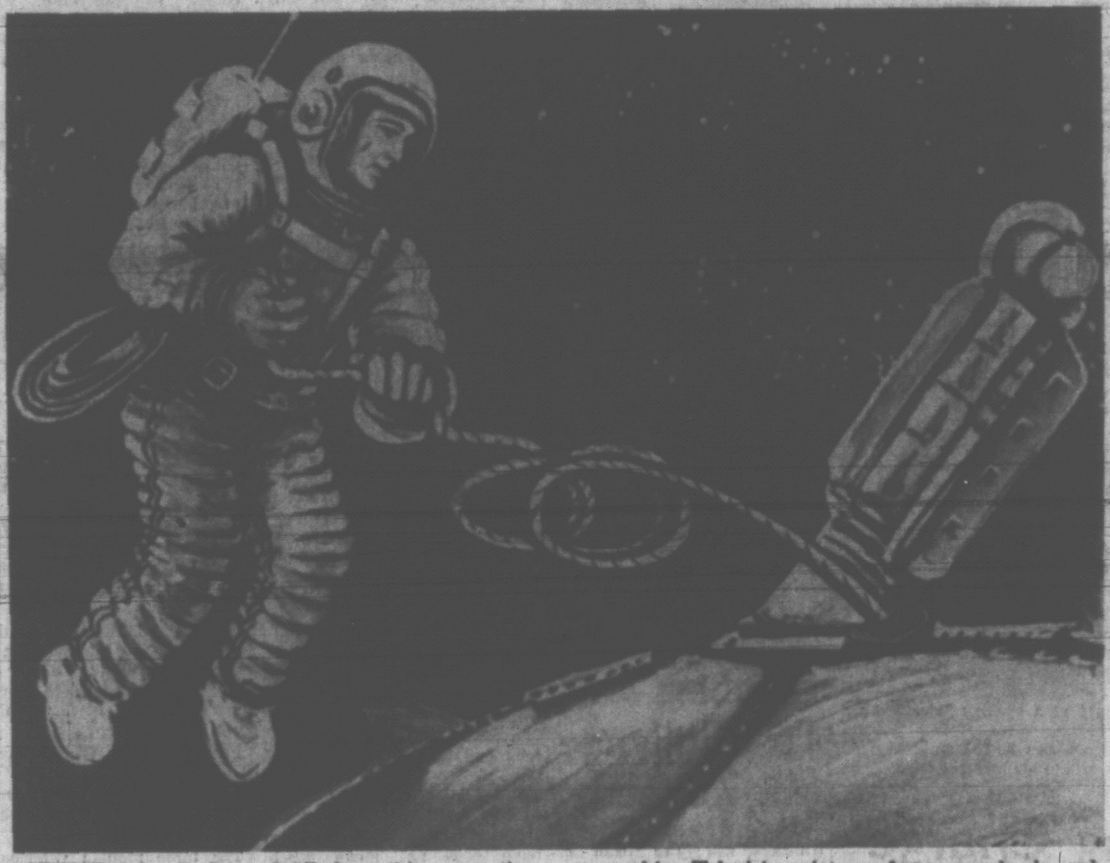
Daring Young Man Flies With the Greatest of Ease

Moscow television viewers saw these pictures on their screen today of Cosmonaut Alexei Leonov becoming first man to step out of orbiting capsule in outer space. At left he is shown preparing to push off from capsule after emerging from hatch. At right he is floating freely at end of rope. Leonov ventured about 16 feet from the capsule and stayed out about 20 minutes before re-entering the hatch. Leonov and Pavel Belyayev continued to orbit the earth today in their two-man ship and it was not known when they would land. (AP Wirephotos.)



ARTIST John Carlton of AP drew this conception of man's first flight in space outside protection of spaceship. Television pictures from capsule showed Alexei Leonov floating in weightlessness.

Camera Records Event As Ship's Door Opens

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow television today showed Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov step outside his space ship—the first time this has been accomplished in outer space.

Moscow radio, in an English-language broadcast, said: "Here in our studio in Radio Moscow we are at this moment watching the Soviet astronaut, Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov, outside his space ship for the first time in history.

"The picture of Alexei Leonov as he left the space ship, as he conducted his observations in outer space and as he returned safely to his space ship was recorded on tape here on the ground and has just been shown on Moscow television by means of the intervision hookup. It was also seen in the countries of western Europe."

Moscow television also showed pictures of the commander of the space ship, Lt. Col. Pavel Belyayev.

45 Children Die as Planes Bomb Village

DA NANG (Reuters)—Forty-eight persons, including 45 children, were killed Wednesday when South Vietnamese air force planes bombed a village near here, military sources said today.

The sources said the village was flying the flag of the Viet Cong.

A group of villagers marched on Da Nang after the raid carrying several coffins but South Vietnamese troops turned them back before they reached the top-security Da Nang air base.

The sources said the Skyraider planes destroyed the village school and other buildings after an observation plane was shot at as it flew over. Thirty-seven children were in the school at the time of the raid.

A Viet Cong flag flew over the village of Pan Quang, about 375 miles northeast of Saigon and five from Da Nang. It was regarded as Communist-controlled despite its nearness to the U.S. base.

Heavy civilian casualties have resulted frequently from air strikes on hamlets where Viet Cong are believed to be operating.

The village raid came after U.S. B-57 jet bombers again pounded Viet Cong positions in Binh Duoung province south of Saigon Wednesday.

South Vietnamese forces today claimed 64 Viet Cong guerrillas were killed and 16 cap-

He Double-Checked Lifeline During 'Swim' Outside Ship

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — The first man to gambol in space resembled a little boy exuberantly playing a new game.

Moscow television showed Lt.-Col. Alexei Leonov making man's first sally from the protective shelter of his spaceship shortly after the launching of the Voskhod-II spaceship.

The six-minute TV sequence showed Leonov rising from a hatch, on what appeared to be the upper surface of the spacecraft, and raise himself until his trunk was outside the hatch where he remained for about three minutes, standing hesitantly on the doorstep to space.

He gripped the rim of the hatch with his right hand and made a few sweeping motions with his left—all the time facing the camera.

The Soviet news agency Tass later explained he was waiting for spaceship commander, Col. Pavel Belyayev's command to kick free.

Leonov was wearing a white helmet. Hoses and other attachments stretched over his shoulder from the helmet to a pack on his back.

Then, the coils of Leonov's safety line were suddenly ejected from the hatch, as though someone had thrown them. The cosmonaut himself reached back into the hatch to draw out the rest of the slack.

Bracing himself with both hands on the rim of the hatch, Leonov arched his back and his feet floated up and out of the hatch.

His movements were surprisingly agile — resembling a swimmer moving underwater.

Throughout the filmed sequence, the white outline of the earth's curvature could be seen in the background, alternating with the blackness of outer space.

Leonov held on to the hatch for a few brief moments, as though reluctant to leave the safety of his space vehicle.

After he finally pushed himself off from the shiny surface of the spaceship, he slowly floated back, away from the camera.

He turned on his back and for a few seconds hung motionless, floating on his back in a prone position.

His body continued to float away from the camera and his lifeline could be seen stretching taut. Leonov reached over and touched the line—as though to adjust it and reassure himself it was there.

Despite the cumbersome-looking space suit with its "autonomous life - support system," Leonov began slowly and gracefully turning somersaults in the air.

He turned head over heels with increasing abandon while his body drifted in and out of the camera's range.

The TV sequence ended after showing about six minutes. Moscow viewers did not see him swim back to the ship.

Tass later said Leonov had been outside the cabin's atmosphere for 20 minutes, including 10 minutes outside the ship.

Wilson Talks To Gromyko

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson held a conference with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko late today amid mounting indications of Russian pressure for Britain to take a more "independent" line on the fighting in Viet Nam.

A Russian foreign office document released in Moscow Wednesday night asked Britain to join with the Soviet Union in condemning United States action against North Viet Nam as a "gross violation" of international agreements.

Indonesians Demonstrate

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesians demonstrated in two areas of south Sumatra today for seizure of American Stanvac Oil Company installations that are estimated to be worth $80,000,000.

The official Antara news agency said Communist-led United Action Oil Workers took over the Stanvac refinery at Sungaigerung, near Palembang, in protest against American support of Malaysia.

But informed sources said later both the refinery and installations in the nearby oilfield of Pendopo, another target, remained in American hands.

The workers were reported to have returned to their jobs.

Soviet Feat Seen on TV

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia thrilled the world with a new space triumph today, the first nation to let a spaceman step into outer space for a "weightless swim" before returning to a high-flying manned satellite.

A 30-year-old miner's son, Lt.-Col. Alexei Leonov, became the world's first astronaut to separate from a spaceship in orbit—and to survive.

Moscow television transmitted a live program directly from aboard the spaceship.

Moscow radio said Leonov, father of a four-year-old girl, "felt good" as he clambered back through the hatch of Russia's latest spacecraft, Voskhod (Sunrise) II, after his mid-space adventure of about 20 minutes.

The Voskhod had completed its fifth 91-minute orbit at 5 p.m. (6 p.m. PST) and Leonov and fellow cosmonaut were "in good condition and felt well," the Soviet news agency Tass said. It listed their pulse rates as between 70 and 72 per minute and said they "ate with a good appetite."

While his colleague made astro-navigational observations and measurements, "Leonov rested in accordance with the program."

His breathtaking space swim was seen by millions on television in Russia and throughout the world, as Moscow released a graphic video-tape two hours afterwards.

Scientific observers said the feat appeared to put Russia far ahead in its space race with the United States, which plans to launch its two-man Gemini project Tuesday.

Well-Prepared for 'Intricate Tasks'

Leonov, said to be well prepared for "intricate tasks in flight," left the spaceship at 11:30 a.m. (12:30 a.m. PST), 90 minutes after he and Col. Pavel Belyayev, 39, were blasted-off on Russia's eighth manned space shot. He moved five metres (16.4 feet) into the void away from the space ship.

Moscow television showed a film of Leonov floating next to the spacecraft, apparently attached to it by a line to prevent his floating away.

He was wearing a bulky suit and heavy helmet. What looked like cylinders of oxygen were on his back.

The cosmonaut did somersaults in space and floated in a loose, relaxed-appearing manner of weightlessness.

The curve of the earth and the blackness of deep space could be seen in the background of the televised program from the spaceship. It was broadcast almost two hours after the venture into space was made at the end of the first orbit.

During the live TV hookup, Belyayev and Leonov both spoke over the radio telephone with Cuban Defence Minister Raul Castro, now staying in Moscow.

Castro asked them whether they had seen Cuba and the two men said they had seen all the continents and conveyed warm greetings to the Cuban people.

After hearing the cosmonauts' report on the fulfilment of their task, Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev addressed them on behalf of the party, the presidium and the Soviet government and people.

In a speech broadcast by Moscow radio he said:

"This is an exciting moment for mankind. For the first time in the world man has boldly and literally opened the door on the cosmos."

The latest Russian spectacular, beside being the first human jaunt outside a space vehicle, also beat the United States two-man Gemini launching scheduled for Tuesday.

The two-man spaceship was launched this morning from a secret base, probably in Soviet central Asia.

Pair May Stay Up More Than Week

It was thought the space shot might last between one and two weeks. There also was speculation that the two-man flight might be followed by another for a spectacular attempt at a history-making link-up in space.

Today's launch was Russia's first space shot since last Oct. 12 when three cosomauts—a pilot, a scientist and a doctor—made 16 orbits in 24 hours aboard Voskhod I.

According to preliminary data, the spaceship orbited the earth once every 90.9 minutes.

Its minimum distance from the earth perigee was about 11

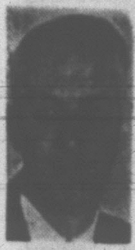
In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

Time has suddenly become precious to a Legislative Assembly which has been at work since January 21, and is expected to break the Bennett government for longevity in session.

"If this doesn't end within three days," declared Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi plaintively, as the third night session of the week lengthened, "they'll carry me out of here in a coffin!"



Mr. Gaglardi's sentiments are general, and eyes are turned longingly toward March 24, the date on which the wise-money now predicts that Her Majesty's British Columbia representative will be conducted past the shiny brass bar to approve legislation and dismiss the House.

Meanwhile, on Wednesday afternoon debate was drastically shortened on three private members' bills by a legitimate but arbitrary chop.

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane fell victim to this parliamentary gimmick when he sought support for an amendment which "in plain, ordinary clear language would put out of doubt for all time the status of members of the purchasing commission."

While Mr. Macfarlane's challenge still hung in air, up rose Attorney-General Bonner with St. Patrick's Day green in his lapel to move adjournment of the debate.

Alex Macdonald, NDP for Vancouver East, next tried his luck with 'An Act Respecting Privacy' which would put an end to unsanctioned "bugging" of private conversations.

Mr. Macdonald offered a chilling word-picture of the "Bumper Beeper" with which snoopers can pick up a whisper in a speeding automobile, then touched on the "Big Beam", a device that permits a private eye to tune in on a street corner chat two blocks distant.

He had barely completed a warning that such instruments threaten peoples' "marvellous eccentricity, individuality and courage in expressing themselves" when the axe again descended in the shape of a government-side adjournment move.

For Grand Forks-Greenwood NDP Mrs. Lois Haggen, same deal.

Before discussion could begin on her annual fireworks-squelching amendment or her well-argued attempt to obtain equal pay for women, government voices moved to adjourn the debate right out from under her.

* * *

Summary treatment, this; and I suspect those bills will get short shrift on their next appearance. But the move did clear the way for Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Williston's estimates.

Into these, at the evening sitting, NDP David Barrett for Dewdney dropped a bombshell in the shape of a park not on Mr. Williston's list, but so designated in 1944 by John Hart as Coalition premier.

"A public scandal," Mr. Barrett termed approaches to government by Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources Ltd.—a firm which includes among its directors Fred Dietrich, provisional director of the shadow-bank of British Columbia.

The park is 9,000-acre Cyprus Bowl in West Vancouver.

* * *

Earlier, Gordon Gibson, second Liberal for North Vancouver, presented to the legislature a list of 19 forest management questions which he asserted he had tried in vain to lay before the House forestry committee.

In total, these queries put forward Mr. Gibson's already-expressed opinion that, over the last 10 years, "the peoples' timber" has been sold at least $500 million too cheaply.

Mr. Williston's answer, in part:

"In the final analysis, in this democratic process, somebody has to make the decisions and stand the criticism.

"It would be a very easy task to simply report recommendations to the legislature, but I have to say, 'We will do this', and take the consequences of what must be done.

"I've never shirked from making decisions . . . If I don't, some other human has to!"

miles and its maximum apogee about 310 miles. The orbit angle was about 65 degrees.

Two-way radio communications were constantly maintained with the space ship.

It was the first venture into space for Belyayev and Leonov. They were taking part in Russia's eighth manned space probe since Major Juri Gagarin became the world's first cosmonaut April 12, 1961.

A report by Belyayev and telemetric data showed that the crew withstood satisfactorily the orbiting and the transition to weightlessness.

All the equipment on board the spaceship was functioning normally.

The launching was announced here 48 minutes after the blast-off at 10 a.m. (11 p.m. PST).

The blast-off was preceded by the launching of 10 Cosmos research satellites in the last three weeks. The Cosmos probes are usually sent up to test conditions for a manned flight.

Higher Than Earlier Manned Ships

Voskhod II was ranging higher above the earth than any previous manned spaceship launched by Russia. Its maximum altitude of 310 miles was nearly 55 miles higher than that reached by Voskhod I and about 120 miles higher than Maj. Gagarin's flight.

Three Cosmos satellites launched Monday went up about 1,150 miles.

Voskhod I came down after 24 hours, but there were unconfirmed reports that its flight was cut short because it coincided with the dismissal of former premier Khrushchev.

In Voskhod I, the crew members lay side by side, facing an instrument panel.

Instead of the heavy spacesuits and pressurized helmets of previous shots they wore only light woollen suits, sports shirts and comfortable light shoes.

Over their suits they had blue jackets to protect them from the cold and wore light white helmets with earphones.

Voskhod I was the first space ship to come back to earth with the crew inside, making ejector seats unnecessary.

It was fitted with a newly-designed braking system that was reported to have brought it down unscathed, by parachute.

Voskhod I landed in the north Kazakstan region in Soviet central Asia.

In 1962, Russia orbited Maj. Andrian Nikolayev aboard Vostok III. The next day Lt.-Col. Pavel Popovich joined him in space aboard Vostok IV. The two ships flew side by side for three days and landed within six minutes of each other.

In 1963, Lt.-Col. Valery Bykovsky went up aboard Vostok V. Two days later, the world's first woman cosmonaut, Valentina Tereshkova, went into orbit aboard Vostok VI, and the two ships stayed up together for three days.

As far as is known, no attempt at a space rendezvous was made during these dual flights.

Col. Bykovsky is the Soviet cosmonaut who has stayed longest in space—119 hours. He made 81 orbits in his five-day flight.

New Voting Charge In Douglas Riding

OTTAWA (CP)—Government House Leader George McIlraith told the Commons Tuesday that a letter has been received alleging that irregularities took place in the 1963 federal election in Burnaby-Coquitlam, represented by New Democratic Leader Douglas.

The minister said the letter was received by the Commons elections committee and referred to a Vancouver judge who will conduct a judicial inquiry into allegations that six unidentified unions conspired to rig votes for NDP candidates in some British Columbia ridings in 1963.

The inquiry was set up a month ago by the federal government at the request of Mr. Douglas, who said any persons found guilty of election irregularities should be prosecuted and punished to the full extent of the law.

Mr. McIlraith was replying to Robert Beaule (Creditiste—Quebec East), who said the latest allegations came from "one Mr. Brown, a resident of British Columbia."

Mr. Beaule asked that a copy of Mr. Brown's letter be tabled in the Commons and the minister said he had no objection.

VANCOUVER (CP) — An inquiry into alleged election irregularities here convened briefly Tuesday and was adjourned to March 23 to allow commission counsel to consider evidence.

Climbers To Challenge Mt. Kennedy

SEATTLE (AP) — Everest Whittaker will fly to Yukon Territory in a "few days" to join in an ascent of the 13,900-foot Canadian peak named for the late president John F. Kennedy.

Seattle newspapers said there were reports that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, (D-N.Y.), brother of the slain president, might also take part in the cimb.

Kennedy, reported to be in New York, could not be reached for comment.

The climb is sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the Boston museum of science.

Whittaker, who in 1963 became the first American to climb Mt. Everest, said at his home in nearby Redmond there was no assurance the ascent would be successful.

"This is an unclimbed summit," he said. "The weather can stop any party that makes the attempt."

Mme. Chiang Praises Firm Stand by LBJ

By ROBERT EUNSON

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—"I am really glad that (U.S.) President Johnson has taken such a firm stand in Viet Nam," the lovely Chinese woman said in English.

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek continued:

"People in Asia have been watching very closely America's attitude toward not only her enemies but her friends. The people of Asia often feel that America will do nothing to uphold her often-proclaimed principles of helping people hold onto the freedom they have. That is why people sometimes ask, 'why shouldn't we be like the neutralists and not offend the Communists?' "

Mme. Chiang, 64 next Wednesday, appears to be in her early 40s. Her exquisite figure was cased in a black silk dress, and she wore her usual pearl ornaments.

She said in her opinion the problem in Southeast Asia is strictly a confrontation between an imperialistic Red China and the free world. Married to Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-shek for more than 37 years, she has been close to her people's fight for freedom most of her life.

"Russia has everything to lose should she take part in a war in Asia, while the Chinese Communists feel they have much to gain."

She said the mainland Chinese are suffering from lack of food and clothing, necessities which the Russian people enjoy while the Chinese Communists "have wasted substance through folly and building of a nuclear pile."

She had this to say about China's nuclear progress:

"Whatever little device they have does not mean much should the Chinese Communists exacerbate the situation since the device is not sufficiently sophisticated as such."

Labor Group Raps Gov't Over Ferries

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver and Disrtict Labor Council Tuesday night accused the provincial government of denying labor legislation to ferry authority employees.

Council delegates voted to go on record as opposing a government ruling that fair wages and conditions of employment regulations do not apply to ferry workers.

Secretary Paddy Neale said the ferry authority has called tenders for janitorial service now performed by a unionized company.

Under the government ruling, he said a non-union company would likely win the conrtact.

WAR CRIMES PROSECUTION LIMIT ERASED

VIENNA (Reuters) — The Austrian government has approved an emendment to the penal code to enable Austrian courts to prosecute war crimes indefinitely. The new bill provides no limitation for capital crimes. Austria has no death penalty.

The two coalition parties, the conservative People's Party and the socialist party, which together hold 156 of the 165 parliamentary seats, unanimously welcomed the amendment.

tured in three actions in the northernmost 1st Army Corps area. The government said 16 of its men were wounded and none killed.

Meanwhile, the North Viet Nam News Agency reported that Communist forces in the south had annihilated four government companies and caused heavy casualties in the first 10 days of this month. It said they killed 700 "United States puppets."

On the political front, the South Vietnamese government announced it will "deport" three leaders of a peace movement across the border to the north Friday.

Previously Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi said he planned to drop them by parachute into North Viet Nam but was overruled by the government.

The three men—a veterinarian, a history teacher and a journalist—were arrested last month after collecting 358 signatures for a petition demanding an immediate ceasefire in the war.

Chinese Shoot Down Nationalist Plane

Peking radio said the plane was an American-built RF101 operated by the Nationalist government on Formosa.

Wallace Appeals

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—An attorney for Alabama Gov. George Wallace today asked the U.S. 5th circuit court of appeals to cancel a federal court ruling permitting a civil rights march from Selma to Montgomery, Ala. The order was filed by Attorney O. K. Goodwyn of Montgomery.

NEGRO, WHITE PUPILS STAGE VICIOUS BRAWL

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—Street fighting between Negro and white students today closed one of this city's largest high schools.

Dozens of fist fights broke out before more than a hundred policemen, some of them on horseback, broke up the demonstration which stemmed from a weekend of racial incidents on the east side.

Police said apparently nobody was hurt seriously although two boys were taken to a hospital for x-rays.

The situation was tense at noon, hours after the fighting had been broken up. People milled around in the streets, booing the white-helmeted policemen.

Ex Officer to Face Trial on 'Benefits'

OTTAWA (CP)—Retired Brig. John Baxter Allan will be formally committed April 15 for trial on charges of conspiring to accept and of accepting a benefit of more than $8,000 between 1957 and 1963, senior magistrate Glenn Strike ruled Tuesday at the end of Allan's two-day preliminary hearing.

Bail of $4,000 was continued for the dapper, 50-year-old Allan who was the Canadian Army's vice-quartermaster-general until his compulsory retirement last August.

The benefit Allan allegedly accepted comprised merchandise—payment of hotel bills and transfer of shares from four Toronto brothers who were directors or agents of a company or companies doing business with the federal government.

SHAREHOLDERS

The brothers are Ben, Morris, Mark and Edward Levy, the major shareholders in Levy Industries Limited of Toronto.

Morris Levy testified Tuesday under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, meaning that his testimony could not be used against him in other court proceedings except on a charge of perjury.

Crown Attorney John Cassels suddenly cut short his case with seven Crown witnesses still waiting to testify and moved for Allan's formal committal for trial.

Magistrate Strike agreed. Mr. Cassels said the trial will be held this fall.

SMOKED TURKEY

Mr. Cassels read letters purportedly written by Allan to Ben Levy Dec. 30, 1957, and Dec. 29, 1959, thanking the latter for "holiday season gifts" of smoked turkey and ham.

Morris Levy, vice-president and secretary of Levy Industries Limited, identified as from his company a file marked "Brig. J. B. Allan."

He said the Levy interests tendered on Canadian defence contracts and bought material through Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, a Crown company.

WHEAT SALES LOSSES COST $100 MILLION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may be losing $100,000,000 of business a year because of a requirement that half of any wheat sold to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries must be carried in U.S. ships, a government official testified Tuesday.

"This year, Russia again is important rather substantial quantities of wheat from Canada and Australia—but not from the United States," Agriculture Undersecretary Charles Murphy told a Senate banking subcommittee hearing.

Quebec Revolt 'Overdue'

The revolt in French Canada over equal rights was long overdue, it was suggested here Wednesday by a prominent political scientist.

"The wonder is that it has taken the better part of a century for the aggravations in this uneven partnership to erupt into the agonized and understandably extremist complaints that are now a matter of close scrutiny." Dr. J. E. Hodgetts, head of the political studies department at Queen's University, told a group of political scientists attending a convention here.

"In my view, what is really at stake is the broad issue of how to create a genuinely representative national public service. Unfortunately the issue is likely to become too narrowly construed as a problem of how to placate French Canada alone."

Dr. Hodgetts said it is important to remind ourselves that during the pre-confederation period, political and administrative concession made to the concept of equal partnership were evident in Canada.

"Here was a system topped by a hyphenated premiership, often organized in double-barreled ministries, staffed in dual divisions, and to cap it all, a system of rotating capitals.

"All this came to an abrupt end in 1867 and Quebec, like the American south, found itself outvoted politically and forced to accept as a nucleus for the new central civil service, a staff drawn largely from Ontario, housed in a permanent capital in Ottawa and conducting all official business in English."

C.A.R.S Plans Therapist Student Aid

The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, B.C. division, is again offering financial aid to British Columbia students qualifying for training as physical and occupational therapists.

Bursary loans of up to $500 are available to students who have completed Grade 13 or first-year university. The required subjects are English 100; chemistry 101 or 102; mathematics 101 (revised) or 120; zoology 105 (or biology 100 senior matriculation) and one other credit course.

"Training can be taken at the school of rehabilitation, University of British Columbia," says Mrs. Ray Talbot, information officer.

"Job opportunities in this vital field of rehabilitation are unlimited."

The society is also offering a first prize of $100 for the best essay on physical or occupational therapy by a high school student.

Entries will be judged by members of the Canadian Physiotherapy Association, the Canadian Occupational Therapy Association and members of the press.

Entries should be sent directly to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, 645 West Broadway, Vancouver 9, not later than May 31.

U.K. Doctors Back Down

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's 23,000 family doctors backed down Wednesday night from their "more pay or we quit" ultimatum. They left the way clear for a negotiated peace with the government on the embattled National Health Service.

The doctors put their "strike" deadline back to July 1 when the British Medical Association, speaking for the doctors, offered Health Minister Kenneth Robinson three months to work out new pay rates and employment conditions.

More than 500 students are expected to attend classes in the Greater Victoria School Board's summer session which will begin July 5 in Oak Bay High School. The session is intended to give students an opportunity to increase their junior high school marks.

300 QUESTIONED

Murder of Widow Remains Mystery

CLOVERDALE, B.C. (CP)—A year ago a 68-year-old widow was tied to a kitchen chair, tortured and beaten and finally stabbed to death.

Who killed Mary Rhoda Oliver and why are questions still baffling police in this tiny Fraser Valley farming community 20 miles southeast of Vancouver.

Mrs. Oliver lived like a recluse. She admitted to acquaintances she thought she would die an unnatural death. But she never said why.

More than 300 persons in British Columbia, Eastern Canada and parts of the United States were questioned by police. No suspects have been found.

The body of Mrs. Oliver was discovered in her house Feb. 3, 1964. A paring knife was embedded in her back. A towel was carefully draped over her face. She had been slain three days before.

A bent bread knife was found in the kitchen sink. Her glasses were on the kitchen table. A magnifying glass was on the floor near her body.

Police said Mrs. Oliver was tied to a chair and tortured. She suffered a dislocated jaw, a broken nose, bruised eyes and cuts. The killer then stabbed her with three different knives.

A small amount of money in her purse was not touched. Neither was a gold watch of considerable value. She kept little money in the house. She was not sexually attacked. Nothing besides the knives, the chair, the magnifying glass and the towel were out of place in the house.

Mrs. Oliver had no known enemies. After exhausting other avenues of investigation, police questioned patients released from mental hospitals but found no more clues.

Constable Bill Kerr, now heading the investigation, said he had studied the case so long "it is almost as though I had lived in the same house with her."

"She was a woman of clockwork habits, but for some reason which I can't determine she broke them the day she was killed."

She usually left her home only on Thursdays to shop. The day she was killed, a Saturday, she was seen in a store in town, about one mile from her house.

A car was seen by a neighbor in Mrs. Oliver's driveway shortly afterwards, but police have not been able to trace the vehicle.

Detectives even mingled at her funeral, checking on those who attended and looking for the mystery car.

Nothing was turned up.

A $500 reward was posted by the municipal council in March, 1964. It has never been claimed.

WINDFALL PRESIDENT TELLS PROBE

'I Would Probably Have Been Shot'

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—Rumors of a rich ore strike on the Windfall property near here had been circulating round Toronto's Bay Street for weeks before the company revealed that a drill hole had shown no commercial values.

Price of Windfall stock skyrocketted on the Toronto Stock Exchange from 56 cents to a high of $5.60, but Windfall President George MacMillan told a royal commission inquiry Wednesday he did not know the results of the final assay on the core until 3:30 p.m. July 30.

The stock plunged to 80 cents overnight, deflated by the announcement.

The 65-year-old mining veteran said he probably "would have been shot" had he announced to shareholders that there was no ore in the first 570 feet of the drill hole and later discovered ore at a deeper level.

He was testifying at the last days of hearings here of the commission, appointed under Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Appeal Court to investigate circumstances around the movement of Windfall stock. The commission resumes hearings in Toronto next month.

GIVES HIS REASON

Mr. MacMillan told the commission:

"There has been some discussion as to why I did not assay the crucial area of the drill core from 416 to 570 feet. This has caused me some troubles also.

"I felt at that time that I was not through the area where there was mineralization. I don't think any man alive could say I would not run into commercial ore as I drilled.

'Had I assayed that crucial core and told the public I had no commercial values, and then drilled further and found ore—as I had a 50-50 chance of doing—the roof would have fallen in. It would have been said that I knew all along there was ore. I probably would have been shot. In that dilemma I, and I alone, decided to finish the hole, and have it assayed."

Mrs. Viola MacMillan followed her husband to the stand.

Her testimony related largely to the acquisition of the Windfall property from the staking group of John Larche, Donald McKinnon and Alfred Rousseau for $100,000 and 250,000 shares of Windfall stock.

"I couldn't make a deal on behalf of the company," she said. "There were shareholders to consider and the Toronto Stock Exchange and other conditions. I took the deal in my name knowing it would have to be offered to the company."

Mines Lose Ground In Vancouver Trade

Losses were general in the mining section of the Vancouver Stock Exchnge at noon today. Peso dropped .05 to $1.58, Rodstrom lost .02 to .50 and Silver Standard was off .03 to $1.28.

Texmont declined .05 to $1.59 on 29,000 shares.

Torwest, one of the few mines to gain went up .04 to .95. Continental Potash rose .04 to .57.

In the oils, Share jumped .05 to .45 on 65,000 shares and Fort St. John dropped .15 to $2.

AT TORONTO industrials appeared to make a small recovery but remained on the downside near the close of moderate stock exchange trading today.

The speculative list was quiet, with little trading and few notable price changes.

In the main list Imperial Life dropped 5 to 340 and Dominion Electrohome and Stelco ⅜ each. Consolidated Paper was off ⅞, and Massey-Ferguson ¾. B.C. Telephone fell ½.

Algoma Steel, Bell Telephone and B.C. Forest Products each declined ⅛.

United New Fortune fell 1½ to 24 cents among speculatives. Texmont, Midrim and Genex each dropped 2 cents to $1.60 and 66 and 52 cents respectively.

Noranda clipped ½ in senior base metals and Cominco ¼.

Home A and B dropped ¼ among oils. Golds were quiet.

AT NEW YORK cigarette issues were weak in a mixed market. Trading was moderately active.

Cigarette manufacturers widened their losses in late afternoon as they reacted increasingly to the proposal to double taxes on cigarettes in New York state.

Down a point or so were Reynolds Tobacco and American Tobacco. Lorillard and Liggett and Myers lost nearly a point. Philip Morris, steady in hte morning, eased in the afternoon.

AT MONTREAL stocks were off but Equity Explorations was higher. Equity Explorations was up seven cents to 37 cents and appeared steady compared with its spectacular plunge of $1.40 from Friday's closing price of $1.77. Drastic decrease said to have been caused by poor assay report revealed by Quebec Securities Commission.

AT LONDON the market remained quiet and rather dull today.

With the bank rate unchanged, gilt-edged stocks were idle and little altered.

Dollar stocks were mixed. Leading Canadians, however, showed up well and Hollinger and International Nickel were an especially good features. Others to improve included Algoma, Aluminium, B.A. Oil, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, Imperial Oil.

APPOINTED director of the food and drug directorate is Dr. R. A. Chapman of Ottawa who succeeds retiring director Dr. C. A. Morell.

Quebec Orders Inquiry Into Mining Stock

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Securities Commission has ordered the suspension of registration of any further treasury shares of Equity Explorations on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

The commission said earlier that engineering samples from property owned by Equity "show a considerable discrepancy" from those reported by the company.

The stock exchange has ordered an inquiry into trading in Equity stock March 12 and March 15, asking all members to present a complete analysis on their dealings in this stock on these two days.

The commission and the exchange decided to act because of a drop in price of Equity from $1.79 to 55 cents a share.

400 Babies Crown of Achievement For King and Queen of Sitters

By RON SUDLOW

A middle-aged Esquimalt couple has set a record in baby-sitting.

Florence and Earl Pearson, 1001 Esquimalt Road, estimate they have cared for 400 little ones over the past 23 years.

Their "sitting" is done through the Children's Aid Society and the Family and Children's Service.

Their little bundles of joy have demanded an awful lot of work, as any parent can imagine.

Mrs. Pearson is unable to estimate the number of diapers she has washed or the number of formulas she has prepared, or the number of burps she has coaxed.

But she gets great satisfaction from "sitting."

The hardest part, she says, is when the infant must leave them because adoption arrangements have been completed.

"We don't really run a foster home. I like to think of it as a shelter. We keep the babies until they are adopted.

"And when that happens I feel a little piece of me goes with them," she said.

Even so, the Pearsons don't have to wait long for a replacement.

. . . ON DOORSTEP

There have been times when they have returned from town and a child is waiting for them on their doorstep—in the arms of a welfare worker.

During their years as pro-tem parents, the Pearsons have helped to raise infants of all nationalities and religions.

Back in their heyday of baby-sitting—the late 40s and 1950—they handled up to ten children at a time when they lived on Tillicum Road.

In those days, canned milk was bought by the case and nine clotheslines were full of diapers daily.

THREE AT A TIME

Today the Pearsons accommodate a maximum of three children at any one time.

Washing is still a major chore.

For inclement weather, a blower system has been rigged to their basement oil furnace to facilitate diaper drying.

This is an innovation of Mr. Pearson's who takes regular "shifts" at "sitting" after a day's work at Yarrows Shipyards Limited.

The majority of the infants they care for are illegitimate.

AWAITING ADOPTION

Those who are awaiting adoption; those who will go into foster homes and those who will return to their mothers after they have made plans to take care of them.

Why does a couple go to all this trouble? Mrs. Pearson's answer is simple.

"After I gave birth to a boy and two girls who are now grown up, I lost my last baby—a boy. That's when it all started."

They now have five grandchildren and another is on the way.

PEARSON'S FORMULA

Experience is a great teacher and here's the Pearson's formula for taking care of babies:

"Be placid. Don't handle the babies as though you are scared of them. If you are tense, the baby will sense it."

With all their "children" the Pearsons have lived a placid life, but plans are being made to "whoop it up" for their 40th anniversary this May.

And it looks as if Victoria's champion sitters will need a baby-sitter. Any takers?

LONG-TERM PAYMENT

'Parents' Seek Aid in Adoptions

A delegation of Victoria foster parents wants the provincial government to subsidize legal adoptions of some children placed in their care.

The subsidy should be a long-range regular payment toward health and education costs and should cover legal costs, they said.

And they also asked that where a child is placed in a foster home for two years or more, the courts be empowered to approve adoptions, or at least make the foster care arrangement permanent.

At the same time, the Foster Parents' Committee of Victoria Family and Children's Service drew attention to the low rates paid families who take in a child as a ward.

Mrs. Audrey Z. Paterson, 958 Terrace, chairman of the committee, said a meeting was held Tuesday with the legislative committee on social welfare.

AFFECTION, GUIDANCE

She told the MLA's that foster parents are asked to give affection and guidance but are told "Do not become emotionally involved."

Very few people can care for a child without doing so, she said. Hence many parents will not take in children as wards and those who do cannot give a child a feeling of security when the foundation for this does not exist.

The first one or two partings leave the foster parents and the children distraught, she said. At the same time, care of a foster child on a temporary basis often means depriving one's own children of little extras.

Mrs. Paterson said the foster parent receives $1.25 to $1.85 daily depending on a child's age, plus half the normal family allowance.

Cost to Victoria Family and Children's Service is $4.79, while for a child held in a provincial detention school, the cost is $7.73 for boys and $10.40 for girls daily.

She said the prevailing attitude among foster parents must be, "We take you foster child, to love, cherish, protect in sickness or in health, until the social agency makes other plans or your own parents decide whether or not they shall waive legal rights, although they have waived all others."

INSECURE SITUATION

She added, "It is a precarious, insecure, impermanent situation."

More children are coming into care for longer periods and the rising number of illegitimate children compounds the difficult situation.

Foster families would like to see more intensive work done toward strengthening broken families before a child is taken in care.

But where a child must be taken in care, then it is preferable to permit adoptions when they have been so long in a foster home that mutual attractions have been established, Mrs. Paterson said.

There are 7,000 children in foster homes in British Columbia and 400 in Victoria, 40 of whom are adoptable, Mrs. Paterson said.

New Road Access For Fish Wharf Gets Green Light

City council finance committee today gave the go ahead to a $30,000 works project for a new access road and extended storm drain at Fisherman's Wharf.

The financial recommendation to council will enable the city to sell and there for $130,000, a site bought by Victoria businessmen for development of a marine restaurant, incorporating banquet hall and specialty shop.

Money will come from land tax sale funds, which will be boosted by $70,000 if council approves two new land sales involving waterfront and seaview property.

Lands committee endorsed the sale of property at the foot of Milne and Mary Streets and on Dallas Road opposite Victoria Machinery Depot for $35,001 each.

Offers are both from Quinn Brothers Enterprises Ltd., who are believed to be interested in high-rise apartment development.

The land is zoned for industrial use in both cases, and the second parcel is in use by VMD as a parking area.

IN COMMUNICATIONS

Sailors Eyeing European Meet

Pacific Command sailors are hoping to participate in the annual European Naval Communication Agency competitions late this spring.

The competition, for communication operators of NATO navies, will be held in Amsterdam June 14-18.

Men will be tested in radio telegraph reception and transmission, flashing light reception and teletypewriter transmission.

A national team comprises four male junior operators with not more than six years' service.

Team members are now being sought within the command. Final selection will be made in May when West and East coast personnel hold playoffs.

Co-ordinating Pacific Command participation is Commodore A. G. Boulton, commodore RCN barracks, HMCS Naden.

Sidney Crash Sends Couple To Hosptial

Highway Crossing Accident Scene

A Victoria couple was being detained in Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney, today following a collision on Pat Bay Highway shortly after midnight.

Conrad Cannon, of 610 Avalon, is suffering severe chest injuries and head injuries. He is doing fairly well.

His wife is "in good shape" suffering facial injuries and shock.

The driver of the car in which they were travelling, Frederick Stark, of 849 Fort, was uninjured.

Truck driver Robert D. Quinn, 24, of 4831 West Saanich Road, also escaped unhurt.

The accident happened at the junction of Pat Bay and Beacon Avenue.

CAR DAMAGED

The car was badly damaged.

The truck, owned by Capital Freightways, Victoria, was heading for Swartz Bay ferry terminal to pick up a trailer. The car was pulling out of Beacon Avenue.

The truck was damaged on the right hand side.

BAY-ROSE CRASH

CHARLES HORNSBY
. . . to meet Queen

Blind Veteran To Attend London Meet

Charles Hornsby, 941 McClure, has been chosen by the Sir Arthur Pearson Association of War Blinded to represent Canadian First World War blind veterans in London, England, March 26.

Mr. Hornsby will leave Vancouver Saturday to attend the 50th anniversary of St. Dunstan's Training and Rehabilitation Centre for the war blinded in England.

All overseas veterans at the reception March 26 in St. James Palace will be presented to the Queen.

Mr. Hornsby was born in Lancashire, England, in 1892 and came to Canada in 1912.

He went overseas in 1916 with the Canadian Army, 143rd B.C. Bantams and was wounded at Paschendale, Oct. 29, 1917. He was totally blinded.

LEARNED BRAILLE

He entered the St. Dunstan centre in 1918, and after training became competent in Braille shorthand.

He returned to Edmonton, Alberta, the following year and took a job as a male stenographer.

After 16 years he retired to Savory Island and in 1954 he moved to Victoria.

He is now chairman of the Vancouver Island Chapter of the Sir Arthur Pearson Association and vice-chairman of the Victoria White Cane Club.

Sir Arthur Pearson, for whom the association was named, was a newspaper publisher who lost his sight as a civilian. Because of his concern for the hundreds of blinded young men returning from the war he founded the training centre.

Worker Misinformed On Payment of Bill

Victoria shipyard worker Douglas Quinn, 4525 Cheeseman, said today he has not paid a $2,137 hospital bill to a Seattle hospital because he sent his wife there on the understanding the bill would be paid for him.

Mrs. Quinn died of a kindey failure seven weeks ago after a five-week stay in University of Washington Hospital.

Mr. Quinn said he sent his wife there on the recommendation of the Victoria doctor who was treating her and on the understanding the bills would be paid by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and his own medical insurance plan.

He said after his wife's death he received a hospital care bill for about $3,000 and a bill from the Seattle doctors for between $800 and $900. A $350 bill for blood transfusions, included in the $3,000, was paid for in cash and blood from the Canadian Red Cross, said Mr. Quinn.

Mr. Quinn said his medical insurance plan paid the doctor's bill, but the BCHIS could only pay $400 of the $3,000 hospital bill because of a stipulation which only allows them to pay $12 a day for out-of-province hospital care.

He said the hospital has sent him numerous requests for the money which he has ignored "hoping they would forget about the whole thing."

Recently they sent a letter to his employer regarding the bill. He turned the letter over to officials of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers Union who advised him not to pay the bill, and brought it before the Vancouver Labor Council earlier this week.

Mr. Quinn said over a three-month period he paid more than $5,000 for his wife's care.

SPECIAL ALLOWANCES

University of Washington Hospital administrator Roy Rambeck said today in Seattle the hospital makes special allowances for persons who cannot pay bills, but Mr. Quinn has never told the hospital he can't pay.

He said the hospital has tried to contact Mr. Quinn but he hadn't answered the letters, and indicated that was why the employer of the man had been contacted.

$15,000 Approved For Car Park, Shopping Arcade

Finishing touches worth $14,952 were approved by committee today, allowing work to progress on Centennial Square car park and shopping arcade.

Centennial Square committee expects the complex to be ready for use by the end of September, but contractors need early approval of finishing work to schedule other jobs affecting the total operation.

The committee allowed $15,000 to complete the buildings with such things as washroom, suspended ceilings, wiring and fixtures for square illumination, door hardware, stair rails and storage room heating.

Firm Fined $30 For Failure To Pay Sales Tax

Representatives of two city businesses today appeared in magistrate's court on a total of seven counts of failure to remit sales taxes on time.

Both were charged under the Social Services Tax Act.

Anthony Penn pleaded his company, Penn Holdings Ltd., to three charges from the months of October, November and December, 1964.

Magistrate William Ostler fined the business $10 on each count and suspended sentence on its director.

Neil Edward Baker, operator of the George Inn, 604 Broughton Street, was remanded to March 25 without plea on similar charges from the months of September through December last year.

City Ban Likely On Firecrackers

$2½ MILLION DEBT CLAIMED BY VANCOUVER

Mayor William Rathie of Vancouver said Wednesday that Premier Bennett owes the city $2,500,000 for a coliseum.

He said the money—a federal grant for a British Columbia centennial project — was intended for a downtown Vancouver coliseum, but the premier took the money and used it for a new provincial museum and archives in Victoria, as a provincial centennial project.

Mayor Rathie said Immigration Minister Jack Nicholson told him the money was intended for a Vancouver coliseum.

He said he thinks the premier should give Vancouver the $2,500,000 as a start towards the $6,000,000 he wants the province to contribute to a $12,000,000 coliseum.

Committee Approves New Bylaw

A draft bylaw to outlaw firecrackers in Victoria was endorsed in committee today and passed along for city council approval.

The bylaw presented by city solicitor T. P. O'Grady follows recommendation of intermunicipal committee several months ago and is intended as a test in the capital region.

"It doesn't look like the legislature is going to act on fireworks this session," re marked Ald. A. I. Curtis.

TEST EFFECTIVENESS

Mr. O'Grady suggested the testing period in Victoria to determine whether the prohibition on sales and discharge is effective.

"Should it prove not to be and the reason is the lack of similar prohibition in unorganized territory, then I would suggest an appropriate form of resolution might be put to the Union of B.C. Municipalities," Mr. O'Grady wrote to the legislative committee.

The UBCM could then request more far reaching provincial legislation.

The solicitor noted that Mrs. Lois Haggen (NDP — Grand Forks-Greenwood) has a bill before the House for prohibition of fireworks generally, the same bill she has tried to get passed in previous years.

EXPLOSIVE TYPE

The Victoria bylaw relates only to explosive type firecrackers. Enabling legislation permits the city to issue a permit to persons or organizations marking a special event using fireworks or firecrackers.

Other Greater Victoria municipalities have indicated they approve and would pass similar bylaws.

The committee urged council to ask the Vancouver Island Association of Municipalities to seek more local banning of firecrackers.

ENTRANCE ON SQUARE FOR HOTEL

A current $500,000 renovation and expansion of Westholme Hotel will bring a change of name, new entrance and modified landscaping opposite Centennial Square.

City council Centennial Square committee today approved a revision of landscaping at the foot of Pandora Avenue where it once joined Government Street.

This work, at hotel expense, will permit automobile access to the new entrance planned by hotel developers anxious to complement the design of Centennial Square.

The hotel wrote to committee and presented sketch plans for an entirely new facade on Pandora, incorporating Roman arches, pennants and plate glass.

MORE ROOMS

Inside there will be an additional 53 rooms, a cocktail lounge, beverage room and lobby.

The name will be changed, the letter said, but not necessarily to what appears on sketches—one referring to the Victory Hotel, another to Sheraton Senator.

City manager Dennis Young said it is "obvious some type of agreement will have to be entered into" allowing the change in access.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the proposed entrance was by far superior to the existing entrance on Government.

Approval was recommended to council, subject to endorsation of working plans by the city engineer.

Flying Club Seeking Dollars For Quarters

The Victoria Flying Club will hold a St. Patrick's dance Saturday night in the club lounge of their new home at Pat Bay International Airport.

Proceeds from the dance will help pay for the old TCA (Air Canada) hangar recently acquired by the club.

The club wandered for 40 years on the fields of Gordon Head and Lansdowne and finally rented space at Pat Bay.

A bid to purchase the hangar when TCA moved to new quarters was successful, and "now we have to raise funds to pay off our debt," an official said.

3 New Mills Get Licence For Timber

The provincial government has approved timber allocations for new pulp mills earlier proposed for Squamish, Quesnel and Prince George.

None of the companies concerned got what they asked for, but each got sufficient for contemplated operations, said a release from Forest Minister Ray Williston's office.

The minister disallowed an application from Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. for a pulpwood harvesting area for its Woodfibre plant.

Mr. Williston said this should not jeopardize its expansion plans, now underway, which will double the mill's 250-ton daily capacity.

LICENCES GRANTED

The companies which were granted timber rights were United Pulp Co. Ltd. in association with Price Bros. and Co. Ltd. at Squamish, Cariboo Pulp and Paper Ltd. in association with Weldwood of Canada at Quesnel, and International Pulp Ltd., a joint subsidiary of Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd., and Feldmule A. G. of Prince George. The latter is a German firm.

In the case of Rayonier, the minister said he thought the wood requirements of that firm would be met by increasing the utilization of timber in areas already under the company's control.

This would mean logging trees of a minimum of nine inches in diameter where it has been the practice to log trees of a minimum 13 inches and larger.

Mr. Williston said this policy would embrace the whole sustained yield area of the coast.

He Double-Checked Lifeline During 'Swim' Outside Ship

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — The first man to gambol in space resembled a little boy exuberantly playing a new game.

Moscow television showed Lt.-Col. Alexei Leonov making man's first sally from the protective shelter of his spaceship shortly after the launching of the Voskhod-II spaceship.

The six-minute TV sequence showed Leonov rising from a hatch, on what appeared to be the upper surface of the spacecraft, and raise himself until his trunk was outside the hatch where he remained for about three minutes, standing hesitantly on the doorstep to space.

He gripped the rim of the hatch with his right hand and made a few sweeping motions with his left—all the time facing the camera.

The Soviet news agency Tass later explained he was waiting for spaceship commander, Col. Pavel Belyayev's command to kick free.

Leonov was wearing a white helmet. Hoses and other attachments stretched over his shoulder from the helmet to a pack on his back.

Then, the coils of Leonov's safety line were suddenly ejected from the hatch, as though someone had thrown them. The cosmonaut himself reached back into the hatch to draw out the rest of the slack.

Bracing himself with both hands on the rim of the hatch, Leonov arched his back and his feet floated up and out of the hatch.

His movements were surprisingly agile — resembling a swimmer moving underwater.

Throughout the filmed sequence, the white outline of the earth's curvature could be seen in the background, alternating with the blackness of outer space.

Leonov held on to the hatch for a few brief moments, as though reluctant to leave the safety of his space vehicle.

After he finally pushed himself off from the shiny surface of the spaceship, he slowly floated back, away from the camera.

He turned on his back and for a few seconds hung motionless, floating on his back in a prone position.

His body continued to float away from the camera and his lifeline could be seen stretching taut. Leonov reached over and touched the line—as though to adjust it and reassure himself it was there.

Despite the cumbersome-looking space suit with its "autonomous life - support system," Leonov began slowly and gracefully turning somersaults in the air.

He turned head over heels with increasing abandon while his body drifted in and out of the camera's range.

The TV sequence ended after showing about six minutes. Moscow viewers did not see him swim back to the ship.

Tass later said Leonov had been outside the cabin's atmosphere for 20 minutes, including 10 minutes outside the ship.

Camera Records Event As Ship's Door Opens

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow television today showed Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov step outside his space ship—the first time this has been accomplished in outer space.

Moscow radio, in an English-language broadcast, said: "Here in our studio in Radio Moscow we are at this moment watching the Soviet astronaut, Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov, outside his space ship for the first time in history.

"The picture of Alexei Leonov as he left the space ship, as he conducted his observations in outer space and as he returned safely to his space ship was recorded on tape here on the ground and has just been shown on Moscow television by means of the intervision hookup. It was also seen in the countries of western Europe."

Moscow television also showed pictures of the commander of the space ship, Lt. Col. Pavel Belyayev.

Soviet Feat Seen on TV

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia thrilled the world with a new space triumph today, the first nation to let a spaceman step into outer space for a "weightless swim" before returning to a high-flying manned satellite.

A 30-year-old miner's son, Lt.-Col. Alexei Leonov, became the world's first astronaut to separate from a spaceship in orbit—and to survive.

Moscow television transmitted a live program directly from aboard the spaceship.

Moscow radio said Leonov, father of a four-year-old girl, "felt good" as he clambered back through the hatch of Russia's latest spacecraft, Voskhod (Sunrise) II, after his mid-space adventure of about 20 minutes.

The Voskhod had completed its fifth 91-minute orbit at 5 p.m. (6 p.m. PST) and Leonov and fellow cosmonaut were "in good condition and felt well," the Soviet news agency Tass said. It listed their pulse rates as between 70 and 72 per minute and said they "ate with a good appetite."

While his colleague made astro-navigational observations and measurements, "Leonov rested in accordance with the program."

His breathtaking space swim was seen by millions on television in Russia and throughout the world, as Moscow released a graphic video-tape two hours afterwards.

Scientific observers said the feat appeared to put Russia far ahead in its space race with the United States, which plans to launch its two-man Gemini project Tuesday.

Well-Prepared for 'Intricate Tasks'

Leonov, said to be well prepared for "intricate tasks in flight," left the spaceship at 11:30 a.m. (12:30 a.m. PST), 90 minutes after he and Col. Pavel Belyayev, 39, were blasted-off on Russia's eighth manned space shot. He moved five metres (16.4 feet) into the void away from the space ship.

Moscow television showed a film of Leonov floating next to the spacecraft, apparently attached to it by a line to prevent his floating away.

He was wearing a bulky suit and heavy helmet. What looked like cylinders of oxygen were on his back.

The cosmonaut did somersaults in space and floated in a loose, relaxed-appearing manner of weightlessness.

The curve of the earth and the blackness of deep space could be seen in the background of the televised program from the spaceship. It was broadcast almost two hours after the venture into space was made at the end of the first orbit.

During the live TV hookup, Belyayev and Leonov both spoke over the radio telephone with Cuban Defence Minister Raul Castro, now staying in Moscow.

Castro asked them whether they had seen Cuba and the two men said they had seen all the continents and conveyed warm greetings to the Cuban people.

After hearing the cosmonauts' report on the fulfilment of their task, Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev addressed them on behalf of the party, the presidium and the Soviet government and people.

In a speech broadcast by Moscow radio he said:

"This is an exciting moment for mankind. For the first time in the world man has boldly and literally opened the door on the cosmos."

Wilson Talks To Gromyko

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson held a conference with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko late today amid mounting indications of Russian pressure for Britain to take a more "independent" line on the fighting in Viet Nam.

DA NANG (Reuters)—Forty-eight persons, including 45 children, were killed Wednesday when South Vietnamest air force planes bombed a village near here, military sources said today.

The sources said the village was flying the flag of the Viet Cong.

A group of villagers marched on Da Nang after the raid carrying several coffins but South Vietnamese troops turned them back before they reached the top-security Da Nang air base.

The sources said the Skyraider planes destroyed the village school and other buildings after an observation plane was shot at as it flew over. Thirty-seven children were in the school at the time of the raid.

A Viet Cong flag flew over the village of Pan Quang, about 375 miles northeast of Saigon and five from Da Nang. It was regarded as Communist-controlled despite its nearness to the U.S. base.

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

Time has suddenly become precious to a Legislative Assembly which has been at work since January 21, and is expected to break the Bennett government for longevity in session.

"If this doesn't end within three days," declared Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi plaintively, as the third night session of the week lengthened, "they'll carry me out of here in a coffin!"

Mr. Gaglardi's sentiments are general, and eyes are turned longingly toward March 24, the date on which the wise-money now predicts that Her Majesty's British Columbia representative will be conducted past the shiny brass bar to approve legislation and dismiss the House.

Meanwhile, on Wednesday afternoon debate was drastically shortened on three private members' bills by a legitimate but arbitrary chop.

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane fell victim to this parliamentary gimmick when he sought support for an amendment which "in plain, ordinary clear language would put out of doubt for all time the status of members of the purchasing commission."

While Mr. Macfarlane's challenge still hung in air, up rose Attorney-General Bonner with St. Patrick's Day green in his lapel to move adjournment of the debate.

Alex Macdonald, NDP for Vancouver East, next tried his luck with 'An Act Respecting Privacy' which would put an end to unsanctioned "bugging" of private conversations.

Mr. Macdonald offered a chilling word-picture of the "Bumper Beeper" with which snoopers can pick up a whisper in a speeding automobile, then touched on the "Big Beam", a device that permits a private eye to tune in on a street corner chat two blocks distant.

He had barely completed a warning that such instruments threaten peoples' "marvellous eccentricity, individuality and courage in expressing themselves", when the axe again descended in the shape of a government-side adjournment move.

For Grand Forks-Greenwood NDP Mrs. Lois Haggen, same deal.

Before discussion could begin on her annual fireworks-squelching amendment or her well-argued attempt to obtain equal pay for women, government voices moved to adjourn the debate right out from under her.

* * *

Summary treatment, this; and I suspect those bills will get short shrift on their next appearance. But the move did clear the way for Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Williston's estimates.

Into these, at the evening sitting, NDP David Barrett for Dewdney dropped a bombshell in the shape of a park not on Mr. Williston's list, but so designated in 1944 by John Hart as Coalition premier.

"A public scandal," Mr. Barrett termed approaches to government by Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources Ltd.—a firm which includes among its directors Fred Dietrich, provisional director of the shadow-bank of British Columbia.

The park is 9,000-acre Cyprus Bowl in West Vancouver.

* * *

Earlier, Gordon Gibson, second Liberal for North Vancouver, presented to the legislature a list of 19 forest management questions which he asserted he had tried in vain to lay before the House forestry committee.

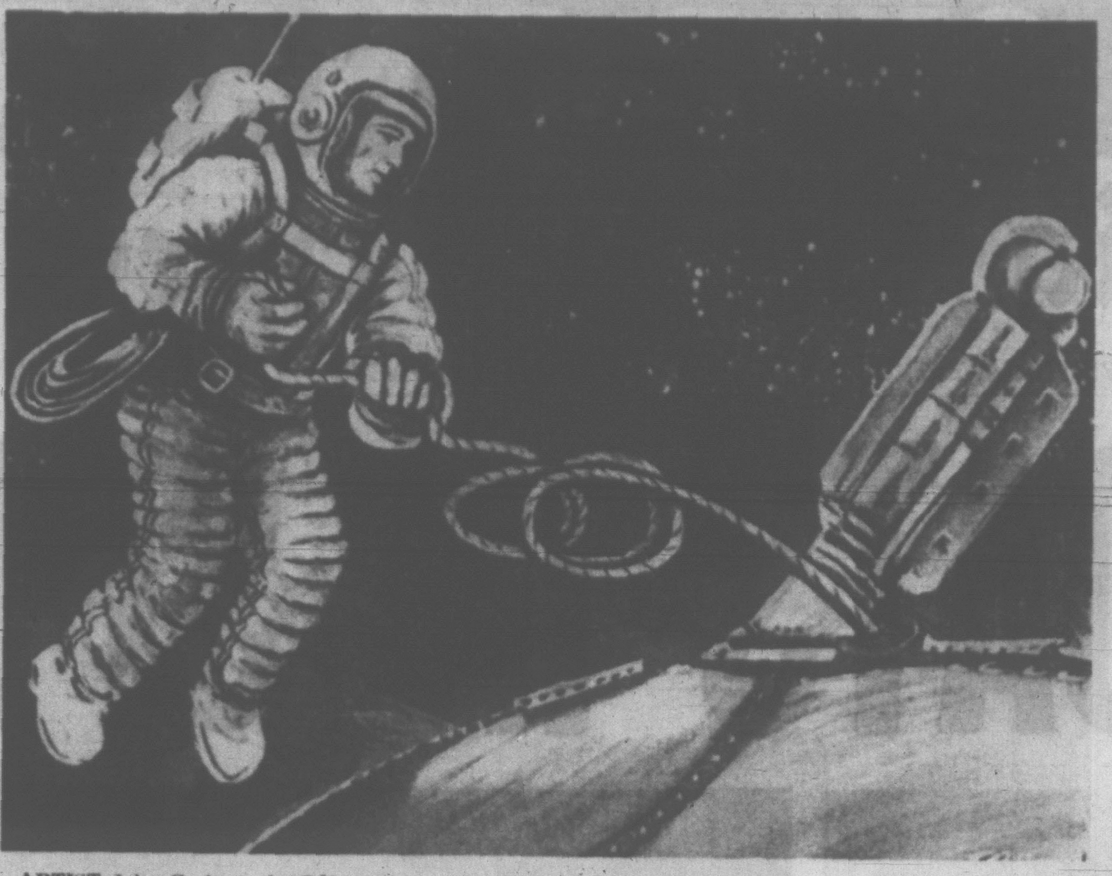
In total, these queries put forward Mr. Gibson's already-expressed opinion that, over the last 10 years, "the peoples' timber" has been sold at least $500 million too cheaply.

Mr. Williston's answer, in part:

"In the final analysis, in this democratic process, somebody has to make the decisions and stand the criticism.

"It would be a very easy task to simply report recommendations to the legislature, but I have to say, 'We will do this', and take the consequences of what must be done.

"I've never shirked from making decisions . . . If I don't, some other human has to!"



ARTIST John Carlton of AP drew this conception of man's first flight in space outside protection of spaceship. Television pictures from capsule showed Alexei Leonov floating in weightlessness.

jaunt outside a space vehicle, also beat the United States two-man Gemini launching scheduled for Tuesday.

The two-man spaceship was launched this morning from a secret base, probably in Soviet central Asia.

It was thought the space shot might last between one and two weeks. There also was speculation that the two-man flight might be followed by another for a spectacular attempt at a history-making link-up in space.

Today's launch was Russia's first space shot since last Oct. 12 when three cosomauts—a pilot, a scientist and a doctor—made 16 orbits in 24 hours aboard Voskhod I.

According to preliminary data, the spaceship orbited the earth once every 90.9 minutes.

Its minimum distance from the earth perigee was about 110 miles and its maximum apogee about 310 miles. The orbit angle was about 65 degrees.

Two-way radio communications were constantly maintained with the space ship.

It was the first venture into space for Belyayev and Leonov. They were taking part in Russia's eighth manned space probe since Major Juri Gagarin became the world's first cosmonaut April 12, 1961.

A report by Belyayev and telemetric data showed that the crew withstood satisfactorily the orbiting and the transition to weightlessness.

All the equipment on board the spaceship was functioning normally.

The launching was announced here 48 minutes after the blast-off at 10 a.m. (11 p.m. PST).

The blast-off was preceded by the launching of 10 Cosmos research satellites in the last three weeks. The Cosmos probes are usually sent up to test conditions for a manned flight.

Higher Than Earlier Manned Ships

Voskhod II was ranging higher above the earth than any previous manned spaceship launched by Russia. Its maximum altitude of 310 miles was nearly 55 miles higher than that reached by Voskhod I and about 120 miles higher than Maj. Gagarin's flight.

Three Cosmos satellites launched Monday went up about 1,150 miles.

Voskhod I came down after 24 hours, but there were unconfirmed reports that its flight was cut short because it coincided with the dismissal of former premier Khrushchev.

In Voskhod I, the crew members lay side by side, facing an instrument panel.

Instead of the heavy spacesuits and pressurized helmets of previous shots they wore only light woollen suits, sports shirts and comfortable light shoes.

Over their suits they had blue jackets to protect them from the cold and wore light white helmets with earphones.

Voskhod I was the first space ship to come back to earth with the crew inside, making ejector seats unnecessary.

It was fitted with a newly-designed braking system that was reported to have brought it down unscathed, by parachute.

Voskhod I landed in the north Kazakstan region in Soviet central Asia.

In 1962, Russia orbited Maj. Andrian Nikolayev aboard Vostok III. The next day Lt.-Col. Pavel Popovich joined him in space aboard Vostok IV. The two ships flew side by side for three days and landed within six minutes of each other.

In 1963, Lt.-Col. Valery Bykovsky went up aboard Vostok V. Two days later, the world's first woman cosmonaut, Valentina Tereshkova, went into orbit aboard Vostok VI, and the two ships stayed up together for three days.

As far as is known, no attempt at a space rendezvous was made during these dual flights.

Col. Bykovsky is the Soviet cosmonaut who has stayed longest in space—119 hours. He made 81 orbits in his five-day flight.

Mme. Chiang Praises Firm Stand by LBJ

By ROBERT EUNSON

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—"I am really glad that (U.S.) President Johnson has taken such a firm stand in Viet Nam," the lovely Chinese woman said in English.

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek continued:

"People in Asia have been watching very closely America's attitude toward not only her enemies but her friends. The people of Asia often feel that America will do nothing to uphold her often - proclaimed principles of helping people hold onto the freedom they have. That is why people sometimes ask, 'why shouldn't we be like the neutralists and not offend the Communists?' "

Mme. Chiang, 64 next Wednesday, appears to be in her early 40s. Her exquisite figure was cased in a black silk dress, and she wore her usual pearl ornaments.

She said in her opinion the problem in Southeast Asia is strictly a confrontation between an imperialistic Red China and the free world. Married to Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-shek for more than 37 years, she has been close to her people's fight for freedom most of her life.

Climbers To Challenge Mt. Kennedy

SEATTLE (AP) — Everest Whittaker will fly to Yukon Territory in a "few days" to join in an ascent of the 13,900-foot Canadian peak named for the late president John F. Kennedy.

Seattle newspapers said there were reports that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, (D-N.Y.), brother of the slain president, might also take part in the cimb.

Kennedy, reported to be in New York, could not be reached for comment.

The climb is sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the Boston museum of science.

Whittaker, who in 1963 became the first American to climb Mt. Everest, said at his home in nearby Redmond there was no assurance the ascent would be successful.

"This is an unclimbed summit," he said. "The weather can stop any party that makes the attempt."

. . . BOMBING

Cong are believed to be operating.

The village raid came after U.S. B-57 jet bombers again pounded Viet Cong positions in Binh Duong province south of Saigon Wednesday.

South Vietnamese forces today claimed 64 Viet Cong guerrillas were killed and 16 captured in three actions in the northernmost 1st Army Corps area. The government said 16 of its men were wounded and none killed.

Meanwhile, the North Viet Nam News Agency reported that Communist forces in the south had annihilated four government companies and caused heavy casualties in the first 10 days of this month. It said they killed 700 "United States puppets."

On the political front, the South Vietnamese government announced it will "deport" three leaders of a peace movement across the border to the north Friday.

Previously Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi said he planned to drop them by parachute into North Viet Nam but was overruled by the government.

The three men—a veterinarian, a history teacher and a journalist—were arrested last month after collecting 358 signatures for a petition demanding an immediate ceasefire in the war.

Labor Group Raps Gov't Over Ferries

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver and Disrtict Labor Council Tuesday night accused the provincial government of denying labor legislation to ferry authority employees.

Council delegates voted to go on record as opposing a government ruling that fair wages and conditions of employment regulations do not apply to ferry workers.

Secretary Paddy Neale said the ferry authority has called tenders for janitorial service now performed by a unionized company.

Under the government ruling, he said a non-union company would likely win the conrtact.

300 QUESTIONED

Murder of Widow Remains Mystery

CLOVERDALE, B.C. (CP)—A year ago a 68-year-old widow was tied to a kitchen chair, tortured and beaten and finally stabbed to death.

Who killed Mary Rhoda Oliver and why are questions still baffling police in this tiny Fraser Valley farming community 20 miles southeast of Vancouver.

Mrs. Oliver lived like a recluse. She admitted to acquaintances she thought she would die an unnatural death. But she never said why.

More than 300 persons in British Columbia, Eastern Canada and parts of the United States were questioned by police. No suspects have been found.

The body of Mrs. Oliver was discovered in her house Feb. 3, 1964. A paring knife was embedded in her back. A towel was carefully draped over her face. She had been slain three days before.

A bent bread knife was found in the kitchen sink. Her glasses were on the kitchen table. A magnifying glass was on the floor near her body.

Police said Mrs. Oliver was tied to a chair and tortured. She suffered a dislocated jaw, a broken nose, bruised eyes and cuts. The killer then stabbed her with three different knives.

A small amount of money in her purse was not touched. Neither was a gold watch of considerable value. She kept little money in the house. She was not sexually attacked. Nothing besides the knives, the chair, the magnifying glass and the towel were out of place in the house.

Mrs. Oliver had no known enemies. After exhausting other avenues of investigation, police questioned patients released from mental hospitals but found no more clues.

Constable Bill Kerr, now heading the investigation, said he had studied the case so long "it is almost as though I had lived in the same house with her."

"She was a woman of clockwork habits, but for some reason which I can't determine she broke them the day she was killed."

She usually left her home only on Thursdays to shop. The day she was killed, a Saturday, she was seen in a store in town, about one mile from her house.

A car was seen by a neighbor in Mrs. Oliver's driveway shortly afterwards, but police have not been able to trace the vehicle.

Detectives even mingled at her funeral, checking on those who attended and looking for the mystery car.

Nothing was turned up.

A $500 reward was posted by the municipal council in March, 1964. It has never been claimed.

NEGRO, WHITE PUPILS STAGE VICIOUS BRAWL

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—Street fighting between Negro and white students today closed one of this city's largest high schools.

Dozens of fist fights broke out before more than a hundred policemen, some of them on horseback, broke up the demonstration which stemmed from a weekend of racial incidents on the east side.

Police said apparently nobody was hurt seriously although two boys were taken to a hospital for x-rays.

The situation was tense at noon, hours after the fighting had been broken up. People milled around in the streets, booing the white-helmeted policemen.

Ex Officer to Face Trial on 'Benefits'

OTTAWA (CP)—Retired Brig. John Baxter Allan will be formally committed April 15 for trial on charges of conspiring to accept and of accepting a benefit of more than $8,000 between 1957 and 1963, senior magistrate Glenn Strike ruled Tuesday at the end of Allan's two-day preliminary hearing.

Bail of $4,000 was continued for the dapper, 50-year-old Allan who was the Canadian Army's vice - quartermaster-general until his compulsory retirement last August.

The benefit Allan allegedly accepted comprised merchandise—payment of hotel bills and transfer of shares from four Toronto brothers who were directors or agents of a company or companies doing business with the federal government.

SHAREHOLDERS

The brothers are Ben, Morris, Mark and Edward Levy, the major shareholders in Levy Industries Limited of Toronto.

Morris Levy testified Tuesday under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, meaning that his testimony could not be used against him in other court proceedings except on a charge of perjury.

Crown Attorney John Cassels suddenly cut short his case with seven Crown witnesses still waiting to testify and moved for Allan's formal committal for trial.

Magistrate Strike agreed. Mr. Cassels said the trial will be held this fall.

SMOKED TURKEY

Mr. Cassels read letters purportedly written by Allan to Ben Levy Dec. 30, 1957, and Dec. 29, 1959, thanking the latter for "holiday season gifts" of smoked turkey and ham.

Morris Levy, vice - president and secretary of Levy Industries Limited, identified as from his company a file marked "Brig. J. B. Allan."

He said the Levy interests tendered on Canadian defence contracts and bought material through Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, a Crown company.

WHEAT SALES LOSSES COST $100 MILLION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may be losing $100,000,000 of business a year because of a requirement that half of any wheat sold to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries must be carried in U.S. ships, a government official testified Tuesday.

"This year, Russia again is important rather substantial quantities of wheat from Canada and Australia—but not from the United States," Agriculture Undersecretary Charles Murphy told a Senate banking subcommittee hearing.

Quebec Revolt 'Overdue'

The revolt in French Canada over equal rights was long overdue, it was suggested here Wednesday by a prominent political scientist.

"The wonder is that it has taken the better part of a century for the aggravations in this uneven partnership to erupt into the agonized and understandably extremist complaints that are now a matter of close scrutiny," Dr. J. E. Hodgetts, head of the political studies department at Queen's University, told a group of political scientists attending a convention here.

"In my view, what is really at stake is the broad issue of how to create a genuinely representative national public service. Unfortunately the issue is likely to become too narrowly construed as a problem of how to placate French Canada alone."

Dr. Hodgetts said it is important to remind ourselves that during the pre-confederation period, political and administrative concession made to the concept of equal partnership were evident in Canada.

"Here was a system topped by a hyphenated premiership, often organized in double-barreled ministries, staffed in dual divisions, and to cap it all, a system of rotating capitals.

"All this came to an abrupt end in 1867 and Quebec, like the American south, found itself outvoted politically and forced to accept as a nucleus for the new central civil service, a staff drawn largely from Ontario, housed in a permanent capital in Ottawa and conducting all official business in English."

C.A.R.S Plans Therapist Student Aid

The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, B.C. division, is again offering financial aid to British Columbia students qualifying for training as physical and occupational therapists.

Bursary loans of up to $500 are available to students who have completed Grade 13 or first-year university. The required subjects are English 100; chemistry 101 or 102; mathematics 101 (revised) or 120; zoology 105 (or biology 100 senior matriculation) and one other credit course.

"Training can be taken at the school of rehabilitation, University of British Columbia," says Mrs. Ray Talbot, information officer.

"Job opportunities in this vital field of rehabilitation are unlimited."

The society is also offering a first prize of $100 for the best essay on physical or occupational therapy by a high school student.

Entries will be judged by members of the Canadian Physiotherapy Association, the Canadian Occupational Therapy Association and members of the press.

Entries should be sent directly to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, 645 West Broadway, Vancouver 9, not later than May 31.

U.K. Doctors Back Down

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's 23,000 family doctors backed down Wednesday night from their "more pay or we quit" ultimatum. They left the way clear for a negotiated peace with the government on the embattled National Health Service.

The doctors put their "strike" deadline back to July 1 when the British Medical Association, speaking for the doctors, offered Health Minister Kenneth Robinson three months to work out new pay rates and employment conditions.

More than 500 students are expected to attend classes in the Greater Victoria School Board's summer session which will begin July 5 in Oak Bay High School. The session is intended to give students an opportunity to increase their junior high school marks.

ALBERTA WILL FIGHT COMPULSORY MEDICARE

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government served notice Wednesday that it will fight any attempt to set up a compulsory national health insurance plan in Canada.

Health Minister Dr. J. Donovan Ross said if the federal government insists on a compulsory national plan, Alberta wants to stay out.

"We would not be prepared to depart from a voluntary program," he said. Alberta has a voluntary medical care insurance plan.

Dr. Ross said the government believes any medical plan should be voluntary also, because the experience of other nations has shown that government can't afford compulsory health schemes.

EXPERT PREDICTS

Brain Studies to End Necessity for Couch?

Research being carried out at the University of Victoria neuropsychology laboratory may help lead to discovering the reasons for basic human behavior, it was suggested this week.

"A more profound knowledge of brain functions may help us to know why young adolescents are enamored with the Beattles or why the colors red and yellow have a different emotional impact on people than blue and green," said Dr. William Gaddes, a neuropsychologist.

"It will also help to discover why jealousy and forms of hostility occur in some personalities and not others.

"When we understand the physiology of the brain depressive and the normal, and this leads to controlling it, psychiatrists will be obsolete and will be replaced by neurological-psychological therapists," he told a meeting of the University Extension Association.

"Until that happens society must supply recreation and therapy centres for the neurologically impaired. Automation will increase the leisure time of the mildly impaired and we will have to prepare for this as well."

CELL TISSUE

Dr. Gaddes said research is being carried out into the structure of cell tissue at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"If man can produce mental tissue there need not be any mental retardation and if we can learn enough about cell chemistry we can teach the body to produce mental tissue.

"The mentally handicapped child of today faces a far brighter future than in the past," said Dr. Gaddes.

City Flowers Painting Presented to Vaniers

A water-color painting by Emily Sartain of Victoria — Canadian Wild Flowers from Coast to Coast—has been presented to Madame Georges Vanier, wife of the governor-general of Canada.

It will be hung at their official residence at Rideau Hall, Ottawa.

Miss Sartain was commissioned to paint this national flower study by Toronto Garden Club. It was created in her studio at 1020 Cook Street, and presented to Madame Vanier in Toronto last Friday.

"I tried to include as many Canadian wild flowers as possible," Miss Sartain said, "but of course they had to conform to the general color scheme."

Included were the Pacific dogwood of British Columbia, the wild rose of Alberta, the prairie crocus of Manitoba, the trillium of Ontario, the trailing arbutus of Nova Scotia, the blue iris of Quebec and the pitcher plant of Newfoundland.

GARDEN CLUB

The painting was displayed at the new Civic Garden Centre in Toronto before presentation to Madame Vanier by Mrs. George Masters, president of the Toronto Garden Club.

"I felt greatly honored by being asked to produce this work," Miss Sartain said. "It was a gift to Madame Vanier on the occasion of her visit to the civic garden centre."

Citizenship Withheld From Dutch 'Athiests

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Stanley Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court upheld Wednesday a Cayuga county judge's decision denying Canadian citizenship to a Dutch husband and wife because they do not believe in God.

Mr. Justice Schatz emphasized in his 41-page judgment that his review is limited only to a consideration of Judge W. W. Leach's jurisdiction and the law as he applied it.

Judge Leach had earlier refused to recommend Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bergsma of Caledonia, Ont., as being suitable to be granted citizenship under the Canadian Citizenship Act of 1954.

Mr. Bergsma, who came here nine years ago, had admitted to Judge Leach that his family does not attend church. He told the judge that if his children want to join a church, "that is up to them."

Judge Leach had replied: "The things that we believe in this country stand for Christianity . . . being honest and believing in Christ's teachings.

CHRISTIAN WAYS

"Not everybody follows this, but that is what we try to attain in this country, the Christian way of life. I feel you must have some kind of faith, but you don't seem to believe in anything from what I can gather."

Judge Leach had ruled that the Bergsmas could not take the oath of allegiance as prescribed in the Citizenship Act.

Mr. Justice Schatz said in his report that originally in common law a person could not be accepted as a witness unless he believe in God. He said that nothing in the Citizenship Act has relaxed this requirement.

The judgment noted that the Canadian Bill of Rights, calling for freedom of religion, was passed after the Citizenship Act and its regulations.

NO INTERFERENCE

The Supreme Court judge said: "The Canadian Parliament has in the Citizenship Act declared the requirements for obtaining the privilege of Canadian citizenship, and the Bill of Rights in no way affects the purpose or effect of that statute."

He said Judge Leach made no error in law that would deprive him of jurisdiction, and the Ontario Supreme Court could not interfere with the judge's decision on that ground.

New Paper for U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — A new left-wing national daily newspaper will be launched in Britain in the fall, one of its provisional founders said Wednesday. Ernest Kay, managing editor of the right-wing weekly magazine Time and Tide, heads a provisional founders council for the new paper, tentatively named The Globe.

'MOST UNUSUAL CASE'

Woman Needs 2 Jobs To Keep 2 Husbands

VANCOUVER (CP)—"This is a most unusual case," commented Magistrate Gordon Scott Wednesday as he heard the amazing details of the double life of Joan Mae Celli, 42.

She peaded guilty to bigamy and court was told not only was she married twice, but kept up two homes for two mates only blocks apart and held down two jobs to help support them.

Her counsel, Gordon Dickson, told the court the attractive woman married Dominic Celli in the 1940s and they had two children. In 1949 to help support the family she began a daytime job at a hospital.

Then, 1958, she met William Millar and they were married a short time later. It was then her double life began for the two homes were only blocks apart. To help the second husband she got another job—as a waitress in the evenings.

It wasn't until 1960, counsel told the court, that the first husband discovered his wife had married a second time.

Magistrate Scott ordered the woman remanded to March 24 for sentence but instructed Crown officials to interview both husbands and report back to the court.

FORMER external affairs minister Howard Green predicted Wednesday night there will be a federal election in June and he will be a candidate. Mr. Green said he will run as a Conservative in his old riding of Vancouver Quadra.

10-DAY CRUISE STARTS

Escorts Leave for Manoeuvres

Two Esquimalt-based warships left Wednesday on a 10-day cruise involving exercises off the western U.S. coast.

The destroyer-escort HMCS Qu'Appelle and ocean escort HMCS Ste Therese will rendezvous during the cruise with three other Pacific command ships returning from a 10-week junket to Central America.

They are HMC ships Yukon, Sussexvale and New Glasgow now en route here after cadet training exercises.

A three-day liberty and recreation stay in Portland, Ore., is scheduled for Qu'Appelle, Jonquiere and Ste. Therese from Friday to Tuesday.
